Thermometer Drops—

A slight frost Wednesday morning gave some of the fruit growers a scare. The thermometer did not register down to the freezing point; it was mere incipient frost, a sign of what might have been but wasn't quite. It is believed that no damage was done, though it was close enough to damage to make many a grower wonder where he could get a job for the summer, in case the big freeze really should happen.

Berry Blight Reported—

Much damage is reported to loganberry yards in the Willamette valley by a strange blight that has attacked the vineyards, and some of the growers say their yards unless some way of eradicating the blight is found. Senator Sam Brown, who has a yard of 85 acres on the Pacific highway near Gervais, says he may have to plow up about 30 acres. Bruce Cunningham, another big grower, says his yard is hard hit.

Bicycles Stolen—

Apparently the good weather proved too strong a temptation to bicycle thieves yesterday. A total of three thefts were reported to the police within the short space of three or four hours. Josephine Beaty of the Klinger Hotel, Robert Barnes of 323 North Fourteenth and Richard Devers of 590 North Summer all reported the theft of their bicycles.

Organized Yeomen—

Will E. Purdy of Salem claims the distinction of having organized the Yeomen lodges in Salem, Portland and Amity over 20 years ago and of having been the first foreman of the order to be elected in Oregon. He was at that time an organizer for the lodge and had charge of the work in the northwest. The night he organized the Amity lodge he received a message from Portland of the birth of his first son. He declares that all the work he did for the Yeomen has been permanent and that he has great faith in the order. For the reason that he was misinformed as to the date of arrival in Salem of the committee viewing sites for the national home he did not attend the dinner Tuesday night and did not see the visitors until they were ready to leave for Eugene yesterday.

The speaker for the commencement program has not been decided upon as yet, Professor Nelson says.

Flowers Photographed—

Some wonderful photos of the Oregon Bulb company farm, or "The Tulip Farm," as it is generally known, were secured a few days ago by J. O. Brown of the Salem Studios. It is usually almost impossible to photograph flowers at anything approximating their true color values. The reds are black, and the blues are white, and the parti-colors are about whatever they happen to be, and nobody is quite sure whether they're flowers or weeds. By the use of special ray filters, and a special new plate, Mr. Brown has secured photos that, while not reproducing in colors, the photos are still the black-and-white of commerce, but are shaded to indicate color values—make the flower garden stand out in startling vividness. Mr. Brown is having some of these especially fine photos copyrighted, as protection against the pirating that is so common for fine photographic work. He is also enlarging some of these fine photos, and hand-coloring them into real works of art.

Marriage licenses were granted to C. W. Davis and Bab H. Griffin of Salem and Dan D. Miller of Salem and Ruby Brown of Brooks in the county clerk's office yesterday.

Judgment Allowed—

A judgment for $1,500 and interest at 8 per cent was granted the Marion Auto company against Othmar Gelsdorf by Circuit Judge Percy R. Kelly yesterday. The judgment was given after the defendant had defaulted by failing to appear at the scheduled time. In addition attorney fees of $200 were allowed.

Boys Will Entertain—

Following their successful concert last Saturday night, the Whitney Boys' chorus is continuing its career of astonishing and delighting the people of their home town by the excellent quality of its music. The chorus met Wednesday night in regular practice at the Y, as if another big program was still resting on its shoulders that had to be fanning out. Next Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, the boys are to have a dinner at the First Christian church and at 7:30 they are to give a free concert upstairs in the church, with a wholesale invitation to the whole city to attend and enjoy the program. How much longer they will hold together for the summer, will be determined later, but just now they're going as strong as ever.

cannot hope ever to become strong and well again unless they have plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated iron—helps make. Nuxated iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach; it is an entirely different thing from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revitalize worn-out, exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are using it. At all druggists, beware of substitutes. The genuine has N. L. stamped on every tablet. Always insist on having the genuine.

a good deal of trouble in getting enough slab stuff from the other big mills to keep the plant running; now they propose to get out their own logs, and buy outside slabs only as an auxiliary. The material is first cut into planks of the desired thickness, and then slitted down to squares. These are cut off to the proper length, and then run through the lathes. Each machine will handle about 6000 a day. From the first machine, they go to the chucking and boring machine, that rounds off the end of the handle and bore a hole for the base and wire anchorage. They then go out to the steam dryer, to cure in steam heat for three or four days. Then they come back into the factory, where they are polished in the power sander and then they are ready to pack. Broom handles have been shipped to Scotland, to Atlanta, Ga., to Philadelphia, to Canada, and to a great number of carload markets. The demand is greater than the supply.

All the cull handles are passed on to the adding-machine roll lathe, or the bucket-ball cutter, or the pall-bale machine; the last inch of material is used. The small pieces are run through a "tumbler," a rotating cylinder that shakes them and partly polishes them. This can be made more effective by using a little paraffine, and the application of enough steam to make it dissolve. The larger paper plugs are cut directly from the square sticks, and not previously lathe-cut. They are shipped in bags, by count. Alder makes the ideal plugs, the wood being light, but strong and smooth, without troublesome grain.

So efficiently has the business been handled, that a new friend has guaranteed all the money the company needs, for the purchase of material for seasoning before cutting up. This opens up a vast field of industry, by giving the capital necessary for running through the slack season when material has been hard or impossible to get.

The plant has been reorganized along better production lines, so that the handling is reduced to a minimum. A steam engine was recently installed for power, and blower system put in to take the lathe ships and sawdust to the boilers. The waste now feeds the boilers, giving them their power for nothing, saving about $200 a month over the older electric drive, and disposing of the waste that had been a nuisance instead of an asset. Three new machines have been set up recently, and others are being built ready for installation. The irregular model lathe is to be set up at once, for making handles and other hardwood products, and the company promises to soon break into the big production class.

Kidney Trouble Becomes Serious

"Suffered with severe headache, backache and pains in my legs and under my shoulder blades. My kidneys and bladder were in bad condition. I was weak and nervous and felt tired and worn out. Walking made me short of breath. Every morning my face and hands were bloated. Medicines failed to help my condition and doctors advised an operation," writes Maggie Nelson, Mossdale, Fla. "Fortunately I read about Foley Kidney Pills, tried them and got relief." Sold everywhere.—Adv.

CANNERY WORK IS PROCEEDING FAST

Concrete Mixer Devours 250 Cubic Yards of Gravel in One Day

Concrete has been poured at a perfectly furious rate at the Northwest Cannery plant on South Liberty street this week. On Monday the concrete mixer devoured 250 cubic yards of gravel, besides the sand and the cement. On Tuesday it handled as much, in finishing up the main floor. This floor is a work of engineering art. It is tremendously reinforced with interlacing steel, is nine inches thick, and there isn't anything finer in the way of a floor on the coast.

The main pillars that support the floor were poured a day or two earlier; they would be well enough "set" to remove the forms this week, except for the heavy weight that they carry. They leave a great basement floor that is to be used for storage, both of fruit, such as pears that are ripening, and of canned goods ready for labeling and shipment.

An immense quantity of steel is being used in the building, to make it trouble-proof under any conditions of use or age that may arise.
