You Need a Winchester Flashlight
Danger lurks in the darkness. A flashlight is the safe emergency light everywhere. A hundred uses in every home.
"Winchester" on a flashlight means satisfaction. Durable nickle and fibre cases. Patented safety switch on fibre flashlights, one-piece lens cap, lens with perfect distribution of light—are a few Winchester features.
Always use powerful Winchester batteries for bright light and long life. They fit all standard flashlights.

The Buyer of Cheap Shoes
Feels best only when paying for them, while the recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten. This is the age of plunder merchandising. It tempts the unwary, and unfortunately the person of small means is usually the greatest sufferer. When you buy Walk-Over Shoes of merit, you are buying a shoe with the largest distribution in the world, and you not only get 100 cents for every dollar spent, but get a shoe.

Salem's Greatest Department Store

PERSONAL
H. C. Stapleton of Rosedale, roadmaster, was before the county clerk with business yesterday. Alfred Taylor of Central Howell spent the day in Salem yesterday.

E. Van Santen, of Bridge Creek, clerk of the school board of that section, was in the city on business yesterday.

H. C. Todd of Sublimity was in the city yesterday. Siya Jones of Gervais was in Salem yesterday for a short time.

H. W. Cooley of Talbot, a farmer of that vicinity was in Salem on business yesterday.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST
Many signs of spring.

The ways and means committee of the two houses of the legislature, accompanied by Governor Pierce, spent the afternoon of yesterday looking over the penitentiary.

The thing that impressed the legislators most was the number of upstanding men kept in idleness there; not because they do not want to work, but because there is no work provided for them.

If 100 of those over 400 men were employed in a flax plant equipped to spin seine twine, they could easily turn out 100 tons annually of this twine, and sell it to the fishermen of Oregon for $2.75 a pound and upward. They could clear on this twine $2.50 a pound, or enough to pay all the expenses of two prisons the size of Oregon's penitentiary, and have $100,000 to spare. They could pay wages to every man in the prison who works at any job, and still pile up a big annual surplus.

The fishermen want and need this pure Oregon flax twine. And 100 tons of flax fiber can be produced on 300 acres of fertile Salem district land, in a good crop year.

The state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., pays all the expenses of the institution, and makes a surplus of nearly $300,000 a year besides, in spinning binder twine from Yucatan sisal and Manila hemp from the Philippines. There is a much bigger profit in spinning flax twine. And the flax is grown here, not in a foreign country.

And good money can be made at the Oregon prison in spinning sack twine and other coarser twines, from the low grade fiber, or spinning tow.

And the spread in flax fiber manufacturing can be carried on up as high as you want to go, outside the prison walls; up to $2400 a pound for the manufactured article made into the finer linen handkerchiefs, selling at 50 cents apiece.

And still higher for the finer laces that ought to be made here and not brought from France and Switzerland and other lace centers.

Can't you see where this thing will lead to, if the industry in its primary stages is well established at the penitentiary? It will lead in keeping $30,000,000 a year in the United States for linen manufacturers; money that is now going to other countries. The necessary flax can all be grown in the Willamette valley. It can all be grown in Marion county, on acres that are now slacker acres or not used at all.
