LOGANBERRY ADVERTISING AGAIN

Time is passing. Loganberry harvest is not far away. If the proposition being put forward to advertise loganberries—

To advertise to help the 1923 prices, is to be put over, there must be quick work; team work; hard, persistent work. The growers who are organized, most of them, are ready to contribute, say a tenth of a cent a pound. But a large percentage of the loganberry growers are not organized.

Spasmodic advertising would do some good; but this is not enough. There should be persistent advertising, over a term of years. There should be a program, carried on till the industry is stabilized.

A start has been made, in planning an advertising campaign; in getting pledges to pay the expense. But this is not enough. The loganberry industry is deserving of life; of full life; of prosperity. But this is a time of the forking of the roads—

Organization and advertising leading to stability; failure of organization and advertising, and a thorough going and persistent program, leading to more or less stagnation; some plowing up of the yards; a lagging of what should be one of the great and growing industries of Oregon.

Secretary Hughes makes very plain the duty of the United States to join the world court. There can be no valid argument urged against it. Even the "bitter-enders" opposed to any sort of adherence to the League of Nations or participation in its affairs can have no valid objections, for the world court, though initiated through the League of Nations, is a separate entity, requiring the adoption of its protocol by each country in becoming a member, whether it is already a member of the League of Nations or not. There seems little doubt of the United States joining the world court; and the number of people in this country who believe the United States should join the League of Nations, too, with or without reservations, is apparently growing; and the writer believes a majority of all the people of the United States already adhere to this belief.

Each people makes its own life; but God makes history.

The Russians have just burned God in office, but they have very magnanimously consented to live off of Christian charity.

EDITORIAL—GAL TWO
 The Republican National Committee has wiped out its debt of $500,000 accumulated during the campaign of 1920. And Cordell Hull of the Democratic committee is awfully jealous.

The northern and southern Methodists are going to reunite again. Ever so often rumors to that effect are current. But why shouldn't they? The old question of slavery that caused them to separate is deadlier than Tut-Ankh-Amen.

The current weekly financial letter of Henry Clews & Co., Wall street authorities, continues optimistic, both as to foreign and domestic business. Following is an excerpt: "Reports of business conditions during the week have amply tended to sustain the belief in the activity of production during the coming months. The principal difficulty in sight is found in lack of labor and in relatively low productivity of existing labor, a situation which tends to vitiate to some extent the satisfactory state of affairs in a good many lines of business. In spite of this fact, the country is now turning out more goods than for a great while past, the total outlook being undoubtedly ahead of that of 1920, when production was at a peak point in nearly all lines."

"THE COMING WORLD POWER"

"Ten years ago the average citizen would have rejected as preposterous the story that one California company alone had spent to develop water power in the Sierra Nevada mountains a sum of money exceeding by $15,000,000 the total cost of digging the Panama canal. It is true today. "Ten years ago the average electrical worker would have smiled politely on hearing of a project to transmit 100,000 horsepower a distance of 240 miles over a line operated at 200,000 volts. "Ten years ago people looked upon coal, oil and gas as the three main sources of power and heat at the service of mankind. In a generation, if present signs count for anything, electricity will have transplanted coal and oil in the factory and the home almost as completely as the motor has the horse.

"The coming of world power will not be the United States, Great Britain, Japan, a League of Nations—IT WILL BE HYDRO-ELECTRIC ENERGY. It will run more things in the future than any empire ever ran in the past."
 —Los Angeles Times.

If the coming world power is to be hydroelectric energy, the Pacific northwest will be the center of world power—

For the Columbia river basin has a third of all the hydroelectric power in the United States, and Oregon has a fifth of the standing timber in the United States—the two essentials of the manufacturing of the future time predicted by the Los Angeles newspaper.

The Salem district has over 150,000 of this horsepower, the development of which will make Salem a city of 100,000 people, and see this city only fairly launched on its great and substantial and progressive future.

FLAUBERT'S INDISCRETION

Men or women who may possibly become famous in literature require to strike as high a note in their private affairs as in their public work. Today the fierce light that once beat upon a throne now beats upon the popular favorite. Flaubert's literary reputation is likely to suffer because of a pornographic critique he once wrote in a rash moment, but never published and probably never intended should be published. Today a publishing house is seeking to commercialize this posthumous epistle which is to be sold at auction. The literary societies of Paris are bidding for the manuscript that in the interest of men of letters they may destroy it. The good taste of the civilized world has already concluded that in "Madame Bauvray" Flaubert went as far as the laws of decency allow.

THE BIG CHURCH

Chicago is said to have the biggest church in the country. It has over 10,000 members and is of the Baptist faith. The odd thing about it is that it is a negro church. One might expect to find the greatest colored congregation in Alabama or Georgia, but here it is in a northern city all dressed up and running fine.

SWORDS AND PLOWS

The world will not start to beat its swords into plowshares till the demand for plows exceeds the demand for swords. That time will arrive when the nations agree to settle international disputes through some sort of an international court of justice.

OBSELETE HYMN

The old hymn, "Work for the night is coming," used to be very popular, but it no longer jibes with the economic tendencies and personal inclinations of a clock-watching civilization.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

dress by Dr. Elizabeth Lewis, a returned missionary from India.

Sessions will be held on Tuesday at 9:45, 1:30 and 8, with a banquet for all the visiting members at 6 o'clock. A public pageant is to be presented by the Salem young people Tuesday night. There will be services again on Wednesday at 9:45 and 1:30, and the adjournment at 3.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cooke Patton, Miss Luella Patton and Miss Molly Schwabauer, who are driving through California, are spending this week end in Sacramento. According to Mr. Patton the highway is in excellent condition and that, combined with the good weather, is making the trip a great success.

in Internal Medicine for the past twelve years

DOES NOT OPERATE

Will be at Marion Hotel, Monday, May 7th.
 Office Hours: 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

ONE DAY ONLY

No Charge for Consultation.

Dr. Mellenthin is a regular graduate in medicine and surgery and is licensed by the state of Oregon.

He visits professionally the more important towns and cities and offers to all who call on this trip free consultation, except the expense of treatment when desired.

According to his method of treatment he does not operate for chronic appendicitis, gall stones, ulcers of stomach, tonsils or adenoids.

He has to his credit wonderful results in diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels, blood, skin, nerves, heart, kidney, bladder, bed wetting, catarrh, weak lungs, rheumatism; sciatica, leg ulcers and rectal ailments.

If you have been ailing for any length of time and do not get any better, do not fail to call, as improper measures rather than disease are very often the cause of your long standing trouble.

Remember above date, that consultation on this trip will be free and that his treatment is different.

Married women must be accompanied by their husbands.

Address: 336 Boston Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

ois, president of the organization presiding. The first session was given over to the introduction of new officers, and the organization of the convention. Short talks were given by Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. E. J. Mapes and Mrs. G. H. Alden. Mrs. F. W. Seles, president of the Old People's Home board gave an interesting account of the building of the new home for old people, an Center street, Salem.

Following this address the delegates were taken in automobiles to the Old People's home where after meeting the old people who are the guests of the home, and inspecting the fine new building, they were entertained at tea by the members of th home board. Every one was delighted with the beauty and home-like atmosphere of the institution, which is modern and convenient in every respect, from the electric appliances in the kitchen and the inclined planes instead of stairways to the comfortable and cheery rooms, one of which each guest calls home. Each delegate went away ready to do her share in raising the $15000 deficit required to dedicate the new building free of debt by June 1.

At six o'clock a banquet was served in the church parlors to the members of the convention by the New Park circle of the First church.

The public was invited to the evening session at which excellent music was furnished by Prof Hobson and choir and Prof. Roberts at the organ. Addresses were given by Miss Olla Grace Davis, of Portland Settlement center, who gave an inspiring report of the National convention of the WHMS and also a review of the work of the settlement center at Portland; and by Dr. I. B. Wood of Corvallis who spoke of the problem of the "foreign element in our country and its solution.

On Wednesday morning the time was devoted largely to round table discussion of the various problems of the society. Mrs. Carl G. Doney presented the subject of evangelism, and Mrs. G. H. Alden gave an interesting account of the woman's work among the Japanese children in Portland. Reports for the year were read by the district secretary and treasurer.

In the closing session of the afternoon, Mrs. C. A. Littler spoke on the use of Missionary literature by the societies, and Mrs. E. J. Swafford presented the subject of Christian stewardship. A short address was also given by Dr. E. E. Gilbert, district superintendent. The work of the young peoples societies was presented by Miss Daniels and Miss Mary Findley.

Much appreciated vocal solos were given during the convention by Miss Sadie Pratt, Miss F. Thoraldson and Mrs. Fred Fargo.

The devotional services at the various sessions were led by Mrs. Etta Loomis, Rev. B. E. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. E. J. Mapes, and Mrs. Carl Doney

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. A. R. Nichols, Corvallis; v'ce president, Mrs. Hockens Smith, Albany; second vice president, Mrs. F. Thoraldson, Corvallis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. L. Blackerby, Salem; recording secretary, Mrs. M. W. Patton Salem; treasurer, Mrs. Kate Burleson, McMinnville.

For Boys and Girls

"It just seems like Ben has a hobby," complained Mrs. Lucas as she packed her trunk. "Last year, you remember, it was stamps. Now it's photography. I can't persuade him to leave off the junk at home. I just know all our clothes will be ruined with these chemicals." "You leave him to me," Ben's father said. "I'll see that he doesn't cart along a whole drug store. You're too lenient with that boy."

However, Ben was allowed to take his kotak on the vacation. The Lucases had a cabin up in the mountains where they spent the greater part of the summer. This year they were leaving early, as Ben had been unable to finish school because of an attack of scarlet fever. When they arrived at the cabin they were surprised to find a very queer half-breed living up there.

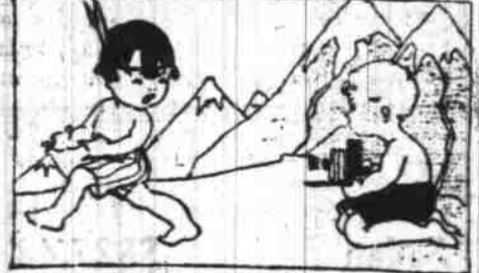

"He acts funny," declared Dr. Lucas. "I don't believe he's all there."

"No, I don't think so either," agreed Ben. "He wouldn't let me take his picture but—"

"Good land!" sputtered his father. "Do you take a picture of every single thing you see? Look here, Ben, this thing's got to stop. I can't afford to buy you a dozen films every week. You're breaking me up. Maybe that half-breed did have some sense after all. I'm glad you didn't get his picture."

Ben looked embarrassed, but did not reply. That night the half-breed disappeared. The very next morning a young detective came up the mountain. "He sounds like the man we're after," he declared. "But if we could be sure it would mean a lot to us. Now if you only had a picture."

Dr. Lucas looked at his son guiltily, but Ben did not notice. "I have," he declared. "He wouldn't let me take one, but I did anyway when he wasn't looking."

Ben's father sat down suddenly on a log. "That boy does beat everything."

"That's the man," declared the detective, looking at the picture. "This will probably save us hundreds of dollars in tracing him, too. And I'll see that you're paid for it, all right. Say, you don't say you took that when he wasn't lookin'? It's some picture."

"Yes," agreed Ben's father. "Ben is quite a photographer. We always believe in encouraging him in his hobbies."
