Mrs. B. L. Steeves will entertain the DAR next Saturday and at this meeting a delegate to the state convention will be chosen. The convention this year will be held in McMinnville.

Mrs. H. Hartman will leave this week for Los Angeles where Mr. Hartman will join her and they will remain for several weeks. Mr. Hartman has been in the east for several months.

Mrs. Sam Garland of Lebanon is among those who are in Salem for the legislative sessions. Senator Garland has served before in the senate from his district and Mrs. Garland has many friends here. She is a prominent club woman in Lebanon.

The newly rebuilt organ of the First Methodist church which will be ready within two weeks will be used for the first time February 5, when the YMCA Auxiliary will sponsor a concert at the church.

Prof. T. S. Roberts will play at the concert and other local artists and organizations will contribute numbers to the program.

The Auxiliary is pledged to

AUTHOR'S WIFE WHO FAVORS 'FIFTY-FIFTY' HOMES

Mrs. Rupert Hughes, herself a poet and artist of much talent, proposes an organization to establish a basis of equal ownership of homes for wives and husbands, which she says would rid the world of most of its marital unhappiness.

from South America and Africa, Australia and New Zealand, from all the continents in Europe, and bringing up the rear would come the 275,000 members of the association in the United States.

Not only would you see girls from every race and clime, but girls representing every condition in life, from every environment and occupation. Girls from factories, stores and laundries, girls from all kinds of offices, girls from school and colleges, girls from homes of wealth, girls without homes, girls who work in their own homes and girls who work in the homes of others.

There must be magic that brings together a multitude of girls like that, representing as they do such varying conditions of life, and that magic is the belief that the Young Women's Christian association holds something for each one of them—not the same things always for every girl, but the thing that every girl needs most to help her to live her life more worthily.

It may be recreation, it may be friends, it may be education, it may be physical training, it may be spiritual ministrations, it may be such a concrete thing as a place where she can rest and refresh herself at the noon hour, or a swimming pool in which she can throw off the weariness of the day. Whatever it is she needs, the associations aim to give it to her, if it is humanly possible.

YWCA NOTES

In the interests of Thrift week, Mrs. Alice Dodd of Willamette university spoke to the women and girls in the reading room of the YWCA Thursday noon on the subject of personal budgets and personal expenses.

The Tri L club will meet in the YWCA club rooms Tuesday evening with Dr. Owens-Adair as the speaker of the evening. Dr. Owens-Adair will tell the girls about the work she is doing, and its connection with the eugenics bill now before the legislature of Oregon. All girls who are interested in this discussion are invited to be guests of the club for the evening. The meeting is to be at 8 o'clock.

The Hi-Wo-Cheer corps of Girl Reserves of Grant Junior high school met for their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. The program was as follows: "Manners and Customs of China," Mabel Parrish. "Columbia, South America," Dorothy Hutchinson. "Facts about Lake Petascoala," Virginia Billings.

The play, "The Burglar," was selected as the one which the corps will present, and the date for tryouts was set for January 23. Virginia Brickell was elected secretary. Fourteen girls attended the Spanish party and pot luck supper January 17.

The girls of the McKinley Junior high corps of Girl Reserves met at the YWCA Tuesday evening for their initiation meeting. The following girls were initiated: Doris Nelson, Gaynelle Beckette, Margaret Morehouse, Ava Bartall, Claudias West, Ruth Haverson, Erma Simmons, Dora Layman, Thelma LaBake, Zella Burns, Meta Richards, Lucille Rhoden, Beulah Bailey.

The girls of the Cherokee corps of Salem Heights made paper flowers at their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Vesper service will be held today at 4:30 at the association room. All women interested are invited.

Independence Man Draws Seven Month Sentence

DALLAS, Or., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Statesman.)—C. L. Irwin of Independence this week drew one of the longest sentences ever meted out to a violator of the prohibition laws in this county when he was sentenced to serve seven months in the county jail by Justice of the Peace Ed F. Coad on a bootlegging charge. Irwin, who has been in the toils of the law on the same kind of a charge before when he was arrested last summer in a cabin on Pease creek in the western part of Polk county where he had been manufacturing moonshine liquor, was arrested in Independence last Saturday morning. His wife was also taken in the raid and placed in a room where they might have other surroundings. Health Coon, teacher of anti-suffrage, is holding clinics in this county, teaching that legislation is superior to will in politics. Of course the most of his followers are women. They fall for the imagination stuff—

Phases of YWCA Work Told By Member of Board of Directors

By MRS. ALICE H. DODD

As we enter the annual campaign for the raising of funds for the YWCA, I think it would be well to pause for a few minutes and consider just what this Young Women's Christian association really is. I wonder what each one of you would say, were I to ask you to tell me.

To many a girl in the big city, it means a building—hardly more—a building into which she has never ventured and so she does not know what treasures there are inside for her and for all other girls. To some other girl the association means only a cafeteria, because that is the part with which she comes in most contact. Another girl thinks of the association as a boarding home, because in it she has found a safe and pleasant place to live while she is away from home.

When you mention the Young Women's Christian association to another girl, immediately she thinks of the gymnasium and the swimming pool, the places where she has found rest for her tired body and a chance to build up her physical energy and resistance she so much needs for her daily work. And the strange girl coming to town thinks first of the employment bureau because through that she found her place in the city's life. Another girl thinks of the friends she made in the association, at a time when life seemed a "weary thing" because of loneliness and homesickness. Still another girl thinks of a Bible class or a vesper service, through which she got a new understanding of her religion as a thing to fit the needs of her everyday life. Many girls see in the YWCA the Girl Reserve club through which they made their friends in their younger day, and which helped them to develop into the happiest, most useful womanhood, striving to find the best in life and to give it out to others. But each of these things, or all of these things put together do not make a Young Women's Christian association. They only are the outward manifestations of something bigger, greater, and deeper. Above everything else the association is a spiritual thing, an association of living, vital personalities. And when you see the letters YWCA, or hear the name spoken, immediately there should come to the mind a picture or hundreds and thousands of young women all over the world who are associated together, standing for the highest ideals of womanhood, for the building of Christian character, and for the maintaining of the dearest womanly standards. They are the Young Women's Christian association.

If these $15,000 young women should begin to march across a stage tonight if we could see them all, we should have to watch that stage throughout the whole night all day tomorrow, and tomorrow night, and the next day and the next night, and for the week, and they would make a line stretching from Tucson to Los Angeles. What a sight it would be, too? For we would see girls from India and Ceylon, from China and Japan,
