Boxes of Our Fancy Newtons
Go to Government Officials in South America.

The March number of the Skinner Packing House News, published at Dunedin, Fla., and the only journal of the kind in America, contains the following news item: Government officials in a number of South American cities were recent recipients of choice boxes of apples sent with Oregon's compliments. The President Hayes one of the steamships of the Pacific-Argentine-Brazil line, carried this honorary cargo when it sailed from the Portland dock January 20.

Never was greater care taken than in the packing of these boxes designed for South American ports. In each box there were 115 Newtons, this variety being the best obtainable at this season of the year. As in the case of a gift shipment to London, notables about a month before, the apples were sent in specially constructed boxes of similar shape to commercial apple boxes, but of selected, finished material. The boxes were fastened with screws, while on the cover of each the address was painted, obtaining the effect of burning the letters in wood. The boxes sent to South America had the addresses engraved in script in the Spanish language.

The apples were sent from the commission of public docks and the Port of Portland through the joint traffic bureau. Among those who received gifts of the fruit were the Honorable Francisco Parra Cappa, mayor of Ponce, Porto Rico; Martin Travieso, commissioner of public service of police and prisons at San Juan, Porto Rico; Dr. Alar Prata, prefect of the federal district at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Senor Ramigo Lupo, administrator of customs at Buenos Aires, Argentine; the administrator of the consular department at Montevideo, Uruguay; Senor Dr. Carlos M. Noel, municipal superintendent of the city of Buenos Aires; Col. Joquin Montenegro, prefect of the city of Santos, Brazil, and the president of the national administration at Montevideo, Uruguay. Formal letters accompanied the gifts.

The lord mayor of London, one of several English government officials who received gifts of the famous northwest apples sent about a month ago, recently acknowledged his box, which was a present from Mayor George L. Baker of Portland, and, according to reports received here, all of the apples sent with this shipment, amounting to 125,000 boxes, arrived in perfect condition. Exportation of large quantities of apples from Portland to the British Isles is not new, but this season's movement will eclipse any preceding.

The traffic department of the commission of public docks and the port of Portland, who made all arrangements for the shipping of the gift boxes of apples, both to the British Isles and to South America, has recently added to their staff two new members. One is to be stationed in the Orient and the other in New York. It will be the duty of these men, among other things, to call on shipping firms, exporting and importing products.
