BROWN PUTS BILL ACROSS

Right of Farmers to Sit on State Game Commission Gets Approval

Only Senators Farrell and Moser voted against Senator Brown's bill providing that one member of the state game commission for western Oregon and one member for eastern Oregon must be dirt farmers when the bill passed the senate yesterday. Moser opposed the bill vehemently and moved to have it referred. Eddy attacked this motion, declaring that it was an attempt to kill the bill. He asserted that the farmer never had been able to get consideration from the state game commission and that he supported the bill for that reason.

Farmers Feed Birds Brown and Taylor declared that in the winter time the farmers carry wheat through the snow to keep them alive. "We do this," he said, "so these fellows from town can come out in the spring and kill them. Some way there always has been a stigma on the game commission, so that when you talk about it you kind of want to hold your nose. If the farmers don't get what they want in this little bill it won't be long until there isn't any state game commission."

Administration Bill Passes One of the administration law enforcement measures, the Eddy bill creating a fund for use of the governor, passed the senate yesterday with only Ellis and Hare voting against it. It provides for a state prohibition commission. The bill provides that 75 per cent of the fines collected from violations of the prohibition law go to the counties for law enforcement purposes and 25 per cent to the state treasurer for use of the governor in employing special agents and for other expense of law enforcement. The bill has the emergency clause.

Cripples Benefitted The Farrell bill which would create a fund in each school district for the education of crippled children passed the senate. A bill introduced by the insurance committee of the senate providing that a standard be fixed for threads on fire hose and hydrant fittings, was passed. A bill introduced by the committee on agriculture and forestry which would prohibit any person in the employ of a grain company from serving in the grain inspection department of the state passed the senate. Tax Appeal Provided The Strager bill providing the right of appeal to the supreme court from actions of the board of tax equalization passed the senate.

The Moss bill providing that when notarial commissions are issued by the governor the certificates must be sent to the county clerks instead of to the applicants directly, passed the senate. It requires the applicant to go to the county clerk's office and sign a notaries register. A person who has killed or injured another with firearms either intentionally or not would be prohibited thereafter from carrying firearms by a bill introduced by Senator Hall which passed the senate yesterday.

Old Glory Handled by Watson in Comical Style

Much after the fashion of a George M. Cohan musical comedy, the American flag was trod on the walls of the state house yesterday and theoretically waved about the house of representatives by Rollie Watson of Tillamook, in support of a bill to appropriate $600 a year to help the Grand Army of the Republic in Oregon pay the costs of printing an annual report and roster. It developed during the session that a certain wing of the GAR department in the state objected to receiving the money and after a debate in which Representative Fletcher, Hurd, Brownell and Pierce learned several things about the bill they had not heard before, the house voted to make the appropriation. The GAR has received an appropriation of $300 annually in the past.

Oregon Students Oppose Legislative Tuition Bill

EUGENE, Or., Feb. 1.—Much hostility was expressed among the students of the university today over the bill in the state legislature which proposed to charge $100 a year tuition for all students of this state in the university and $250 for those from outside the state. This bill would not only multiply the annual tuition of resident student more than three times but would also charge non-residents with the entire expense of their instruction. It was pointed out. Self-supporting students especially voiced their disapproval of the measure.

STAPLES, MOSER IN ALTERCATION

Personalities Hurling Hot and Fast at Investigation Committee Meet

Personalities were hurled fast and hot between Senators Staples and Moser at a meeting yesterday of the committee on investigation of charges that the legislature has employed many needless clerks. Moser told Staples that the Multnomah voters would never again send Staples back to the senate and Staples declared he would see to it that Moser never comes back. Staples, Moser and Smith are members of the committee and Staples was charging that the session is overburdened with clerks and that much overtime and overpay was allowed at the 1921 session. "This four-flushing stuff of yours won't go," Moser declared angrily. "You'll see if it don't go," retorted Staples. "The state has got you judged right now. That's all right," Moser answered. "I came back and you never will come back."

"I got 700 more votes than you did," retorted Staples, "and I have muddled the waters so you'll never come back." Moser admitted that Staples may have gotten 7000 more votes than he in the primaries but not in the general election. "You straddled so much that you got votes from everywhere," accused Moser. "Oh, you are a pretty smooth article," jibed Staples. "I am not smooth," Moser returned. "but I don't four-flush."

"I want to ask you a question," Staples said. "Why don't we operate under the Kuykendall act relative to employees. It's because you want to get a following and influence at the expense of the state." Staples alleged that the committee on enrolled bills was overburdened with clerks, but Moser and Senator Ellis declared these employees were used to assist other committees while not busy on enrolled bills. Staples then alleged that the job of assistant calendar clerk had been created merely to give a job to some one and that the assistant calendar clerk doesn't do a damn thing, but the notions he makes are torn up and chucked into the waste basket. Staples also declared that one messenger to the house and printer should be enough, but Moser differed with him.

Staples charged that Senator Upton's clerk last session was credited with overtime enough to give her 68 days; that the doorkeeper received 70 days overtime and the assistant doorkeeper a large credit in overtime. The doorkeeper, he declared, was opposed to taking the money and wanted to give back $100 of it.

Chief Clerk Farr of the committee on enrolled bills, was asked by Staples if it was not a standing joke that a lot of employes on the committee were incompetent. He denied this.

NEW INDUSTRIAL CLUB IS STARTED

Marion County Will Have Sheep Club for First Time in History

An industrial sheep club, the first of its kind ever organized in Marion county, was started a short time ago with F. A. Doerfler, Mackay farmer, as club leader. At present it is composed of five members, three of whom have won a number of prizes in various state stock shows. Its name will be the Waldo Hills Shropshire Club. In addition the instructors at the Saled Heart Academy have organized two new sewing clubs, composed of 24 and 19 members respectively. Both are in charge of Sister Helena of the cross. W. H. Baillie, rural school supervisor expects that before the year progresses much further at least 50 clubs will be organized. To date there are about 14. There were about 35 clubs of an industrial nature last year. Present members of the Shropshire club are Eldon Fox, president, Henry Davenport, vice president; Chester Mulkey, secretary; Donald Doerfler and Arthur Malkey.
