BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Salem growing every day—
 As a wholesaling and jobbing center, and in every other substantial way.

Some 12 thousand people in Oregon belong to cooperative organizations—
 And if every loganberry grower belonged to one organization of this kind, or to several, there would be no talk of leaving any berries on the vines; and the price would be at least 5 cents a pound.

None of the loganberries of members of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association will be left on the vines. The berries that are not sold will be dried. This was done last year, and the dried berries were packed in cartons—and they were all sold.

GROWING WHOLESALING AND JOBBING CENTER

Salem has during the past year been growing faster than ever in importance as a wholesaling and jobbing center, and she is due for a continuous and steady growth in this field. The territory served, too, has extended more than ever before.

With the development of her basic industries, Salem is becoming more and more self-sufficient, and this increase in independence is bound to go on here—
 So that our people will be able in greater and greater measure to supply their own wants, and at the same time have a larger and larger surplus of their products to sell to the outside world—
 Bringing new money here every year for what we can grow and make—
 And that is what builds cities, communities and nations. The greater surplus we can produce for the cash markets of the world, the more solid and substantial will our wealth become.

And this will call for greater activity in wholesaling and jobbing. The concerns we already have will see their business expand, and there will be room for other houses in the different lines to supply the retailers of this section, and to help pass our surplus products on to outside markets.

Not the least of the causes of the increasing importance of Salem as a wholesaling and jobbing city is the lengthening of the paved highways radiating from this city to all points of Marion and Polk counties and to Yamhill, Clackamas, Linn and Benton and the other Willamette valley counties, and the Coast counties. This will go on for years, and thus it will be increasingly easy to reach this city and to distribute supplies from Salem to a constantly widening territory, all parts of which will steadily grow in population and in buying power.

The forces of employees of our wholesaling and jobbing houses is already making a difference in the growth and prosperity of Salem; and this influence is bound to reflect beneficially in greater measure in the future.

The Amazons Are Army Ants

These ants are somewhat larger than the ordinary garden ants of the black and red variety and not so large as the great black tree ants. Amazon ants are fitted by nature to do one thing well—fight. It is almost anything but military affairs they are poor specialists.

Colony is Armed

The colony of Amazon ants is always an armed camp. Scouts are constantly on the lookout, and as soon as these scouts report finding a colony of brown ants the amazons get into battle formation and conduct a war.

The enormous jaws of this type of ant make effective weapons and the brown ants, on whom they wage war, haven't a chance for victory. The amazons always conquer and enslave all that remains of the former colony of brown ants. These slaves do all the work in an amazon colony, even to giving the fighters their baths before they come into the nest after battle.

Slaves are Needed

There must always be plenty of slaves or the amazon colony will die out because of inability to take care of themselves. The slaves seem to be perfectly content with their treatment, for they never rebel or cause any trouble to their masters.

Often the amazon will allow a peculiar little beetle to share their nest with them. This sort of a beetle gives off an aromatic odor and also delights in scratching the backs of his amazon friends.

(Next Week: The Golden Garden Beetle.)

Two Musical Dogs

"Do-ra-me-fa-sol wool wool," sing Caruso and Peggy, two fox terriers in Los Angeles, as they accompany their singing with a duet on a toy grand piano.

"What harmony and control," exclaim their delighted critics as they hear these gifted dogs raise their voices in melodious howls. No one takes more delight in the performance than Caruso and Peggy seem to take in performing. They are never stage struck when called upon to perform. They never try to excuse themselves because they have left their music at home or say that they have such bad colds they can't sing a note.

Both dogs have a remarkable range of voice; they can sing even the lowest notes of "Asleep in the Deep" with as much ease as the highest runs of "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark." Caruso seems to prefer the bass notes, while Peggy delights in throwing back her head and letting her graceful throat quiver with soprano trills.

In spite of their artistic temperament, these gifted dogs do not seem to be jealous of each other. They do not try to out-do each other by howling as loud as they can, but seem to believe in giving the other fellow a chance. Of course when it comes to being praised and petted or to the matter of a juicy bone, dogs will be dogs, and their master must be careful not to give more to one than the other if he wants to avoid an argument.

THE SHORT STORY, JR.

A ROSE FIGHT IN JUNE

The roses were having a fight; they went for each other all right!

The petals went flying. While head they were crying, and Hattie was speechless with fright.

"My, how hot it is," sighed Hattie, fanning herself with her handkerchief. "I believe I'll go out to the hammock and see if I can't find a breeze."

"It certainly is sultry," agreed her mother, "but I shouldn't be surprised if we had a storm later in the afternoon. There's a black cloud coming up in the west and it's starting to blow a little."

Hattie sank into the hammock. The lovely rose rambler climbed up over the porch and shed its fragrance down on her. "The roses surely are beautiful this year." She regarded them through half-closed eyes.

Suddenly the largest cluster of roses gave a jump. "Who struck me?" it screamed. "Some one struck me in the back with his thorn. It was you!" He shook his bud at a smaller cluster back of him.

"It wasn't either," snapped back the smaller one. "Don't talk to me like that. Take that right back or I'll pull your petals all out by the roots."

"There, you did it again," yelled the bigger rose. Hattie was horrified to see him turn and slap his companion right across the face.

"I won't take that from anyone," flared the smaller rose, grabbing out a handful of his petals.

"Help! Help!" he yelled. Other roses rushed to his assistance. Some came to help the smaller

SHANS OF BURMA

GIVE WEIRD DANCE

Recent Inauguration of Federated States Marked by Celebration

TAUNGGYI, Burma, June 28.—The recent inauguration of the Federated Shan States was marked by a remarkable series of exhibition dances. These included tribal dances in which 24 of the hill tribes of Burma participated as well as the famous animal and bird dances of the Shans.

The entertainment took place in a specially built arena with over 5000 spectators in attendance. Brilliant and unusual lighting was a feature of the occasion. The thoroughfares leading to the arena were lined with huge lamps in the shape of lotus blossoms. The governor, Sir Harcourt Butler, was escorted to his place by 20 torch bearers, carrying torches 10 feet long and one foot thick made of bamboo and pine chips.

In the opening parade, some of the torches used were as much as 50 feet in height and required 50 or 60 men to carry them. Each torch was followed by several musicians who beat tom-toms and played other weird instruments.

Of the tribal dances those of the Fadsungs are noted for the enormous rings they wear. The brass rings worn about the neck, arms and legs of one woman often weigh over 50 pounds. Those of the neck, amounting to about 15 pounds, are considered the most important. Their purpose is to

A Statement From the Foreman of the Grand Jury

I observe in the issue of the Capital Journal of June 25, 1928, a statement with respect to the attitude of the grand jury in securing the services of Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle instead of those of John Carson, district attorney, which would indicate that the change was made at the instance of one member of the grand jury only.

This is erroneous and in the interest of truth and a fair statement and as foreman of the jury I beg to say that a number of the members of the jury desired the change for the reason they desired legal advice and assistance that would enable them to make a fair and impartial investigation of the several matters before them and believed that the duty of determining the facts devolved upon the jury and not the attorney. A certain member of the grand jury endeavored to secure other action than that taken by the jury with respect to its adviser, but stood alone in his attitude.

Naturally the report of an investigating body is not so complete as it would have been had there been a probability that a more detailed statement of its findings would produce beneficial results. There were a great many matters coming before the jury with respect to the conduct of the state hospital for the insane at Salem, Oregon, that merited and received the condemnation of the jury and were not mentioned in the report, but the report itself pointed out sufficient irregularities and grounds for reproof of the management without giving

STOP BACKACHE, KIDNEY TROUBLE

Backache, Rheumatic Pains, dull headache, tired feeling, too frequent urination, discolored or strong odor are symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. "I was always having a headache which caused me great suffering," writes Mrs. Feber, Medford, Mass. "Could not sleep and at times I could not stand straight. Tried Foley Kidney Pills and found relief." Stop backache, kidney and bladder troubles with Foley Kidney Pills. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

a bad girl, while they will take and put up with a bad boy. There are not enough bad boys to go around in the places where they are wanted. The only people who want a bad girl, as a rule, are people who are as bad as the girl. There are exceptions, thank God, else there would be no hope at all for bad girls. But, as things stand now, the exceptions are only sufficiently numerous to prove the rule. It is not so much that when a girl is bad she is very bad so bad that she is awful; though that is often the case. But it is on account of the way society as at present constituted looks at a bad girl. And society cannot be too much blamed either. Take your own case: Do you want either your own girl or your own boy to associate with a bad girl?

SCHOOL BUILDING PLANS COMPARED

Writer Says the Salem School Board Should Appreciate Architect Legg

Editor Statesman:

The Salem school board should appreciate Architect Legg. His three story addition to the present high school embodies 14 class rooms, 1 girls' rest room, 1 teachers' room, 1 locker room, and a large 72x100 gymnasium.

The exterior is of cream colored pressed brick. It has a hip roof, heavy steel cornice, and outside gables.

On the other hand, the new Grant high school as planned by a Portland architect is only a two story building of 12 class rooms, 1 study hall 32x66, 2 locker rooms and 2 shower bath rooms. "It has a flat roof similar to the Richmond school building and is to be built of regular red brick, which costs about one-third and is not so attractive.

The school board, while being charmed by the prospect of telephone systems, electric clocks, songs, tile walls and floors, gray enamel, spar varnish, canvased corridors, maple floors and numerous other fineries are overlooking the fact that the 32x66 auditorium will not house the children and their parents; that the building possesses no class room for physical culture, and that there is no lunch room.

Injured Eyes Terminate Careers of Two Boxers

ST. PAUL, June 27.—Mike Gibbons, the middleweight brother of Tommy Gibbons, challenger for the heavyweight crown, known in ring circles around the world as "The Phantom" and Saph McKenna, the bantamweight who was a pocket edition of the elder Gibbons, will never box again because of defective vision.

In his last few starts the Phantom collided with punches which in other days would have whizzed harmlessly by, been blocked with elbow or shoulder, or have been picked off with a glove before well started. It was not until he visited an eye specialist that Mike learned that the sight of one eye was virtually gone, due, it is believed, to a loose lace of a glove striking it.

McKenna was recently dismissed from a hospital where he was taken following his last bout with Johnny Erle, former bantam weight title claimant in which Erle shaded him and landed a blow which definitely put out of the ring one of the cleverest little boxers ever developed in this section. Physicians declared McKenna's eye would never again regain its usefulness.

McKenna, who worked with Gibbons in training, had Mike's style to the last detail. He was not as inclined as the Phantom to stay in close, but showed as well in flashy footwork and speed.

elongate the neck. A girl starts wearing such rings from childhood; as the neck stretches, additional rings are added. The woman who has the longest neck is considered the most beautiful and the most to be desired as a wife.

The Shans in their dances disguised themselves as animals and birds. Buffaloes, elephants, tigers, bears and cocks were among those represented. A small dog which happened to stray into the arena was so frightened by one of the tigers that he hid his tail between his legs and awaited in terror the end which he thought was about to come.

Seventy-five hundred representatives of every branch of real estate interests throughout the United States and Canada, will attend to find a working answer to these and other questions which more or less affect the general expansion of national business life.

A huge questionnaire, covering concrete facts on present real estate conditions, will be made public at the convention. This questionnaire not only deals with housing shortage, labor costs, and financial conditions, but with rental tendencies, mortgage supply money, interest rates, pronounced tendencies in suburban growth and market conditions for residential and business property throughout the country.

Lowell Astronomers Discover New Star

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., June 27.—Dr. C. O. Lampland of Lowell observatory here has announced the discovery of a new star located in a spiral nebula of the southern heavens in the constellation Centaurus. The discovery was made through comparative photographic plates, one plate showing nothing and another, taken nine days later, giving a sharp and clear image of the star. Dr. Lampland said.

The nebula in Centaurus, known as Messier 83, has been observed at Lowell observatory for many years for the purpose of detecting changes which might occur in it. With the modern highly improved and accurate optical instruments used in the comparisons of photographs of different dates, it is possible to detect extremely small differences in the details of the photographic plates used. Dr. Lampland said in explaining the discovery.

New stars are of the greatest interest to astronomers, because their growth in brilliancy, their decline, and sometimes their ultimate disappearance, afford the investigator an opportunity to study changes in the chemical composition of the body.

British Unemployment Shows Marked Decrease

LONDON, June 27.—A fall in the number of unemployed from May 14 to 1,168,609 from 1,319,267 April 30, is considered by officials of the Ministry of Labor to be significant as indicating a steady revival in trade.

It is pointed out that since the beginning of April there has been a succession of weekly declines in the number of unemployed, and the state of the various trades gives hope that the corner has been turned.

FINDLAY, Ohio, June 27.—Mexican laborers brought here under contract from Houston, Texas, are being used to cultivate the sugar beet crop of Northwest Ohio.

The Mexicans were brought here when it appeared impossible to obtain Americans for the work. Approximately three hundred of them are under contract to work in the Ohio and Michigan fields. They will be taken back to their homes in the fall.
