

CHURCH ORGAN IS BETTER EQUIPPED

Pipe Fixers from Portland Add Beauty and Charm to Local Music Maker

Two Oregon organ builders, R. and Alex Guenther of Portland, with their modest little factory in Oregon and one of their splendid organs spreading the gospel of music all over the state, are working this week installing a lot of new equipment in the organ at the First Methodist church.

The organ will be used Sunday for the regular services, but only with the old equipment. Organist "Tommy" Roberts is holding the new stuff for the big opening concert Sunday afternoon, February 4. Then he is to give just such a concert as he has dreamed for the 16 years he has played the same instrument; a concert with what is believed to be the most effective instrument in the state outside of Portland. There is one three-manual organ in Eugene, but it has not the range or power of this Salem instrument, with all this new equipment.

Five complete new stops and sets of pipes have been added in this last rebuilding. They are: Vox Humana, silvery tremolo that makes shivers run up and down the spine for its sheer beauty. The flute stop brings in the bird notes, the clear, sweet song of the lark and the singing sparrow and the nightingale. The Vox Celeste, or "heavenly voice," is that indeed; it is a light stop that contrasts splendidly with some of the newer, heavy installations. The Flugelhorn is an orchestral stop with the quality of the medium brasses, and is one of the first combinations chosen in making out the order for the new equipment.

RECOVERS FROM LA GRIPPE COUGH

"Was very bad with LaGrippe and had a severe cough. Tried Foley's Honey and Tar and it stopped my cough and I got better," writes Mrs. Mary Kisby, Spokane, Washington. Coughs resulting from LaGrippe, Influenza, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Spasmodic Croup are quickly relieved with Foley's Honey and Tar. Contains no opiates—Ingredients printed on the wrapper. Largest selling cough medicine in the World. Refuse substitutes. Insist on Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Roberts Will Like The tuba is big, round, brassy, a triumphant strain like the blare of military trumpets. For years Organist Roberts has wanted to play the magnificent march from "Aida" as it should be played; he has given it, indeed, but it lacked the horn part—like a military parade with no soldiers but with the marchers only pretty girls and not warriors at all. When the grand march comes on the opening program, February 4, the people of Salem are going to hear organ music at its very best.

The organ builders learned their trade in Portland, and they have rebuilt a number of organs in the state. Organist Roberts went down to Portland to play on and investigate some of their big church organs and he came back with the cheering news that these home boys are doing better even than the original factory work; that he'd get a better organ from them than by crossing the continent for imported workmen. He is delighted with what they are doing for the instrument on which he has played so long, and he promises the people of Salem the kind of organ music he's wanted to give them all these years.

Appropriation Made An appropriation of $1000 was made in the church budget for organ repairs this year. Organist Roberts interested a few friends outside to the extent of another $300, and they've added the more stop combinations that give him "just what the doctor ordered."

Cooperative Creamery Annual Report is Made

At the annual meeting of the Capital City Cooperative Creamery, held Friday afternoon, a report for the year was made by Manager H. M. Harpole, that is flattering indeed to the association and to its management.

The creamery did a business of more than $100,000, and paid 8 per cent on its capital stock— which is far less than this annual business, of course. Besides this interest on investment, it paid a dividend of $1279.76, and laid aside a safe sum for a working and replenishment fund. The cooperative has a membership of 143, but it has many other patrons from whom it buys cream.

The stockholders receive the market price, as do all who deliver their cream there; but the profits on the operation go only to the stock owners.

The officers are: President, R. N. Magness; vice president, C. F. Bates; secretary-treasurer, M. Tompkins; directors, W. B. Allen, A. Wolf; manager, H. M. Harpole.

The annual election of new officers was to have been held Friday but not enough of the stockholders attended for the transaction of that kind of business, so the election was deferred. The staying away was the highest kind of tribute to the old executives— what's the use of butting in when they're making that kind of money for everybody? A formal election will be held later, however, when enough stockholders can be brought together for the purpose.

VITAL STATISTICS BILL IS APPROVED

Senator Corbett's measure which would make securities that are accepted by the federal government for the protection of postal savings also acceptable to secure county funds placed in the banks passed yesterday.

Also the Corbett bill making the same provision relative to state funds was passed.
