

NOTICE OF IMPROVEMENT OF HIGHLAND AVENUE BETWEEN FIFTH STREET AND FAIRGROUNDS ROAD.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council of the City of Salem, Oregon, deems it necessary and expedient and hereby declares its purpose and intention to improve Highland avenue from the west line of Fifth street to the west line of Fairgrounds road at the expense of the abutting and adjacent property, except the street and alley intersections the expense of which will be assumed by the City of Salem, by bringing said avenue to the established grade, constructing cement concrete curbs, and paving said portion of said avenue with a redtop macadam base and a two and one-half inch asphaltic concrete wearing surface pavement in accordance with the plans and specifications therefor which were adopted by the Common Council July 2nd, 1923, and which are hereby referred to and made a part hereof.

The Common Council hereby declares its purpose and intention to make the above described improvement by and through the street improvement department of the City of Salem.

By order of the Common Council this 2nd day of July, 1923. M. POULSEN, City Recorder. Date of first publication hereof is July 7, 1923.

AUBURN

The loganberry situation isn't very encouraging. Some growers are taking chances on drying or shipping green fruit. Others are not picking their berries at all. Some growers dug up a part of their yards last winter and some intend to decrease their acreage this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong of Missouri are spending the summer with their son and daughter, C. C. Armstrong of Auburn, and Mrs. Roy Marshall of Salem.

Miss Esther Sneed returned to Mosmouth Wednesday after spending a short vacation at home. Miss Sneed is taking a summer course at the state normal.

Miss Mable Williams spent Sunday in Portland with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barnes.

Auburn folks spent their Fourth of July in various ways, some going to Silver Creek Falls, some to Silverton, while there were several home gatherings. At the W. H. Sneed home was a gathering of friends and relatives to the number of 28. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hedden, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Beaman and children of Salem, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hedden and children of Bellingham, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. James Foust and son James, Jr., and Victor Rhodes of Raymond, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. Hart Stark and children of Wheeler, Ore., Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sneed and son John of Stayton, Miss Vesta Hedden of Drain, Norris Merrill of Auburn and W. H. Sneed and family.

Carl Holcomb Home From West Point for Vacation

Carl Holcomb, a member of the second year class in West Point military academy, is visiting for his summer vacation with his parents in North Salem. He attended the Salem high school some years ago, always interested in things military, and finally receiving his appointment to West Point, started in to make a military career. He will have a vacation for the months of July and August.

He represents an interesting phase of Salem's military history. Six years ago, the school board, as patriotic as anybody, bought enough rifles to equip a military company for the high school, and engaged a military instructor. At the same time the older men of Salem were drilling regularly at the armory; men up to 50, or even 60 years of age—there were two members of the state supreme court, and a host of other sober citizens who refused to let the accident of their early birth keep them from preparing for war.

A number of the high school boys wanted to join this company, and did so, but their high school instructor ordered that every one who did so should be demoted from all his ranks in the high school cadets if he persisted in drilling with the grown-ups. Holcomb was a sergeant, but he said that he wanted to be a soldier with the men, and he sacrificed his standing in the cadets for the privilege. There were only two others of the cadets who adhered to this determination and lost out in the cadets. Everett Lisle, who was graduated this year from Willamette, was one of the two.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

CHAPTER 347

WHAT DR. PETTIT DECLARED TO MADGE

I awaited breathlessly for Dicky's reply to Miss Foster's merry suggestion that he stroll down the moonlit beach with her so that she could study the lighting effects, and decide whether his pulchritude matched that which she was kind enough to award to me.

I realize that ordinary courtesy forbade Dicky to do anything save accept her suggestion, and leave me to Dr. Pettit's gloomy companionship. But I felt so thwarted and cheated by this entire interruption to my glorified evening with Dicky, that I was like a disappointed child in my hope for the impossible.

His head went up a trifle at Miss Foster's remark that "Dr. Pettit must be dying to talk to Mrs. Graham," and I fancied that I saw a quick, involuntary frown upon his face, but in the moonlight I was not certain of any expression. I felt, however, that the girl's unfortunate reference to the physician whom Dicky so detested had destroyed any bizarre chance that my husband might forget his invariable courtesy to women, and refuse her suggestion.

"We couldn't refuse first aid to a person in so serious a condition, could we?" He smiled down at Miss Foster, fell into step with her, and began the stroll down the golden moonlit beach of which he had talked so much, and which I had counted so confidently on sharing with him only.

I was too miserable, too enraged at a malevolent fate to do the obvious thing and talk gayly to Dr. Pettit while following them. My irritation unjustly included him, and it was in a chilly voice I said quietly:

"Do you mind if we stay here instead of strolling? I am really more tired than I thought."

An Astonishing Statement.

He waited to answer until Dicky and Miss Foster had strolled out of hearing. Then his words were low, vibrant with sympathy in which there was a distinct note of anger.

"More heartsick, you mean," he said, tensely. "I see he is at his old tricks again, confound him!" I drew myself up stiffly. It was one thing to admit to my own soul my disappointment in my husband, something altogether different to have it voiced by this man so antagonistic to him.

"Really, Dr. Pettit," I began coldly. "I hardly see where—" He interrupted me ruthlessly. "Where it is any of my business, I suppose," he retorted. "It isn't, and—yes—it is, too. When I see him luring an inexperienced young girl like Miss Foster—"

My sense of humor at this astounding statement overcame my wrath. Miss Foster was young, naive, whole-souled, and I liked her, but inexperienced? I acquitted her of that charge instantly. Dr. Pettit evidently was as wax in her hands, and I saw that his feeling for her had gone deeper than I thought. But I could not help being a bit malleous.

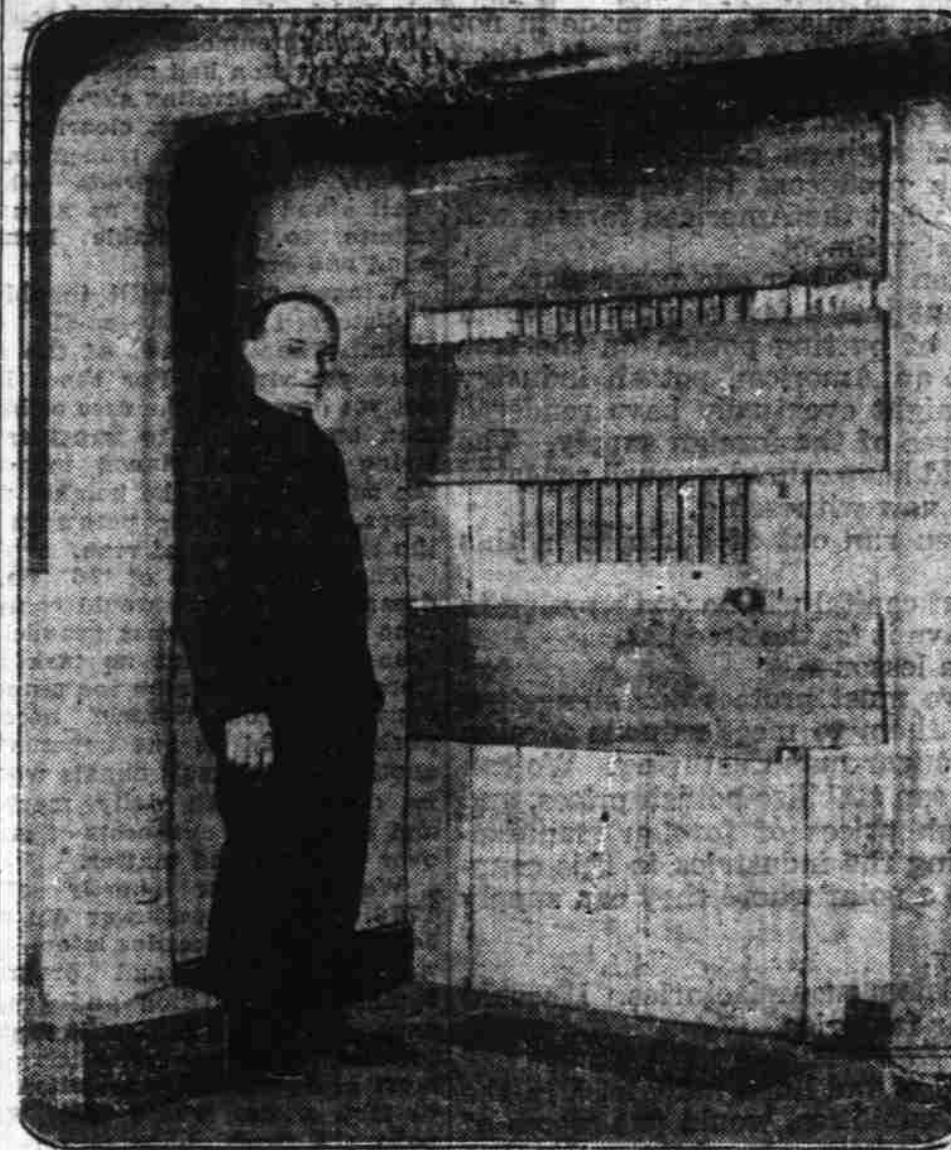

"I Have So Hoped—"

"Are you sure she wasn't doing the luring? It looked very much that way to me. I wouldn't worry over her if I were you. She is perfectly capable of taking care of herself—and you, too," I added to myself.

His voice was stiff, obstinate, as of old, whenever his opinion was contradicted.

"I think you are mistaken in her, unjust to her. That is not like you. I have so hoped that person, Mr. and Mrs. P. Mecker of Spring Valley, Miss Lenora Sinks of Baker. A great many of these were formerly Silverton residents. The Four-L organization at Silverton is forming a band. It is composed of 15 players. Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfard have returned from a trip to southern Oregon, their daughter, Mrs. Lohr of Grants Pass, returned to Silverton with them for a visit. B. H. Conkle, former principal of the Silverton high school, is spending the summer at the C. S. Bristol home.

THESE SEALS BROKEN BY U. S. OFFICIALS.

Prolonged diplomatic parleys were forecast by officials of the Custom Service after the seizure of liquor stores on the British liners Berengaria and Baltic in defiance of the Supreme Court ship liquor ruling. The parleys will result, they said, in determining whether the court edict shall hold as a precedent over international agreements and in contravention of British laws. This shows the sealed entrance to the Berengaria's liquor supply. The seals were boarded over to prevent accidental breakage. Each seal was stamped with the English crown and bore the words: "Liverpool Customs."

CELEBRATION IN DALLAS BIG EVENT

Fifteen to Twenty Thousand Attend Parade, Round-Up and Program

DALLAS, Or., July 6.—(Special to The Statesman.)—A crowd of people from all parts of the Willamette valley, estimated to be all the way from 15,000 to 20,000, celebrated the Fourth of July and attended the Round-up here.

The crowd began to arrive early in the morning and by the time the parade was scheduled to start at 9:30 the streets were lined with people and it was difficult to find parking space for automobiles in the business district and adjacent streets.

The parade was the best ever held in this city. The prizes awarded were as follows: First division—Advertising floats, Rich & Ellis, first prize; Crider's store, second. Second division—Fraternals and other organizations, American Legion, first; Pythian Sisters, second.

Third division—Peter Redde-kopp, first; Harlan Youel, second. Fourth division—iky and Mule, first; Russell Vashaw, second; Frank Inman, third. Fifth division—Cowboys, Ervin Hopkins, first; Baby Roach, second. Cowgirls—Winifred Niles, first; Ollie Osborne, second. Sixth division—Mistletoe Circle, Women of Woodcraft, first; Pythian Sisters, second.

Honorable mention—Cars of Carl Gerlinger; Woodmen of the World and Modern Woodmen of America. E. C. Kirkpatrick, W. G. Vassall and Walter Williams were judges of the parade.

Immediately following the parade patriotic exercises were held in the city park and an address was made by Judge Wallace McCamant of Portland. Floyd D. Moore, chairman of the day, introduced the speaker.

The afternoon program consisted of the usual contests and was followed by a ball game and the Round-up program. At 5 o'clock a scramble for 2500 pennies was held for children under 13 years of age on Main street. This feature of the day's entertainment was exceptionally of interest to the children and the scramble for the pennies was a wild one. No accidents or arrests occurred to mar the pleasures of the day.

PRICES ARE FIRM ON DULL MARKETS

Elimination of 12-Hour Day Increases Operating Costs 15 Per Cent

NEW YORK, July 6.—Stock prices displayed a firmer tone in today's relatively dull market. Some heaviness was apparent in Baldwin, Studebaker and a few other standard issues at the opening, but when bears discovered that the floating support of stocks was scarce they began to bid up prices.

The recovery, while it ran from 1 to 2 points in the number of standard issues, was not regarded as conclusive proof of a definite upward trend, the rapidity of the advance in a number of stocks, however, indicated a temporarily oversold condition.

One of the most interesting developments of the day was the declaration of E. H. Garry, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, that the elimination of the 12-hour day in the steel industry which has been promised to President Harding would necessitate 60,000 additional workers and increase operating costs 15 per cent.

Steel shares moved to higher ground as the announcement was made, apparently on speculative belief that increased costs would be met by higher prices rather than through a reduction of earnings.

Some good gains were recorded in the motor and motor accessory groups. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent, advanced to 5, and thence to 5 1/2. Borrowers of time money were not disposed to bid over 5 per cent with occasional 90-day loans arranged at 5 1/2 per cent. The commercial paper market was quiet, with prime names commanding 5 per cent.

Raising of the British bank rate was reflected in the higher quotations for sterling, demand bills touching $4.57, and then reacting to $4.56, a net gain of nearly 1 cent on the day.

Other European exchanges were heavy, French francs dropping 5 points to 5.81 cents, and German marks getting below .0005 cents for the first time.

NEW CORPORATIONS

The following Oregon concerns have filed articles of incorporation with W. E. Crews, state corporation commissioner:

Park Investment company, of Portland; incorporators, J. C. Arnold, Preston Gillette, Warren Thorsen; capitalization, $25,000. Frank A. Heitkemper, Portland; incorporators, Frank A. Heitkemper, Mary A. Heitkemper, Charles E. Heitkemper; capitalization, $50,000.

Notice of dissolution was filed by the Silverton Investment company of Silverton.

Sweden to Help America Celebrate July Fourth

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, July 6.—Commemoration of the fact that Sweden was the first country to sign a commercial treaty with the United States after their independence had been won, will take place in Gothenburg this year at the first Swedish celebration of the Fourth of July, the festivities marking the culmination of "Sweden-America week," which is a feature of the Tercentennial Jubilee Exposition now being given here.

ation of "Sweden-America week," which is a feature of the Tercentennial Jubilee Exposition now being given here.

About 5,000 visitors from America are expected to participate in the festivities. This festival will be honored by the presence of the King and the Crown Prince of Sweden.

A historical fact of significance to Americans will be recalled at the unveiling of a statue of Gustaf III, one of Sweden's most famous kings. He showed great sympathy for the cause of the American colonies during the Revolutionary war, and after the war was over, it was he who authorized the signing of the new republic's first treaty of commerce and amity with any nation, even antedating England in recognition. The new statue is a gift from American citizens to Sweden.

A professor was teaching a physiology class on the circulation of the blood. "Why is it," he asked, "that when I stand on my head, all my blood rushes there, but when I stand on my feet it doesn't all go to my feet?"

Just one little boy raised his hand. "Because they ain't empty, sir."
