every law of industry and just reward for toil, is having its awful fruition in the death of 30,000,000 people in Russia since the war, though they are in a land of natural bounty where all should live in smiling comfort.
Suicide Kills Nations
"There is no reason why a nation should die," he said. "Most nations have died only by suicide." He pictured in graphic way the growth of slavery in the United States, and its providential overthrow before the great final test of civilization in the world war. If the Rebellion had succeeded and one-half of the present United States had stood for the slave spirit, which was Germany's, and the other half had stood for the allies, so that each neutralized the other, it would have been a triumph for slavery and oppression, he declared, for only a united America had the soul and the heart and the brawn to stem the lethal tide.
"The good and great and glorious men and women who have preceded us in the fields of action have died in hope. What a race it would be to dare disappoint that hope! The world has been impoverished in things exceedingly more valuable than the material wealth destroyed. A profound emphasis has been placed upon the fact that the happiness of humanity, the progress of the world and the preservation of liberty depends upon the destruction of slavery of all kinds—involuntary servitude of body, mind or spirit; and that no nation, class or individual is entitled to profit by the toll or service of others without rendering therefor an adequate return."
Earning Is Necessary
"Young people would be astounded if some qualified economist were to tell you what the material cost to society has been to bring you to your present status; and above all that, is your incalculable indebtedness to your parents' love, to the public school system, to this great university, to society, to civilization, to your country, and to Christianity. The world owes you nothing but what it owes to every one—that is, social justice. It does not owe you place or living; these you must earn."
"You are permanently obligated as stewards holding in trust all the civilization that society has been able to attain, the institutions that the ages have developed, a liberty and form of government that has made our government great and good and has opened the gates of mercy to mankind, a Christianity that is the gift of God and the hope of the world. In the discharge of this trust you will find your highest joy, complete satisfaction to your hearts, the widest employment of your mental faculties and there will be developed in you a life that is deserving of immortality."
Summer School to Open
Congressman Hawley has made many fine addresses in Oregon, but perhaps never a more wholesome message than at this 75th anniversary of the founding of Willamette university.
The university is now practically deserted by students, though on Monday of next week the summer school opens. Most of the departments of university work will be represented.

RECOVERED FROM STOMACH TROUBLE
"Had stomach trouble three years and finally was in bed eight weeks with terrible cramps," writes A. L. Lyons, Dayton, Ohio. "The doctor did not help, and I could hold nothing on my stomach. Tried Foley's Cathartic Tablets and now am a well man. Can eat anything." Sour stomach, headache, bad breath, biliousness and other digestive disorders quickly overcome with Foley Cathartic Tablets. Airplane Scouting Said Great Aid to Fishermen
SPOKANE, June 13.—Airplane scouting for fish as a commercial enterprise will be tried tomorrow on Moses Lake, south of Ephrata. I. N. McGrath of Ephrata, a fishing industry on Moses lake. "We have arranged for an airplane from Wenatchee which will reach Moses lake tonight and if the weather is favorable, we will experiment with the plane on Thursday," McGrath said. "The idea is to scout from the plane and spot schools of carp. Upon location of the school, the position will be noted and a boat sent to take the fish."

There are very few hooks on the new summer dresses, thus removing one of the usual signs for divorce. So many men absolutely refuse to hook up their wives' frocks.

Almost a million feet of film were "shot" to make possible "Miracles of the Jungle," the wonder animal production, the first chapter of which will be shown at the Bligh theater today. Because of the wild animals used, many of the scenes had to be taken over two and three times, in order to get the right action.

William "Bill" Fairbanks, starring in "Hell's Border," is an expert with the rope. Everything was ready to shoot the scene where John Dalmer (Wm. Fairbanks) dashes to the edge of the cliff and lassos the Mexican as he passes below. The Mexican, played by Edward Serra, came dashing along the bottom of the cliff. Director Norfleet called to Mr. Fairbanks to come on. Just as the Mexican passed below Mr. Fairbanks dashed to the edge of the cliff swinging his rope. True to the mark it circled the Mexican's body, but also caught the horse's head at the same time. The horse jumped and Mr. Fairbanks lost his foothold as the rope slipped from his hand, and he only saved himself from a nasty fall by grabbing the brush and holding until he regained his breath and climbed

RESIDENTS FLEE FROM WOODS FIRE

Maine Town Threatened by Conflagration; Relief Train Is Ordered

BANGOR, Maine, June 13.—The woods along the line of the Ashland Branch of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad in Aroostook county were ablaze tonight for a distance of 25 miles and inhabitants of small settlements in that district were fleeing from their homes.

Marasadis, a town of more than 1,000 population was in danger. Griswold, a village of 200 persons was destroyed last night. So quickly did the flames descend upon the little community that the inhabitants had barely time to escape.

Men carried women and children on their backs across St. Croix stream and later a special train took the refugees out of the danger zone. Relief trains were ordered to stand by to rescue villagers who might be forced to flee from any settlement along the line.

Foolish Question
"H. G. Wells is known in Europe as a belligerent, and truly his recent peace articles have stirred up a lot of bitterness and strife." The speaker was Stephen Lausanne, the French publicist. He went on:

"Wells reminds me of the cantankerous individual who was about to be married. When he came to the church on the wedding morning he warned the minister beforehand that he didn't want any fuss.

"He consented, however, to station himself in due form at the flower-decked altar, but as the minister proceeded with the ritual he got more and more impatient. Finally when he was asked if he, Henry, did take this woman, Jane to be his lawful wedded wife, and so on, he gave a snort before the question was half through, and then turned to the congregation and said in a loud, fearful voice:

"Well, I guess I came here with that intention."

Norma Talmage
IN
"WITHIN THE LAW"
Notable because—

The role of Mary Turner is to popular American drama what Juliet is to classical drama—an acting part which gives the true artist tremendous scope. And we believe you'll say Norma is the greatest Mary Turner of all time. The fiercest of all passions is the love of a woman scorned.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Dehydration's the thing. Its field is wide as the world.

Salem will have reason to be increasingly thankful for being dehydration headquarters.

It means the method by which our soil and sunshine and showers, or rather their incomparable products, may be and are transferred in their native perfection to any corner of the wide earth, for use in any season.

Dehydration makes it Oregon spring time, or summer time, or fall time, everywhere on earth—in the ability of people of all races and all climates to share with us the unapproachable flavors and qualities of our fruits and vegetables.

Salem chautauqua begins next Tuesday evening. It will be a great week, and everybody here ought to enjoy it.

It was a beautiful thought that resulted in placing in the hands of Prof. J. T. Matthews of Willamette university checks making a gift of nearly $1000, from his old students. Prof. Matthews stood by the old school when that was more money than even the president was able to collect in a whole year. He deserves all that he will ever get, and more, in money. He has already the gratitude and love of a host of men and women who have passed through the halls as students.

The playgrounds enterprise is financed for another year in Salem. It is a great thing; does much good, not the least of which is the taking care of numerous children while their mothers are at work in the canneries and fruit packing houses, and in the picking of fruit.

It is now possible to get an ordinary glass eye for $1. This is normally being gradually restored.
