ARMY RETURNS ARE NOT LARGE

Salvationists Leave Pledge Cards as Encouragement to Their Friends

From reports received at Campaign headquarters of the Salvation army, the returns are a little disappointing, the total amount raised to date including cash and pledges is in the neighborhood of $850, which is a long way short of the $5000 asked for, but it is the hope of the local officers, that the good friends of the army will rally to their support in this, their hour of need, for as has already been expressed, it is the desire of the army officials to secure enough money by these annual appeals to carry on the work during the ensuing year without resorting to the old style financial methods. There have been many pledge cards left out at various places and it is hoped that these will be returned to the Salvation army campaign headquarters, 303 Masonic building, before the close of the campaign, Saturday evening. For, it can be readily understood that the Salvation army can only function to the extent that it is financed. In the event there should be any one who has not yet been called upon by a solicitor, who is desirous of helping the local work, if they will kindly telephone 1820, or 1307, they will be waited upon immediately.

At the same moment the brother in Oregon was pottering around at the early spring work with his coat off, and Mrs. Thompson was cleaning up the front yard.
