If you buy groceries from a store which pays big rent you must pay a high price to that merchant for your merchandise.

High rent is one of the chief factors in the present high cost of living. The public bears the burden imposed by the landlord on the merchant.

EDITORIALS OF THE PEOPLE

Religion in Schools

The Ministerial association of Salem proposes the teaching of religion in the public schools of the city. Now, what is the matter with these pastors and evangelists ministering to the 25 churches located here?

Is this the cry of inefficiency? But whose notions of religion should be taught? As between hard-boiled Calvinism and the liberalism of Unitarianism there is a wide and deep gulf.

It may be said it is not proposed to teach dogmatic theology in the schools. Perhaps not.

The Ministerial association is hopelessly divided on points of doctrine. I suppose Bros. Evans and Milliken could cross swords with Bro. Long and Bro. Kantner and Bro. Kirkpatrick on the doctrine of baptism?

Is it the practical things of Christianity that is proposed? Then, baptism not being practical, why not expunge it from the "confession?" Is it the 10 commandments that should be taught? There are the Seventh Day Baptists and the 240 Seventh Day Adventists in church membership here in Salem.

In these commandments is the great Sabbath law. Will Saturday or Sunday be the Sabbath of the schools?

Would Elder Erastus of the Adventists agree to have Sunday obligation taught in the schools? He is a Salem minister, though I believe not a member of the association.

When the preachers of the association agree among themselves about religion, then, and not till then, can they talk about what to teach in the schools.

Our secular schools are not the places in which to teach religion, but the temporal things of life only. — N. J. B. West Salem.

HAD AN ENGAGEMENT

A man with all the earmarks of a laborer was smoking thoughtfully and watching a large building in process of construction. Being short-handed, a foreman approached and asked: "Hey, you want a job?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but I can only work in the mornings."

"Aw, shucks! Why can't you work all day?"

"Well," the man explained, "every afternoon I got to carry a banner in the unemployment parade." — American Legion Weekly.

Waiting patiently for his delayed breakfast, a man called up stairs to his wife to hurry down, as he had to get to business early. Receiving no answer, he rushed upstairs and found that his wife had fallen in a faint. Without further ado he went to the head of the stairs and called down to the cook: "Rachel, only boll von egg this mornin'."
