

PEN FLOCK WILL BE ALL RED BIRDS

Discussion of Kinds for Meat and Eggs, Meat Alone, and Eggs Alone

A correspondent writes us from Bakersfield asking our opinion of the Jersey Black Giant breed of fowl; whether in our opinion they are all that is claimed for them, and what in our belief, is their wearing quality as compared with Rocks and Orpingtons. There is and has been more or less discussion both in print and otherwise touching the substantial and wearing qualities of this new breed. There are a few flocks in California, but up to the present time there has hardly been enough "experience" with them under prevailing local conditions on which to base a definite conclusion. Allowing for the fact that it is essentially a meat breed, it is hardly possible that the Giant Black will attain the general popularity on American farms enjoyed by either the Rhode Island Reds or Barred Rocks; for table purposes, however, we think they will always occupy a foremost position. We hear and read about their laying capacity, and possibly in time, under careful selection, their values in this respect may be improved. With the decline in the annual output of turkey meat, in which there is no evidence of improvement, there is going to be a stronger demand for heavy table fowl. In this class we have the Astetics and certain breeds in the English class, but usually all these furnish a white carcass, while the color of skin and legs in the Jersey Giants is yellow, a condition that meets the requirements of the American market. The objection of a black plumage does not weigh heavily with us; as a matter of fact, it has its advantages as the conspicuous appearance of black pin feathers usually causes their removal, whereas on a white bird many a pin feather "gets by." For capons, the males of the Jersey Blacks are in a class by themselves—being rapid growers and providing a carcass that is really worth while. If our correspondent is in the game for table fowl, this breed has much to commend it; if playing the game for both hen fruit and carcass, we should stick to a good laying strain of Reds or Rocks, Orpingtons or Wyandottes; if for eggs alone, keep Leghorns or Minorcas.

—HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG, Poultry department editor, in Farm and Tractor Section of the Los Angeles Times of last Sunday.

(Two or three, and perhaps more, of the poultry breeders of the now famous Auburn district, just east of the Oregon peninsula and asylum, are going exclusively into Rhode Island Reds; going out of White Leghorns. They expect to produce market birds, as well as eggs. The penitentiary flock, now consisting of Oregon, Leghorns and Reds, will in the future, beginning with next year, be all Reds. This will no doubt develop into one of the largest flocks of Rhode Island Reds on this coast; maintained for both egg and meat production.—Ed.)

SILVERTON NEWS

SILVERTON, Or., June 27.—(Special to The Statesman.)—A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Nye Bristol at the Silverton hospital June 26. Mrs. Bristol was before her marriage Miss Marie Jones, assistant postmaster of Silverton.

About 50 young folks are planning to motor from Silverton to Eugene for the week-end Lutheran convention to be held there. The choirs from Trinity and St. John's churches of Silverton will take part in the singing. Most of those going down will leave Friday. Others will go Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gunderson and Miss Jardis Closter are spending a few days at Seattle.

Rev. and Mrs. George Henriksen, George Henriksen, Jr., Miss Dora Henriksen, Miss Louise Henriksen and Miss Esther Larson motored to Portland Monday.

The internal revenue report for 1921, just made public shows that in that year only twenty-one Americans had incomes of $1,000,000 a year or more. For the life of us we cannot place the other twenty.—Exchange.

POULTRY ALWAYS IN NEED OF CARE

This Statement Is Especially Apt in the Coming of Warmer Weather

No matter how much care one exercises in the selection of breeders, nor how much skill he displays in rearing a flock, there will be "off" specimens wanting in standard qualifications and subject to physical weaknesses and deformities. In the case of males these soon are apparent, but with the females there may be pronounced faults and the bird may nevertheless prove a profitable producer. Usually it is unprofitable to care for faulty specimens; they should be culled out and disposed of as quickly as possible. If there are several false cockerels among their fellows, it is often advisable to mark such and grow them to maturity with the prospect of later on using them for breeders. After the undesirable specimens have been disposed of, it is good business to give the remaining birds good care and attention. Regularity in feeding is essential; exercise in maintaining sanitary conditions in houses and runs; carelessness in these two directions invariably leads to trouble. As warm weather approaches, look out for lice and mites, two enemies whose presence is inimical to success in poultry culture. Birds can neither put on flesh nor be good producers if harassed by infestations of injurious insects. Often, if dusting facilities are

AVOID THESE SYMPTOMS

"I was weak and nervous, had headaches all the time, and my back hurt so bad I could hardly stoop," writes Frank Richardson, Perry, Georgia. "Tried Foley Kidney Pills and got relief." Backache, rheumatic pains, tired feeling, dull headaches, too frequent urination, discolored or strong odor are symptoms of Kidney and Bladder disorders and demand prompt treatment. Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief. Refuse substitutes. Insist upon Foley's.—Sold everywhere.—Adv.

FOUR THINGS FOR A CROP ROTATION

Cash, Legume, Manured Cultivated, and Stock Feeding Crops Required

(Following are some "farm reminder" paragraphs from a current bulletin from the department of industrial journalism of the Oregon Agricultural College:)

Every crop rotation should contain a cash crop, a legume crop, manured cultivated crop, and a livestock feeding crop, grouped to distribute farm labor economically. Grain may be disced in following a row crop, the land seeded to clover following the grain crop, and the clover sod turned under for a new row crop. This makes plowing necessary but once in 3 years.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.

Vegetables must grow rapidly to be of the best quality, so not only should soils be in the best physical condition but should also contain ample plant food in available form. Where well composted stable manure cannot be had a commercial fertilizer of 3 per cent nitrogen, 7 to 8 per cent phosphoric acid and 2 to 3 per cent potash may give good results.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.

LONDON BALL GAME DRAWS

LONDON, June 28.—The first baseball game of the season in London attracted a crowd of 3000. It was a close game, or "match," as the British papers called it, the team of American students at Oxford losing, 5 to 4, to the American Legion team of London.

CRAB CANNING UNFUR

TOKIO, June 23.—The cannery of crab, largely carried on floating canneries in Russian waters, has become one of Japan's largest industries.

Recently some of the companies engaged in this business formed a combination with a view to lessening the overhead costs and raising prices for the product, which is marketed mostly in the United States and Canada.
