Rotarians Postpone Their Program and Give Right of Way to Visitors

The Rotary Club postponed its own membership music, Wednesday, to listen to Alice Louise Shrode, the dainty little entertainer from the Chautauqua circuit.

Dr. Ng Poon Chew, Chinese lecturer and editor, who was on the program for the Wednesday night Chautauqua, spoke for a few minutes.

Dr. Ng Poon Chew, Chinese lecturer and editor, who was on the program for the Wednesday night Chautauqua, spoke for a few minutes.

Dr. Chew is spoken of as the Chinese Mark Twain. He is isn't all bubbles and laughter. He told of China as a great, serious nation, that thinks in terms of centuries and not in days of weeks as does this country, but that is speeding up on its humanitarian stride and is making marvelous progress.

Dr. Chew is a real American, though he was born under the sign of the Celestial dragon. But he retains a keen regard for his native land, and an understanding grasp of conditions as they are today in that land of teeming millions.

President R. O. Snelling, delegate to the Rotary International convention at St. Louis, wired his report that the convention was bigger and more wonderful than ever he had dreamed. He is seeing it all through the eyes of the Salem bunch, and is leading up with enthusiasm and ideas to dispose to the home club on his return.

CHAMBERLAIN NOT TO ENTER RACE

Former Senator Must Continue to Work—Oregon Situation Deplored

In a letter to a friend in Salem, received yesterday, George E. Chamberlain former United States senator from Oregon who resigned July 1 from the shipping board lets it be known that he will not be a candidate again for the senate, and releases all his friends to support whomsoever they please.

"I have been in the public service for 30 years and have given my whole time to the service without any regard to my personal interests. The result is that I have not been able to accumulate any money and must continue to work the balance of my days in order to support my family and myself."

"When I resigned from the shipping board to take effect at the end of the month, it was without any purpose whatsoever to enter the political contest next year. I really want to get out of public life and feel free for the remaining years I have to come and go without hindrance, and to endeavor, if possible, to accumulate something for my declining years."

"I do not think it would be advisable for me to change this resolution. It is, as you say, a hopeless situation in Oregon. Party lines have been eliminated, and unless a man aligns himself with one or the other of the factions now engaged in the contest no political, there is no telling what his fate might be. I would decline to become attached to either or any of them and therefore could not hope to have the support of any but my old-time friends."

think best about lending your support to the numerous candidates that will develop, and leave me out of consideration."

NG POON CHEW DRAWS CROWD

ning back to before the time of the Pharaohs with a written history, this 11-year period is but a second. Dr. Chew himself has a family tree running back for 64 generations, at least. He explains that the line could have been traced farther, only the 64th forefather was a prime minister, and it was not thought advisable to go back any more.

Dr. Chew says that there has already been an immense change in China, and it is growing with terrifying rapidity. China is taking on the ways of Occidentals, which have been painfully accumulated through centuries, in only one or two generations. He admits that it is little use trying to remodel the older generation, but reckoning time by centuries, China will tomorrow be one of the world's powers, taken in the western sense.

"Is it the chance of America and the other nations of the world to influence this growing nation in the right way," he said. "If China learns the law of tooth and fang, as from militaristic Prussia, then China will be a terror; a true yellow peril. However, if China can be influenced by America and other humanitarian and Christian nations to follow the Golden Rule of life, then China will be a power for good, and a leader in progress."

Dr. Chew puts this problem up to America, as America's Oriental problem. China aches to learn—it is up to America to see that it learns the right things, he says.

Miss Shrode, accompanied by her mother, gave a number of pleasing sketches, mostly drawn from childhood. She has a very fine assortment of clever numbers, and performs them creditably. She is an excellent whistler, showing good control, though not exceptionally versatile in style. Her numbers were very well received at both programs.

The lecture on music in the afternoon given by Miss McClusky was very interesting. "There is a great need along the line of musical education, for someone to point out to the uneducated the hidden beauties of some of the classic, tuneless, harmonic, and generally unappreciated music of some of the old masters," she said.

Miss McClusky did not take up quite this line, but her talk, illustrated by a few numbers on the victrola, was very inspiring, as leading to the desire for understanding. She is a firm believer in music as a potent factor in all human life, and she encourages all people to try to appreciate the better music. However, she does not discriminate against "jazz."

This is Music Day. Today is "music day," and the whole day's program will be musical. Charles Mitchell Mixer's orchestral quartet holds the boards for the afternoon, and they and James Hamilton, tenor, will also give the evening entertainment. The quartet is made up of two violins, cello and flute, and they present what is said to be a delightful program of chamber music, both classical and popular numbers. Hamilton ranks as one of the really important tenors of the country. The whole day's offering promises to be flawless in its interest.

Friday is pork-and-beans and boiled cabbage day with the heavy staples on which one can live and grow strong and hard of mental fiber on strong and enduring mental foods. Beatrice Stuart Weller gives a cartoon lecture in the afternoon, and in the evening Tom Skyehill, Australian soldier, travel agent, lecturer, tells of Russia as it is today—a powerful, compelling story that every American ought to hear and learn by heart.

The attendance yesterday lived up to the best that the surprise crowd of Tuesday night indicated. With the big numbers yet to come it is believed that this year will establish a new record for attendance in the Salem district.

MOVIE GOSSIP

OREGON Theodore Roberts and Gloria Swanson in "Prodigal Daughters."

LIBERTY Katherine MacDonald in "Domestic Relations."

BLIGH "Irene Castle" in "French Heels." "Miracles of the Jungle."

A screen production ranking with the best, is the latest Paramount picture, "Prodigal Daughters," starring Gloria Swanson, which is now playing at the Oregon theater. It is a swift moving and peppy story of an ultra-modern girl's rebellion against the laws of convention, culminating in the thrilling rescue of the heroine from a runaway locomotive by airplane. Although "Prodigal Daughters" is an intensely dramatic photoplay, there are many laugh provoking incidents, among them the ridiculous actions of the flapper as she appears in all walks of life and the comedy of the Greenwich Village songwriters and poets.

Although Katherine MacDonald productions have met with extraordinary success on the screens of America, never has she made such a satisfactory picture as "Domestic Relations," which began a two-day run at the Liberty yesterday.

This First National attraction is all that a motion picture should be. Its high dramatic values are offset by touches of rare comedy; its strong story is enacted by a cast the selection of which alone betrays the hand of genius; in photography and technical effects it is beyond criticism.

As the wronged wife of a suspicious judge, the famous star gives a portrayal that will stand out as one of the best seen on the Liberty screen for a long time. It is a difficult role, but Miss MacDonald has invested it with a fidelity to life that is remarkable. Another member of the cast who should receive special commendation is William P. Carleton, who plays the part of the judge.

The picture can aptly be termed a "slice of life." It reveals life as it is—not as many novelists try to make it.

"Domestic Relations" is a picture that should please all lovers of the cinema, whether young or old. It is clean and wholesome, and extremely entertaining.

"Daddy," Jackie Coogan's latest production, a First National picture which is coming Friday evening to the Oregon theater for an engagement, is unique in that it is probably the first photodrama to be written by the parents of a famous star, and for that star, Jack Coogan are fitted to create a vehicle that will best bring out the precocious charm of their imitable child.

"Daddy" is a charming story, in which Jackie is ably directed by E. Mason Hopper and supported by Cesare Gravini, Arthur Carwe, Josie Sedgwick, Bert Woodruff, Anna Townsend, William Lewis and George Kuwa.

Irene Castle comes back to public life at the Bligh theater today in a picture called "French Heels" by Clarence Buddington Kelland, and directed by Edwin L. Hollywood.

To say that theater patrons in this city were delighted to see her once more, would be expressing it mildly. The applause, when the opening title was flashed on the screen, clearly indicated the esteem in which Mrs. Castle is held in this city, while the more vigorous and prolonged applause at the conclusion of the picture told without room for misunderstanding that the audience thought "French Heels" was one of the best pictures it had seen in many months. At least that is the way we interpret it.

The story of "French Heels" opens in New York and gets off to a lively start when Palma May, the character portrayed by Mrs. Castle, becomes a chorus girl in a Broadway cabaret. She soon rises to stardom and becomes the talk of the town. Then enter the "man," Lieut. John Tabor, played by Ward Crane. Mr. Crane is an unusually good looking leading man and has an important part in the story which he handles with skill.

The entire story revolves about Mrs. Castle—what she does, what she thinks and what she wears, and as to the latter it may be said that her introduction of new and stunning modes will stimulate to action every pair of dressmaker's shears in the city.

NEW OIL WELL IS UNDER WAY

Recently Purchased Drill Now in Operation in Vicinity of St. Paul

Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 the Willamette Valley Oil & Gas company started its new well on the A. Boutin place near St. Paul. A large number of people from Mt. Angel, Salem, and from other towns and from the St. Paul country where the well is located, turned out to see the new outfit at work.

The new drill rig is of the standard deep-well type, used for all heavy prospecting. It is capable of going down to a depth of 3000 or 4000 feet, if necessary or desirable. In less than two hours the big drill drove down between 25 and 30 feet, most of the length of the main drill stem, which is 40 feet in length, and the drill itself, an additional four feet.

Progress Will Vary While this is more rapid progress than will be made as the depth increases, because of the time required for hoisting the tools and for balling out, as well as for the more resistant strata that will be encountered at least part of the way, this represents the machine's speed possibilities.

The present rig was purchased, and installed because the light rotary drill that was used for the first hole was not heavy enough to go to the depths that an accurate, adequate survey seems to demand. It was to its limit at a little more than 1,000 feet. It struck oil, of fine quality and is encouraging, though not as yet commercial quantity, but enough to warrant the installation of the heavy standard rig.

Weights 9,000 Pounds The drill shaft and drill of this new outfit weighs 9,000 pounds. This is raised and dropped about three feet at every drop, and it eats its way through the earth at a surprising speed for so blunt a drill.

Adequate boiler and engine power has been provided. The machine had been used but a short time, and is in perfect condition. The 30-foot derrick is new. A crew of experienced drillers is in charge of the development. For the benefit of the public that is so much interested, it is announced by the management that the drill will work Sundays as well as week days, so that visitors who can not get down to the place during the week may have the chance to see it on Sunday. J. A. Mills and Ed Jory of Salem are two of the directors selected in the recent reorganization. Stock has been subscribed for by many people of Salem, in large amounts, but mostly with the idea of helping to develop what, if found at all, will be a tremendous business asset to the Willamette valley. From this point of view it is being viewed as a sober business obligation to develop every possible resource that the valley may have, and not as a speculation or a get-rich-quick gamble. The oil already found is held by the company as ample evidence of the probability of extensive oil deposits farther down.

WHEAT QUOTATIONS TUMBLE DOWNWARD New Low Record for Year is Established; Blame Exchange Failure

CHICAGO, June 20.—After announcement of an important failure of the New York stock exchange, heavy selling here tumbled wheat prices down today to a new low record for the season. July wheat was weaker than September and December but kept above the season's low record for July delivery, $1.01 1/2, made on October 6 last. Today's close was nervous at 2 3/4 to 3 1/2 cents net decline with July and September both at $1.03 1/2 to $1.04, and December, $1.06 1/2 to $1.06 3/4. Corn lost 1/4 to 3/8 cent, and oats 1/4 to 3/8 cent.

In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 27 cents down. At first the wheat market had a noticeable upward tendency that appeared due to chiefly improved prospects of export business. Extreme cold weather in France and Great Britain was cited in this connection. Suddenly, however, wheat selling here widened, and buying power largely gave out, when word came that suspension of a New York stock market firm involved liabilities of $7,500,000.

DUNCAN ROSS DIES AT SISTER'S HOME

Pioneer Underwent Thrilling Experience in Tracy-Merrill Escape

Duncan Ross, pioneer resident of Salem, died early yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mattie Phoefor, 2100 North Commercial street. He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Mattie Phoefor of Salem, Katherine Ross of Ohio, Mrs. Thomas Watson of Victoria, B. C., Mrs. A. J. Adams of Essen, Ontario, and a brother, James Ross, of Lucas, Ontario.

Mr. Ross was a member of Chemeketa lodge No. 1 of the I. O. O. F. The funeral will be held Friday at 10:30 at the Webb Funeral parlors. Burial will take place at the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Mr. Ross came to Salem 50 years ago, having been in the United States then five years. He was born in Scotland in 1846. His wife, a cousin of Frank Durbin of Salem, died several years ago. He served for several years as guard at the penitentiary, being there at the time of the Merrill and Tracy escape. A guard at Mr. Ross' side was killed by the desperadoes and Mr. Ross saved himself by falling on the ground, where he remained until they had made good their escape. His quick thinking in falling to the ground since opposition to the escape would have been useless, their guns having been taken away from them by the bandits.
