sheep, according to his brother, Jack Fox, who was a Salem visitor Saturday. Mr. Fox has been a regular exhibitor at the colonial fairs for several years, the Marion county stock being of such quality that it has been able to make both money and reputation against the best competition the Dominion could produce. He is showing at Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria, and may take in other shows also, before returning to the big circuit of Washington, Oregon and California. He expects to end the show season at San Francisco, late in the year.
