Luxor Aroused by Scientists After Slumber of Three Thousand Years.

VALLEY OF THE KINGS, LUXOR, Egypt, March 22.—(By The Associated Press) — Luxor, like King Tutankhamun has been roused from its repose of 3,000 years and is taking on something of the habits and characteristics of a twentieth century town. For ages a conventional stopping place for Nile excursion steamers and tourists, it has lately become a center for people of all classes, including students, college professors, antiquarians, doctors, undertakers, dressmakers and souvenir hunters. The newly-found tomb of Tutankhamun is the magnet that draws them all. Tourists are attracted here out of curiosity, but professional men and women, undertakers, embalmers, dressmakers, and milliners, come in the hope of getting new ideas for their business from the mummy chamber of the ancient king.

Science Amazed To modern undertakers the skill of the ancient Egyptians in preserving their dead against the ravages of age is a source of amazement and mystery and many of them have applied to Howard Carter, discoverer of Tutankhamun, for the privilege of examining the Pharaoh's body when it is dressed of its garb of gold and its bituminized bandages.

Embalming in ancient times was a much more elaborate and expensive process than it is today. It required three months for its completion, and cost $1,500. It was a luxury that could be afforded only by the rich. The ancients believed that mummification in this life was the only sure means of their resurrection in the next. Pathetic efforts were made by the poor to secure eternal life for their dead. American archaeologists in Luxor have lately found skeletons of humble peasants placed near the graves of the royal dead. Their relatives, it appears, too poor to pay for embalming, placed the bodies near the graves of the nobles in the hope that their poor frames would partake of the sacredness of the nobility and thus rise with them in the next life.

Prayers Accompany Ceremony

The first step in embalming a body in Pharaonic days was to place it in a powerful saline solution for three months. The intestines were then removed by means of a sharpened-edged stone, the brain, heart and liver were taken out and the body impregnated with myrrh, acacia, bitumen and aromatic oils. It was then wrapped in hundreds of yards of linen soaked in preservative. The anointing of the mummy was accompanied by prayers and incantations to the gods, led by the high priests. Herbert E. Winlop, director of excavation at Thebes for the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, showed the correspondent a 4,200-year-old Egyptian princess that he unearthed last week in the valley of the Queens. Allowing for natural emaciation and shrinkage, the body is amazingly well preserved. The teeth and hair are intact. The neck, wrists and ankles bear a series of slight indentures, indicating, according to Mr. Winlop, that her ancient highness wore a necklace, bracelets and anklets which undoubtedly had been stripped from her by tomb-robbers soon after her interment.

Tattoo Figures Plain

The royal mummy, Mr. Winlop said, was that of a woman of 22 or 23, who undoubtedly had been a favorite in the court of one of the Amenhotep kings. Her bosom and arms were delicately tattooed with heraldic figures indicating her noble lineage. Over the lower part of the abdomen was a long sacred brand which the American expert said probably had been inflicted with a red-hot iron by the doctors of that time as a counter-irritant to relieve the pain due to an organic malady from which the princess suffered.

VALUES DEBATED AT REALTY MEET

Interesting Opinions Are Advanced at Weekly Session Here Yesterday.

"What is a Fair Valuation for Real Estate," was the substance of the animated discussion at the weekly luncheon of the Realtors Thursday noon. They haven't finished the vote as to what land is really worth, but a number of speakers were heard and some interesting angles were presented.

A. C. Bohmstedt presented the case from the point of view of the joint stock land banks that loan money on real estate. The general practice has been to consider the 1913 land values as a fair basis. It is argued, however, that with the vast growth of orcharding, and the building of so many hard surface roads, values on some lands have been greatly increased. Some loaning companies have limited all improvements, such as orchards, to $150 an acre in addition to the base value of the land, and on this they would not loan more than one-half the appraised valuation—even though bearing orchards may be commercially valued at four-figure prices.

John A. Scott recalled the days when some of the lands around Corvallis, where he lived as a boy, were sold by the old-time sure thing pioneers as high as $40 an acre, and they chuckled as they passed the title to the tenderfoot suckers from the east whom they said would be sure to lose their lands—they couldn't raise enough crops to pay interest on that purchase price. The lands have gone up to five times that price, and some pay interest on that added valuation. He believes that there is no other place in America where loan values can run as high as here, because of the variety of crops. He believes that loans may and should be made on a basis higher than that of one or two years' income.

"Long time loans are needed," he said. "If the loan companies want to cut down the loan time to 20 years instead of 33 years, it isn't enough. But orchards are precarious, and not everybody knows how to make an orchard pay. A long-time loan on an orchard makes it a gamble on personalities. Even that, however, fruit warrants a larger loan than the year's income."

Don't worry—there is potash enough in the dunes of New Jersey to last 1000 years.

SNELLING SLATED TO HEAD ROTARY

Officers Nominated Wednesday—Butler Chosen for Secretaryship.

With six offices to fill for the coming year, Rotary club Wednesday nominated only six candidates. The election is set for April 25.

The nominees are: R. O. Snelling for president; Isaac L. Patterson for vice president; Eric Butler for secretary; William Walton for treasurer; and George Hug and George Arbuckle for trustees.

The two really busy executive officers for the club are the presidency and the secretaryship. John H. McNary has been one of the most gracious chairmen that ever wielded a gavel, and Secretary Snelling has been one of the busiest scribes. He can let up on the pressure as president, and have a little time to enjoy the club as the others do. The club has grown steadily, and a number of new names have recently been added. The club is now engaged in a deadly attendance battle with the Kiwanis, for the annual dinner. The contest lasts for 10 weeks and has already run for three weeks. The Rotarians are slightly in the lead or were up to yesterday. No report has yet been made of the last week. Attendance at Rotary or Kiwanis clubs in other cities counts as well as with the home club.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 21.—The condition of Bishop D. S. Tuttle who was reported growing weaker this afternoon, tonight was announced as unchanged by attending physicians. The physicians declared that all hope for the aged prelate's recovery had vanished, owing to the churchman being stricken with several heart attacks.

WILLAMETTE DEBATERS LOSE TO LAWRENCE COLLEGE TEAM

Willamette debaters met a little more than their match at Appleton, Wis., Wednesday night when they lost a 2 to 1 verdict to the debaters from Lawrence college. The Appleton team presented the counter argument that the proper thing would be an economic conference, instead of the United States formally obligating itself to the league of nations. It isn't certain that the La Follette influences in Wisconsin had a hand in the decision, though a special wire from the team Thursday says "no alibi." The speakers were Wava Southworth, Robert Notson and Robert Littler.
