

FEDERATION DRAWS MANY

Delegates from All Over
County Make Merry
With Salem

One of the largest crowds that has ever attended a Marion County Federation meeting in Salem turned out last night to greet the outside visitors at the Chamber of Commerce last night. Everybody was well repaid for the going, for the program and the good fellowship was 100 per cent good and the luncheon was even better.

Officers were elected for the year 1923 by delegates present from Liberty, Sunnyside, Jefferson, Silverton, Salem, Woodburn, and Salem Heights. The new men were not all present and so were not installed. They are: Joseph Keber of Mt. Angel, president; Blaine McCord of Woodburn, vice president; and A. N. Fulkerson of Salem Heights, secretary. The new president will appoint his committees for the year and make them known by letter to the appointees, so that they can get to their work without delay.

No meeting place was selected for the next monthly meeting. This will be decided by the officers and announced in the various communities.

An especially effective program was presented, most of it coming from Eastern Oregon. One of the speakers was "Bill" Handley of Burns, president of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce and director of the Oregon Development League. He told of the program being proposed through the Oregon Chamber of Commerce, a fund approximating $300,000 to be used in making Oregon farmers and producers more prosperous through cooperation. Mr. Handley is a clever speaker and got a great hand for his address.

Another easterner was James Kyle of Stanfield, president of the Idaho Irrigation congress. He said that he "just came along with the other fellows from his part of the state," but as a big irrigator he happens in to the legislature to see what might happen to their water laws. He gave a good address on irrigation conditions.

Walter Meacham, president of the Old Oregon Trail association, gave a fine picture of the hardships endured in the making of the Oregon trail, which he characterized as one of the only two really great trails in history, the Santa Fe trail being the other. He pointed out that the Oregon highway was laid out and traveled solely by homesteaders; the women and the babies and the men who came to stay; the other was the trail of adventure, of the Argonauts and the seekers after excitement. His address, punctuated with beautiful bits of verse from Joaquin Miller, Col. John Orvillebaugh and others who have seen and lived in the wonderful romance of the northwest, was a classic, and was listened to with the closest attention.

THE VALUE OF LIFE INSURANCE

(Written for "Insurance Day" in the National Thrift week, by W. C. Dyer.)

It enables the individual to immediately establish a cash estate in event of his death. The so-called premium or deposit is small compared to the amount of insurance the company may be called upon to pay at any time. A claim when paid by a life insurance company is always paid in cash which is often worth more than a similar value in real property.

Many Widows Working
There are three million widows working in the United States and seven million in all, working. Two and one-half million babies are born into poverty each year. Ten per cent of all burials are in the paupers grave. In the last 12 years 26 per cent of all businesses have failed, and during the last 10 years 40,000 employers have returned to the position of employee. At least a large portion of these unfortunate conditions could have been prevented by the purchase of an adequate amount of life insurance.

There is no other way by which a person can increase estate by small cash deposit and when you realize that the life insurance companies are paying to beneficiaries and holders of matured policies over 2 1/2 million of dollars each and every year you will be convinced that life insurance has a permanent place in American finance.

Life insurance is also recognized as a systematic plan of saving which might be termed a compulsory bank account. Such a plan prevents dependency in old age. Figures compiled by the American Bankers association illustrate the experience of 100 men who at the age of 25 are able to pass a good examination. Forty years later these men will have reached the age of 65; 1 will have accumulated $25,000 or more; four will have accumulated $10,000 or more; five will be self sustaining by the daily efforts, making a total of 10 that are independent;

The Story of Edwin and Leonora Thrift Week Stories, with Edwin as the Hero and Leonora as the Star

(By Prof. Alice Dodd, Willamette University)

Getting the Better of the Installment Plan.

How proud they were of the bank account as it increased! It must not be interfered with; it was alternately the support of their old age, the nucleus of a home, a college education for the children to be, the capital for the future business, all these and many more purposes, but always their pride, their little ewe lamb.

But Leonora went to the city one day in a most mysterious fashion, and when she returned in the evening Edwin saw that she was almost bursting with some important secret, and at last she told him that her visit had been to the furniture houses which had agreed to a handsome reduction for cash. Did he not think it well to use their bank balance for this purpose?

Finally Gives In
Manlike in the face of a plan not of his own making, Edwin loyally interposed various objections just to prove man's superiority, as Alice Robertson of Oklahoma would say, and then consented as he intended doing from the first. There was just $5 left on deposit at the end of the next day. "But they were free!"

They made this solemn vow: No more installment plan, no more bills. Only millionaires can afford the installment plan and bills. Edwin says that whenever you feel tempted to run a bill you should think of the "Old Man of the Sea." Leonora must not confuse Sinbad and St. Christopher. Find out who they both were, she may ask you some day.

Learns Many Things
Does the reader think they lived happily ever after? Perhaps not, but think of the experience they have had. Edwin has learned that however lovely a girl may be, there are some homely everyday qualities that are absolutely necessary in married life. They may be summed up in the one word, THRIFT. Hair the color of fresh honey, cherry lips, cheeks like peaches and cream a dimpled chin that looks good enough to eat, may stimulate hunger by their very names, but they can never satisfy it, for the wear and tear of life there is nothing like a balanced ration and a wife who knows how to cook.

Also that tears "make" poor seasoning, they are too watery. Also, that fathers and mothers should begin training their daughters for marriage early.

Stomach Important
That the angel you thought you married was only a girl. Leonora has learned that a girl's training in home-making should begin much earlier than her's began; that no one should be allowed to marry until she has first learned these lessons that she learned through tears. And, that married happiness rests largely upon the masculine stomach.

They both decided that each school should be endowed with a chair of applied fatherhood and motherhood and THRIFT; that next to religion and honor and family affection, there is nothing like a bank balance, it has such a tonic effect upon the whole physical and mental organism. They have tried it and they know. Edwin lifts his hat more gracefully now, and Leonora can afford to say, "that is too dear for us to buy."

Try it yourselves.

GROWERS MEETING AT LIBERTY HALL

Loganberry growers of the Liberty district, Salem Heights, Rosedale, Sunnyside and all the contiguous districts are urged to attend a meeting of the growers at the Liberty hall, south of Salem, tonight at 7:30.

This meeting is to talk over the matters that will come up in the big logan organization that is pending for the whole valley. The big organization is waiting for the return of several of the national canners' congress at Atlanta, Ga., following their return a committee meeting is to be held and the growers may hope to have something definite laid out for their consideration, in the matter of price agreements for the coming year.

Oregon loganberry products were to have a great tryout at the Atlanta convention. A carload of the logans was to be distributed, and a full 1000 jobbers and wholesalers were to see the stuff Oregon has sent there for the demonstration. If the trade takes kindly to the showing and the fruit, the Oregon fortune might be made right from that one demonstration, according to the statement of those most deeply interested in the success of the better-price movement.

All growers, from anywhere, are welcome at the Liberty meeting tonight.

Teaching Statistics Are Given in Report

A tabulation giving the turnover in positions of high school teachers and principals of grade buildings has just been completed by Superintendent of Public Instruction J. A. Churchill, and shows that of the 1702 teachers in the state so employed, 705 were serving their first year in the position; 370 their second year; 237 their third; 95 their fourth, and 59 their fifth.

Of the 1702 teachers but 17 had taught ten years in the same school; nine for 15 years, and only one 20 years. The longest terms of service in the same school were found in the Portland schools, there being three teachers who have the record of having taught there 29, 30 and 33 years, respectively.

There is no high school teacher in Baker or Crook who has served in the same period longer than four years. Harney, Hood, River, Polk and Sherman counties have no teachers who have taught in one district for more than three years, while Curry and Wheeler counties have no teacher who has taught in the same district for a period longer than two years.

Cannery May Be Built In Silverton Soon

SILVERTON, ORE., Jan. 18. (Special to The Statesman)—A group of farmers and others interested in a co-operative cannery met Wednesday afternoon at the Silverton Community club room and discussed the possibility of building a co-operative cannery at Silverton. About 65 men were present.

Mr. Kerr of the Mt. Angel cannery and Mr. Newhall of the Oregon Growers' Association met with the men and talked to them about the advantages of such an organization and discussed the possibilities for it at Silverton. The matter was left in the hands of a committee which will make a survey of the small fruit and berry situation in and around Silverton.

If there is enough fruit to warrant the building of another cannery at Silverton the matter of such will then be taken up again and an organization formed.

THIS IS THRIFT WEEK — TODAY IS INSURANCE DAY

Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge on Life Insurance.

"I shall best express my opinion of the value of life insurance when I say that I took out my first policy as a youth of 19, and have been writing new policies ever since that time. I have found them a pretty heavy burden upon my resources at times, particularly in my earlier years, but I have always found them to be very comforting possessions, and if I had my life to live over again I would seek to take more rather than less."—Warren G. Harding.

"There are certain obligations which every man owes to his family, his business and his country. He owes it to his family that they shall not be left dependent upon charity. He owes it to his business associates not to allow the business to collapse by the loss of his personal attention. He owes it to his country that the government shall not be deprived of its supporting taxes through shrinkage of his estate.

There is one way in which all men can fulfill each of these duties. That is by insurance. In this day and generation it would seem there is no greater blessing to prepare us against the future than life insurance. I believe in it sincerely and feel that no man can afford to fail to take advantage of its time-proven benefits."—Calvin Coolidge.

"Insure for maximum death benefit, i.e., ordinary whole life."—Roger W. Babson.
