CHERRIES SHORT AT SILVERTON

Frequent Spring Rains Work Hardship, Cannery Manager Reports

SILVERTON, Ore., June 20.—(Special to the Statesman.)—Due to the many late spring rains the cherry harvest around Silverton will be small this season, says the manager of the Silverton Food Products company. The Government is already being brought to the cannery and the Royal Annes will be coming within a few days. Black cherries are not used because of an acid they contain which eats into the tin.

The Silverton cannery specializes in mountain berries for its strawberry pack. The mountain berries are considered later than the valley berry but they are more uniform in size and better in flavor. The mountain berries are just beginning to come in. The Silverton cannery expects to put up 125 tons during this season. The strawberries and cherries will last about three weeks more. It is expected that the loganberries will be ripe by then.

The Silverton cannery is starting out this season with a complete new outfit of machinery which will enable it to put out three times as much fruit as it did last year. The stockholders of the cannery have begun a drive to increase the acreage of diversified fruit in the Silverton community. Especially do they wish more gooseberries and red and black raspberries.

Should Serve If Elected, Says County Superintendent

"Someone must serve, and it is the duty of every person who is elected or appointed to fill a vacancy on county school boards, to live up to their obligations," declared Mrs. Mary K. Fulkerson, county school superintendent, Wednesday afternoon, after she had learned that all of those elected on one of the county school boards had refused to accept the position.

"Acting in this capacity is a responsibility that should be assumed with citizenship and should not be shirked," she declared.

M'NARY TALKS TO GRANGERS

Agricultural Legislation Is Topic of Senator at Pomona Meeting

Marketing conditions, freight rates, crop insurance and other subjects of interest to farmers were treated by United States Senator Charles L. McNary in an address yesterday at the Pomona Grange of Marion county in session at Turner. The senator is a member of the grange. Senator McNary is chairman of the senate committee on crop insurance, and he dealt with this subject at some length. His address reviewed congressional enactments already accomplished, relative to the agricultural industry and also with other enactments that are in prospect.

Agriculture Foundation

"The economical structure of the nation is founded on agriculture," said Senator McNary. "Should it fall, every other industry would suspend and starvation would come upon the country. With this picture ever present the last congress enacted a wholesome quantity of constructive legislation. The list of enactments is a long one—too long for repetition, but the helpful effects will soon be generally recognized."

Market Is Problem

"To find profitable markets is one of the problems of the farmer. He looks across the waters to Europe and longs for the restoration of peace and the normal business conditions that follow war. Our entrance into the world court may assist in bringing about that happy situation, and, in my judgment, it furnishes the first immediate hope. If the western farmer is to continue at his labors freight rates must be reduced. A substantial reduction in the hauling charges on farm products, lumber and other products of the west is imperative. This proposed readjustment of rates would not necessarily mean a diminishing return to the railroads as that possible condition would be met by a re-classification of rates affecting various commodities and the increased shipments of commerce. Something will be done along this line by the forces that control freight rates, else congress will act during its next session.

Credit Facilities Improved

"At the last session congress provided for the farmers improved credit facilities for carrying their crops, not only to the harvest, but until the markets were ready to absorb them. Congress has recently reorganized and sanctioned the right of farmers to organize in large units as have large industrial organizations for many years. This action has brought about the formation of cooperative organizations in every farming community throughout the country, resulting in better marketing conditions, superior packs and grades and a lessened cost for distribution.

"The Pacific states have led in this organized effort, and the extension of this organized service will result in further savings to the producers.

Hazards Must be Met

"As chairman of the senate committee on crop insurance, I am interested in this important subject. Agriculture is subject to exceptional hazards resulting from climatic conditions, animal and pest diseases. These hazards reduce farming to a gigantic gamble. Annually billions of dollars are invested in prospects of farm crops. If the prospect falls enormous losses follow. In practically all other kinds of human enterprise insurance against risk involved is now available. To meet this situation I believe that the federal government acting through the department of agriculture can collect data necessary to a complete understanding of the subject and thereby determine the hazards and cost incident to this form of needed insurance. When this information is available insurance companies of all kinds may offer policies to the producers at a rate which will justify them seeking protection against losses so severe that in many instances farming is a discouraging industry."

Woman Gives Reasons For Wanting Divorce

In an amended complaint, Edith Shafter states that cruel and inhuman treatment upon the part of E. W. Shafter that made life burdensome for her was his moving her bed into the yard simply to annoy her; that he grew angry and sullen without cause; frequently remained away from home all night, and refused to answer her when she asked him where he had been; sent her to her mother's and then left her for some time, greatly embarrassing her; threatened to knock her teeth out in reply to where he had been at one time; locked her out of her bedroom and told her to go to her mother's.

She declares that she was greatly humiliated when her husband received his soldier's bonus and then told his father that his wife would not let him pay what he owed his father, all of which was without her knowledge.

Shafter left her on December 25, 1922, she sets forth, and since that time they have lived apart. Custody of a minor child, Betty, is asked, as well as $20 a month for her support and the costs of the suit. The Shafers were married April 12, 1921, in Portland.

Transportation Provided For Teachers From Normal

Bus transportation will be provided for student teachers of the Monmouth normal school who during the summer will teach in a summer grade school in Salem in the forenoon and return to Monmouth for their studies in the normal school in the afternoon. This was voted at the annual meeting of the board of regents of the state normal school held here yesterday. A summer school with about 200 pupils enrolled is being held here in the Washington school, for the benefit of pupils who because of illness or other reasons failed to receive promotion at the end of the school year. The board yesterday approved a budget for the normal school and approved the list of teachers recommended by President J. S. Landers.

OREGON GROWERS TOUR TO START

Caravan Trip to Southern Oregon and Return Has Many Attractions

Starting this morning the Oregon Growers, officers and members, are to set out for a three-day caravan trip from Salem to Medford and return. They plan to visit all the important fruit centers en route, to inspect the association plants of which there are a number, to look over some of the famous individual orchards and in general to make it a college education on wheels for the fruit grower who wants to keep up with the times in the fruit business.

The caravan leaves the Salem Fruit Union plant on South High street at 8 o'clock. The road and the company are free to all who are interested. The invitation is general for all who want to go.

While the business caravan is for three days only, including Thursday, Friday and Saturday, a number of the travelers will spend Sunday in visiting the famous Oregon Caves, out from Grants Pass. While this is not exactly a fruit enterprise, it is put on the program for good measure. As no return program has been provided, some are expected to make the run over to Crater lake while in that part of the country.
