Self-Insurance and Casualty Companies Extend Limited Benefits

Actual causes investigated by the state industrial accident commission show that the only big lumber company in this state which is handling its own workmen's compensation insurance and casualty insurance companies are short-cutting the injured workers and their dependents.

This statement was made Saturday by members of the commission who say they have gathered these reports for presentation to the legislative committees having under consideration house bill 223, which would destroy the present workmen's compensation system in this state. Another hearing will be given on this bill Tuesday night.

These cases arose out of in-

MANY TALK FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Five Senators Speak in Salem Churches Sunday WCTU Farm Home.

Sunday morning a number of senators interested in the WCTU farm home for dependent children of Oregon, spoke at various churches. Senator Charles Hall addressed the congregation at the First Methodist; Senator Garland, First Christian church; Senator Kinney, First Baptist church; Senator Zimmerman, First Congregational church; Senator Eddy at First Presbyterian church.

Every member of the committee of 100, appointed by the ministers of the different churches, is expected to be present at an informal luncheon to be given at the First Christian church Monday evening at 6:30 sharp. Plans are to be talked over and arrangements completed for the intensive drive to be held here on Tuesday. Now is the time for people, expressing an interest in the orphaning of the state, to volunteer their services for just one day, Tuesday, February 6, Room 228 Oregon building.

There was a hearing of unusual interest before the ways and means committee, on Monday evening, when Judge Walter Evans and Judge Jacob Kanzler who come down from Portland to speak in favor of the farm home, both men being in a position to understand the urgent need of it. Representative Gordon is losing no opportunity to interest other members of the house in the issue. Governor Pierce is honorary president of the home, and Judge Walter Evans, president.

The farm is situated three and one-half miles northeast of Corvallis. When completed, this "City of Childhood" will consist of a group of 16 cottages, each cottage sheltering a family of 20 children. The cottage plan does away with the old system of herding children, like so many sheep, under one roof, to feel the sting of being regarded as "inmates" of an institution, rather than children living in a home atmosphere. To have each cottage a real home, is the desire and intention of the members of the board of directors who feel with David Starr Jordan, who wrote "If you ever wish to go in for philanthropy, if you ever wish to be of any worth in the world, do something for little children. We can cleanse the sore, bind the wound, heal the sick, imprison the criminal, and bury the dead, but there is always a hope that we may save the child. It is through the children we may build a new future, we cannot do it otherwise."

State Education Board Holds Classes Semi-weekly

At the state school of Automotive Engineering, conducted under the supervision of the state board of vocational education, classes are to be held every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. These classes are open to anyone over 16 years of age, and the course consists of learning to operate a car properly and the making of minor or road repairs. Ladies also may attend; some Salem women are coming with their husbands, and starting in to make car operation safer, saner, by learning the real "how" of automobiling. A course in automotive electrical ignition, starting and lighting, will be given every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night.

These classes are to be mainly practical, under careful instructional supervision, and the students may bring and work on their own cars as their "lessons." Mechanics as well as owner-drivers are invited to join in and attend these courses. Under the Smith-Hughes act, and the government will pay one-half of the tuition fees. The day school has been crowded almost to suffocation this winter by earnest students, all the way from boys to men with greying hair, anxious to learn the mysteries of the gas car.

H. J. Milson and L. W. Eyerly are the instructors, at 143 South Liberty street. They have been highly commended for their teaching work; so much so, that the department has taken some parole in the courses elsewhere in state.

Oregon City River Road Now Open for Traffic

The very first stage to go through on the old Salem-Portland route since the flood, made the trip Sunday when the 8:30 and 10 o'clock runs both forsook the hill at Oregon City and drove down over the rebuilt river road through town. The high water damaged or destroyed the piling roadway just north of the city and leading past the paper mills.
