Yesterday in the Legislature

In response to a growing demand that something be done to curb the reckless hunter, Representative Lovjoy of Multnomah has introduced a bill imposing a penalty of from 90 days to one year in the county jail, a fine of from $250 to $1000 or both for conviction on the charge of carelessly wounding an individual while hunting. The bill is modeled after the Maine law.

The University of Oregon and Oregon Agricultural college would be prohibited after July 1, 1925 from spending any money from whatever source derived for instruction in "architecture, and allied arts, business administration, journalism, law, medicine or commerce" under the provisions of a bill introduced today by Representative McMahan of Marion.

A bill aimed to require newspapers to publish answers or retractions to false statements, allegations and rumors has been introduced by Representative Hurlburt. The bill is modeled on the Ohio law, according to its author and was introduced by request. It would require that upon application of the offended party a newspaper or other periodical would be required within 48 hours to publish the offended party's version of the story in type identical to the original statement and with the same amount of display.

Representative Hurlburt has introduced a bill to prohibit the issuance of licenses to aliens to conduct pawn brokers' business, pool or billiard balls, card rooms or dance halls. The bill further provides that no alien shall be permitted to conduct a grocery store, fruit stand, meat market, apartment house, lodging house or hotel without displaying an alien license setting forth the nationality of himself and his employees. The bill specifically provides that no alien shall be licensed to conduct a soft drink establishment.

The streets would be cleared of petition circulators under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Kuehn, which would require that initiative measures must be signed by legal voters equal to at least five per cent of legal votes cast at the last general election for justice of the supreme court of the state, and that the petitions must be kept in the office of the county clerk and signed there by the voters.

License fees of corporations and individuals coming under the jurisdiction of the insurance commissioner are practically all increased under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Mott. Among some of the increases are fees to be paid by the following: certificate of authority to companies, from $5 to $15; annual license fees of fire insurance companies, $150 to $250; annual license, other insurance companies, $100 to $200; annual license non-resident life agents, $5 to $10, annual license, resident insurance agents, $2 to $5.

Another bill by Mott would provide a graduated scale of increases of taxes on corporations other than insurance companies, which begins with a license fee of $30 instead of $15 as now charged and increases to an annual license fee of $1000 instead of $300 on corporations having a capital stock of more than $2,000,000.

Fees for piloting vessels over Oregon bars would be changed from $2.50 per foot draft and 2 cents per register ton to $1 per foot draft and 2 cents per register ton. Piloting between Astoria and Portland would be cut to $1 per foot draft and 1 cent per ton registered measurement.

The tax on motor busses would be increased from $10 to $20 under a bill introduced by the committee on roads and highways, and would change the regulations for granting franchises.

An echo of the litigation over Warren paving royalties is contained in a house resolution introduced by Representative Cowgill calling upon the state highway commission to submit a list of royalties claimed and not paid and royalties that have been paid.

Congress is called upon to perfect treaties with other nations which would regulate the importation of narcotics and liquor, under the terms of a house joint memorial introduced by Representative Woodward.

A joint conference with members of the Washington legislature on the subject of an interstate bridge between Rainier and Kelso would be provided for under a concurrent resolution introduced by Representative Miles, of Columbia county. The resolution calls for the appointment of a committee of two representatives and one senator.

School districts would be prohibited from selling bonds at less than par and accrued interest under the terms of a bill introduced today by Representative Hammond. The bill further provides that such sales must be advertised at least two weeks and bids must be opened in public meeting.

The governor and treasurer would also be members of the irrigation securities commission, to sit with the attorney general, state engineer and superintendent of banks, who now constitute the board, under a bill introduced by Representative Cowgill. The authority of the board is also extended to cover the expenditures of funds or the construction work to be paid for.

Representative Woodward has introduced another school suffrage bill extending the right of suffrage to residents of a school district who have children of school age, regardless of property qualification.

All irrigation district bonds must be approved by the state irrigation securities commission and cannot be sold for less than 95 per cent of their face value if a bill introduced by Exell is passed.

Representative Blowers has introduced a bill to make the provisions of the National Prohibition act, relating to venue and jurisdiction apply to Oregon.

County courts in counties of more than 10,000 population would have the option of naming two official papers instead of being compelled to name two papers as at present, under a bill by Representative Mann. The law would still require publication of county transactions in at least one paper.

The Linn and Marion county delegations have introduced a bill

HEAVY LOSS IN MORNING FIRE

Yale Laundry Complete Loss — Other Buildings Are Damaged Yesterday

Fire, which is thought to have originated in the chemical supplies, completely destroyed the Yale laundry early Monday morning. The building, which was owned by the Eugene Bible school, was valued at $1500 and it is not known the amount of insurance carried. The property was given to the Bible school recently by Mrs. C. A. Davis of Turner.

The laundry was owned by F. A. Ackerman who, with Mrs. Ackerman, was asleep in the rear of the building. They were awakened by the barking of the dog and barely escaped. Nothing was saved from the building. The machinery was insured for $700 while $1200 worth of furniture was not insured. The fire alarm was given by the watchman at the cannery.

Garage Damaged—The Cherry City Garage, a brick building next door to the laundry, was slightly damaged. The fire trap doors and the brick were said to have been responsible for the saving of the building. It was owned by S. M. Endicott.

The Seagrove tin shop next door to the laundry was also destroyed. It was valued at $1500 and was insured for $400. Mr. Ackerman said yesterday that he would install another laundry as soon as he found a suitable site.

Strayer Big Event at Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Senator Strayer is expected to be the main event at the Kiwanis club luncheon today. Just what he is to talk about is left for his own announcement, but they expect him to tell something about Oregon, her people, her laws, her chances to live on in spite of her laws and her law-makers. He is reputed to be an eloquent speaker, and he ought to have something good to say. W. H. Parker is giving the attendance prize. The club is getting ready to move into the "big" dining room, of the armory, if the attendance keeps on increasing. The luncheon begins at 12:10, and is due to close at 1:10, at the Marion.
