

DUSTY RHODES IS AGAIN IN RACES

Mishap Two Years Ago Does Not Discourage Nervy Salem Driver

"Dusty" Rhodes of Salem has decided to show the home folks that he still has a lot of racing blood in him, notwithstanding the fact that in a race two years ago his car was run into and "Dusty" and his car came out of the misfortune pretty well done up.

Hence "Dusty" has entered for the six and eight-mile race to be held at the state fair grounds on Labor day, when 21 of the fastest racers in the northwest will be there with their autos to take a chance on breaking the northwest records.

"Dusty" will enter his car, the "Dusty Special," and in the six and eight-mile race he will travel with 15 of the fastest men in the racing game. But he has a 16-valve overhead system for his car and under ordinary track conditions can travel along at a 90-mile gait.

Everything now indicates that the big auto races for next Monday afternoon at the state fair grounds, given for the benefit of the Salem hospital fund, will bring a record-breaking crowd to the city.

For those who just wish to attend the dance in the evening, beginning at 9 o'clock, there will be no admission charge to the state fair grounds, the committee in charge announced today.

"Dusty" Rhodes has been employed by the state highway commission, but having heard that some of the home folks doubt his nerve since his accident two years ago, he has decided to go into the six and eight-mile race with 100 per cent of punch and that amount of nerve in his effort to cross the tape ahead of the 15 fast racers who will be in the two races trying to do the very thing that Rhodes has figured out for himself.

BASEBALL GAMES AT FAIR DEBATED

Wenderoth and Adolph to Make Appearance Before Board Today

Whether baseball is to be played at the Oregon state fair will be further discussed today when the state fair board meets and Harry Wenderoth, manager of the Salem Senators, and Joseph Adolph, prominent fan, appear before the board with some suggestions as to how the games might be put on with financial success.

Secretary Curry believes it would be impracticable to play in the afternoon at a time conflicting with the horse races at Lone Oak track. The reason is that there would be no way to arrange for admission charge. A better plan, Mr. Curry believes, would be for the games to take place in the forenoon within the race track oval and have an admission charged to the grandstand or to the ball grounds. This plan does not appeal to all concerned, and a still better plan, it is believed, would be for the fair board to appropriate a sum of money to support the games. It is believed $1,000 would take care of an elimination tournament with about four teams in the running.

Football Players Lining Up for Work at Corvallis

CORVALLIS, Or., Aug. 31.—Material in prospect for the Oregon Agricultural college football season is no better or worse than last year at the same time, according to Coach R. B. Rutherford. Coach Rutherford is getting a line on his men, and is watching all prospects. Several good men from the freshman team are developing to fill the holes left by 1922 stars who have been graduated.

A much faster football field than last year's is promised, since much work has been done this summer to put it into condition. OAC games are scheduled as follows: September 29, Pacific university, Corvallis; October 6, Alameda, Corvallis; October 13, Willamette, Corvallis; October 20, University of California, Berkeley; October 27, open; November 3, Washington, Corvallis; November 10, Idaho, Boise; November 17, Washington State, Portland; November 24,

University of Oregon, Portland; November 29, Multnomah Athletic club, Portland; December 26, University of Hawaii, Honolulu; January 1, Hawaiian All-Stars, Honolulu.

McMINNVILLE MAN LOST IN FAR NORTH

American whaling bark Nile, in August, 1887, and called Wrangell's land. Its insular character was determined in 1881, when it was given its name, Wrangell island.

Many Ice Packs

Explorers have described it as almost impossible of access because of the constant surface packs that form in the Arctic ocean off the Siberian coast.

Many trading schooners have attempted to reach it only to be turned back by the great flocks and the Arctic storms.

Captain Noice's expedition, which returned to Nome today with the news that all members of the party but one had died, was the second expedition to go to the relief of the Crawford party. In 1922 Captain Joe Bernard, master of the trading schooner Teddy Bear, battled with the ice floes for weeks in an attempt to reach the island, but was forced to abandon the venture when the polar ice pack closed down late in the fall. His vessel barely escaped destruction and returned to Nome without news of the adventurers.

Took Only Year's Supplies

Grave fears were felt for the men's safety as they had been provisioned for one year only, and early this year Stefansson engaged Captain Harold Noice to make another attempt. Noice, on the steamer Donaldson, sailed from Nome August 3, after being notified that because of the Russian claim to Wrangell Island, his vessel was liable to seizure if found at soviet waters.

Kotzebue he attempted to obtain a number of eskimo families for colonization purposes, but all but one of several families he had induced to join him deserted on the eve of his departure.

The master of the Donaldson, Captain Louis Hanson, resigned his command at Kotzebue because of difference over the conduct of the expedition and Noice was forced to proceed short handed.

The Donaldson left Kotzebue on the night of August 6, and was last heard from August 9 off Point Hope until her return to Nome yesterday.

Knight's Body Found

NOME ALASKA, Aug. 30.—(Delayed.)—The woman whose whose name is Ada and whose husband, Black Jack, died here while she was gone, said that Alan Crawford of Toronto, leader of the expedition; Frederick Maurer, New Philadelphia, Ohio, and Milton Galle, New Braunfels, Texas, went out on the ice last winter seeking the mainland and were never seen afterward.

This left in the party only Lorne E. Knight, McMinnville, Or., and Ada Knight died of scurvy June 20, 1923, and his body was sent here by Captain Noice on the Donaldson.

The first thing the Noice party found on the island was a bottle in a deserted camp. The bottle contained the names of the party with the declaration that they claimed Wrangell island in the name of King George of Great Britain.

Camp Found

The Donaldson arrived at Wrangell island August 20 and left Sunday. She was forced to halt nine days 55 miles north of the island on her way to it, and after the weather cleared bucked her way through the ice for the 55 miles.

While bucking the ice the Donaldson stove a hole in her bow. This was repaired by placing a large walrus hide around the bow. The journey was completed in a heavy fog, the Donaldson lying in near Herald island, east of Wrangell island, while the party went ashore on Wrangell.

The camp in which the bottle was found was at Rogers Harbor, Doubtful bay, on the south side of Wrangell island.

Divorce for Asking Hit By Washington Judge

SEATTLE, Aug. 31.—Long standing practice by the bench of granting divorces after cursory examinations in uncontested cases was broken by Judge Everett Smith in superior court here today. In six cases he refused five and granted the other one only plaintiff, a woman. Said the court:

"This is no bargain counter where you can lay your money and pick up your goods. This court will try to do something to check this thing of getting a divorce for the asking."

What happens to an American doughboy who swashbuckles about Spain pulling beards and impersonating a notorious bandit ought to make an interesting story, and that is the plot of "The Gentleman from America," the Universal production starring Edward G. Robinson at the Bligh theater today.

The story was written especially for Gibson's use by Raymond L. Schreck, scenario editor at Universal City, scenarized by George C. Hull and directed by Edward Sedgwick.

Capable interpretation of the various roles is assured by the unusual supporting cast, which includes Louise Lorraine as the leading woman, Carmen Phillips as the alluring vamp, Tom O'Brien Sidney DeGrey, Frank Leigh, Burton Law, Carl Silvers and others.

The locale is Cardonia and vies with the western prairies in the opportunity given Gibson for swift moving action. He rides horses, fights duels and gets bombed, in addition to winning the love of a beautiful senorita.

Gibson impersonates an American doughboy on two weeks' furlough from the AEF after the armistice, and the story is an epic of the funny side of army life.

A new four-act vaudeville bill opens at the Bligh today for two days.

The most beautiful hands in southern California recently adjudged so in a Los Angeles Beautiful Hands contest, which drew thousands of entrants from every part of the state, belong to Majel Coleman, and may be seen in Gloria Swanson's new Paramount picture "Bluebeard's 8th Wife," which is attracting large audiences to the Oregon theater.

The judges declared Miss Coleman's hands to be perfectly symmetrical. Deep dimples adorn the base of every finger. The skin is soft and velvety to the touch. The nails are rounded and, save for accidents, are always in perfect shape.

"It is not everyone's good fortune to have beautiful hands," declared Miss Coleman, while waiting for screen tests for "Bluebeard's 8th Wife," but everyone can have pretty and well-kept hands. A woman should be as careful and as proud of her hands as she is of her face. She should preserve the smoothness of the skin with plenty of fresh water and pure soap. Lemon juice baths are good in cold weather. Witch hazel retains the whiteness and keeps the flesh soft and pliable, yet firm. I might offer a word of advice to any woman who has a sweettooth. That word is Take care of your hands. He notices them and will admire you as much for pretty hands as for clean white teeth."

With that rare coincidence so seldom found, Miss Coleman's hands photographed as well as they look, naturally. It was partly for this reason that she was chosen for minor role in "Bluebeard's 8th Wife."

Did you ever forget your wife's birthday?

George Coburn did, in the Paramount picture, "The Silent Partner," which comes to the Oregon theater next Wednesday for three days, and it almost cost him his wife.

In the story, Coburn has become a stock speculator, against the wishes of his wife, who does not want their financial security jeopardized. He is as agreeable as ever but so wrapped up in complex gambling operations, he has neglected her.

His former employer is in love with Mrs. Coburn, and takes special pains to remember the anniversary, as it seems to her every one else does.

When George does remember, and telephones home, he is too late, and his wife has accepted an invitation to luncheon with the employer, which comes in a bouquet of American Beauties.

It is a strong temptation which comes to her in the gift of an expensive heart set in diamonds, sent also with the flowers. But she remains true to her own, and returns the present, even though it costs bitter pang at the thoughts of her husband's forgetfulness.
