It finally became app however, that speculative d

Then a reaction took place Only 160,000 bushels of wheat ere reported as having been newly purchased for shipment to Europe. In this connection sigdificance was attached to men sages from France saying that talk of crop damage there by cold wet weather had been exaggerat ed. Announcement of enlarged shipments from India tended further to exercise a bearish influence, and so, too, did advices indicating less pessimism as to the crop outlook in Italy and Great Britain.

Corn and oats followed wheat but in the late trading held up better against sales to realize profits. Another substantial weekly decrease of the stock of corn here was predicted. In the provision market, com-
