Mayor Pays T

have been requested, as Mayor of Salem, to say a few words presents itself to extol the virtues of our city, I have to those who might accuse me of deliberately being so, life in Salem and during that time the word "Salem" to be home to me in every sense of the word.

The pioneers who laid the foundation, so to speak, Our wide streets and spacious public squares, located on occasion to visit us. Surrounded by a rich agricultural permanent and highly productive industries, Salem possesses her continued growth and prosperity. Through her is promoted and a wholesome influence is exerted through

Our people are prosperous and contented. We are fortunate in the cities of our nation and which are brought about on account of the family, the members of which are contributing their share toward man liveth unto himself!" Our lives and fortunes are inseparably and Salem is in our hands. We must be held responsible for her failure in the upbuilding of our city? Are we trying each of us to unselfishly just pride to the various business, civic and social organizations which that space would permit the individual mention of each one of these influences which they are exerting throughout our community. Let us our city. Whether it be along the line of the promotion of some useful public institutions, the encouragement of higher moral standards of living day's work unless he has contributed from his heart and mind toward

Let us in our development make Salem a symmetrical city. Salem everyone who comes here is immediately made to feel at home, and we are to properly support and improve our homes. Nor is it enough short of what is necessary to make an ideal city. With this material progress, for these are essential elements in the development of a city

I have endeavored, thus briefly, to express to you some thoughts of our city.

Let this be our goal, fellow citizens, and may we one and all work
