gasp of dismay. I had completely Fair Buying Support, Howforgotten my little maid and her tantrum, and I wondered it we should find either Katie or Jim on the premises when we reached there. That Dick must be acquainted forthwith with this new development was certain. 1 didn't wish him to get the idea that I was keeping this new development from him also.

"What's the matter? Just r member that you left Katle locked in the coal cellar?" drawled Dicky.

"Worse than that," I retorted. 'Stop right here till I tell you." I rapidly sketched the incidents leading up to Katie's outburst and her flight to her room, ending with a despairing little wail.

"They Won't Leave."

"And I don't know what in the world I shall do if Katie and Jim leave just now with all this work on hand."

"They won't leave," Dicky declared confidently, "Katie might be nut enough to try it, but Jim has a lot of sense, too much to be pulled around by a petticoat. He knows what a good thing he has with us, crippled as he is, and he'll never let Katie upset the apple cart. Nay, nay; dear heart. Pluck up your courage."

ever, Stems Tide of Violent Restriction.

NEW YORK, March 22 .- Spi ative apprehension over the posibility of an early increase in the federal reserve re-discount rate brought a large volume of seiting orders for both accounts into tolay's stock market, but fair buy ing support was forthcoming and the reactions in most of the popu-lar industrial issues were held to fractions. Operations on the short side of the market were also encouraged by the weakened technical position of a number of stocks resulting from the rapidity of their recent advances. Stiffening of the time m rate to a virtual 5% per cent basis for all maturities and the marking up of the call money rate to 6 per cent after a renewal rate of 5, called attention to the inreasing stringency of the money situation which was also reflected n the further depreciation of bond VR Hes.

Independent strength was shown by several issues in the oil, rubher, sugar and motor accessory groups.

there we found Jim and Katte waiting for us, each with a small grip packed, Katie's swollen, tear-stained face was filled with mood, and succeeded somewhat resentful sullenness, while her until we came to the side door, for husband's, though free from anger, was still eloquent with dignified disapproval.

"We're going, Mrs. Graham." Jim addressed himself to me, "Katie, here, is all excited like, and I'm going to take her down to my folks until we can find a place. She won't be back, but I'll come back tomorrow, if you like, and help you through with the packing and moving. I'm sorry to leave like this, but I don't think we deserved having our home broken up in this way without ever telling us. We expected to stay with you as long as-"

"Why, Jim!" I interrupted. You must understand. I never meant-"

Dicky interrupted me with a little air of authority which I had seen him display to me but ence or twice before.

"Please let me attend to this.
