Miss Helen Jordan of Seattle was complimented Wednesday at an afternoon affair for which Mrs. Henry Meyers was hostess. Miss Jordan is a house guest of Mrs. Meyers and has been the inspiration for delightful informal affairs during her visit.

Baskets of Dorothy Perkins roses were used in the living room with the vivid foliage of Japanese maple. Blue tones were predominant in the dining room and were accomplished with cornflowers, daisies and other summer blossoms.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Dan J. Fry, Jr., and Mrs. Shelley Saerman. Others assisting about the living room were: Mrs. R. P. Boise, Mrs. Ben W. Olcott, Mrs. Louis Lachmund and Miss Margaret Cooper.

Among the out of town folk attending the tea were: Mrs. M. C. Woodard, Miss Katherine Woodard, of Silverton, and their house guest, Mrs. Hanscomb, of Boston, and Miss Thoma of San Francisco, and Mrs. Gertrude Cameron, Miss Dorothy Hubbs, also of Silverton; Mrs. Kathryn Lee of Alexander City, Alabama, and Miss Eleanor Baskin of Astoria.

Stories Told Children Influence Life

Stories told to children do much to determine the kind of men and women they will be. The tales that children hear are the foundation for the development of character. Stories told in school, home, and story hour give the foundation upon which are built the ideals and standards of childhood.

Because the child mind is very impressionable the psychological effect of stories will be great. Those stories should be chosen that will be a stimulus to the higher quality of manhood and womanhood. Tales of heroism, truth, and justice are desirable.

A taste for good literature may be cultivated by the introduction of heroes of fiction through the tales of mythology which are enjoyed by children of school age.

The influence of books, either good or bad, is no small item in childhood. Harmful literature, external evil influences and harmful motion pictures must all be combated by good literature. When children are taught the value of good literature and taught to enjoy it, then, and then only, will the demand for better screen productions come.

A number of Salem folk went to Portland last Sunday to attend the wedding of Miss Flora Newman, formerly of Salem, to Henry Becker of Astoria. The ceremony took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. D. W. Woyant, also a former capital city resident, about 30 relatives and friends attending. Rev. A. McCullough of the Sellwood Presbyterian church officiated.

After a wedding trip to British Columbia the young couple will make their home in Portland. Mrs. Becker resided here for eight years, during which time she was identified with the law office of Smith & Shields. She left Salem for Portland about the first of April.

Among those who attended from here were Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Roberts and their children, Marlon, Ruth and Irving Roberts, Mrs. Emma Roberts, Miss Rose Aline, Mrs. Belle Roberts and Miss Detonia Byrn.

The reunion of the Van Cleave family, descendants of Thomas and Harriet Van Cleave, was held June 24 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Van Cleave, near Monitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Van Cleave came to the west from Iowa in 1866, three sons coming the year before. They located on Howell Prairie where they lived until their death.

There were 90 relatives present, besides friends of the family—some came from Portland, Spokane, Ellensburg, Woodburn, Molalla, Silverton and Salem. Relatives that had never met before were among those attending. A lunch was served on a long table under the oaks.

Monitor orchestra. F. B. Van Cleave is tracing the family record. He has a record as far back as 1852. The ancestry came to this country between 1624 and 1664, when New York was called New Amsterdam, and later three brothers settled in Kentucky, previously coming here with Daniel Boone. One of the brothers was captured by the Indians and held captive for three years.

Wednesday evening between the hours of 7 and 10, members and friends of the First Presbyterian church called at the new mausoleum on Chemeketa street. The building, with its wavy walls, green shutters, spiral chimney and steep roof is quaintly suggestive of the English cottage.

The interior is in keeping with the exterior appearance and a distinctive simplicity is noticeable. Many lovely flowers about the rooms added a delightfully charming air to the rooms.

Rev. and Mrs. Ward Willis Long were assisted in receiving their guests by Mrs. George J. Pearce, Mrs. John Wallace Harbinson, Mrs. A. F. Marcus and William H. Steusloff. The guests were shown about the rooms by Miss Dorothy Steusloff, Miss Dorothy Pearce, Miss Helen Marcus, Miss Mildred Gilbert and Miss Leah Ross. On the side porch Miss Mabel Marcus and Miss Mary Gilbert served punch.

NEW BOOKS

"The Social Trend," a study of social conditions with a prophecy and a warning for the future, by Professor Edward A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin.

"The Declaration of Independence," a discussion of the theories of the Declaration and the changing attitude toward them, by Carl Becker.

"Christianity and Progress," by Harry E. Fosdick.

"My Dogs of the Northland," the stories of his experiences with the huskies in the Arctic regions by Egerton Young.

"Houdini's Paper Magic," paper tearing, paper folding and paper folding.

"Second Book of the Great Musicians," written for young readers by Percy A. Scholes.

"The Golden Path Book," short ethical stories by E. H. Sneath.

"Gift of the Sunday Schools," "Uganda's White Man of Work" the story of "Alexander Mackay, the missionary to Africa, told for children by Sophia L. Fahs.

"Jeremiah 1:20" by C. J. Ball and "Jeremiah 21:52" by W. H. Bennett, volumes from the Expositor's Bible.

"Border Lines in the Field of Doubtful Practices," opinions on amusements and habits of Christians by H. Clay Trumbull.

Much talent was displayed by the class throughout, the work being featured by distinct individuality and splendid interpretative ability. The program was exceptionally well balanced, and

High lights were the Concerto G. Minor, (Mendelssohn) played by Miss Ruth Bedford and Mrs. Harris, and the Kamenof Ostron, (Rubenstein) played by Miss Bedford, Miss Ross with the local part furnished by Miss Ammer and Mrs. Harris. It was a decided pleasure to hear Mrs. Harris in piano work, owing to the fact that her name is almost entirely linked with vocal music. The Concerto was given in a thoroughly professional manner, and made a pronounced impression upon the audience. Miss Bedford's work, of course, has almost become a household word, for she has appeared upon practically every program note in the past several years. Receiving her entire musical education under Miss Shelton she is, in herself, a noteworthy example of this well known instructor's method. The Nevin number by the octave proved so pleasing that an encore was demanded. Miss Bertha Vick was the accompanist for the singers, who have been
