That the Indians of North America came originally as a race from China was the substance of a talk given here Friday night by Prof. E. T. Hodge of the University of Oregon. Professor Hodge has made a study of the prehis toric times in the northwest and gave an interesting discussion of interest especially to the people of the valley.

He showed pictures of the Chinese and the Indians and explained his theory that the natives crossed the narrow waters to Alaska and then later came down southward to the Columbia river from where they went east ward. He said that his belief was that the southern Indians came originally from the east and

Professor Hodge said that lore of hie Sloux Indian believed that the Indian was as a race tall, scription did not apply to most of
