Edison Marshall Has Double
Spokane, Wash. — "Edison Marshall," famous novelist and magazine writer, whose stories of the west are known to every fiction reader in the country, almost became a member of the Spokane Chronicle editorial staff.

A breezy young fellow, nattily dressed, appeared in the editorial offices this week.

"I am Edison Marshall, novelist and magazine writer," he announced. "I am in Spokane to secure locale for my next big story. It has been my custom to engage my services to a newspaper in the district while gathering material."

"I'm just returning from the east where I wrote my only eastern story," he went on glibly. "It is called 'The Death Bell' and is appearing in the next issue of the Short Stories Magazine."

Being much impressed, the city editor asked more questions.

The visitor was urged to return the following day, when an answer on his application would be given.

The famous author lives in Medford, Ore., so a telegram was dispatched. Shortly this answer came back over the Western Union:

"Medford, Ore.—Mr. Marshall is in eastern Oregon duck hunting. I have wired him. I know nothing of man.—Mrs. Edison Marshall."

Then, a little later, came this telegram:

"Rocky Point, Ore.—Hunting ducks in eastern Oregon. Some other Edison Marshall. (Signed) Edison Marshall."

So, strangely enough, "Edison Marshall," famous novelist and magazine writer, is not a member of the Chronicle staff. Odd, too, is the fact that the gift visitor did not again appear in the editorial office to further his candidacy for a position.

Art Is In Home

CORVALLIS, ORE.—Masterpieces of art in the home are not necessary to show culture, in the opinion of Professor J. Leo Fairbanks, who has arrived in Corvallis to head the department of art and rural architecture, succeeding Professor F. D. McLouth, whose death occurred recently. Art has to do with service—giving the best and most efficient service—believes Professor Fairbanks, who says it is art to have the kitchen sink at just the right height.

"The best way to get an appreciation of art is to have it in the home environment," said Professor Fairbanks. "I don't believe we can have civic pride until we have art in and about our homes. Our personality should be put in the home. After all it is the heart interest that comes from within."

EUGENE, ORE.—Suggesting that the name of the new Oregon rail cutoff from Oakridge to Kirk be "Crater cutoff," Stephen T. Mather, director of the national park service, has taken up the matter with the officials of the Southern Pacific system.

Mr. Mather has written executives of the railway suggesting that the cutoff be designated the Crater Lake cutoff as something distinctive and appropriate to replace the insignificant name of Natron cutoff. Mather advises that Crater lake's nearness to the new railway is one reason to name it for this world's scenic wonder preferably to that of Eugene-Klamath cutoff.

Cranberry Harvest Is Now On
Cranberry harvest is now in full blast in the cranberry bogs of Oregon and Washington. The crop this year locally will be a large one. The total crop of cranberries in the United States will also be very large. The fruit which has grown on the Pacific coast bogs will average better this year, as to size and general quality than in previous years. This is on account of the fact that the growers have found by experience that it is unprofitable to produce inferior grades of cranberries, and the poorer varieties have been largely supplanted by larger and better keeping, and consequently more readily marketable varieties. The trade, the customer and the growers are thus benefitted by the elimination of the poorer grades.—Jefferson Tribune.

New Road Prepared

GRANTS PASS, ORE.—A delegation of local citizens will attend the meeting at Willits, Calif., on October 6, of the North of the Bay Counties association. The meeting has been called to take up matters concerned with the Redwood highway, which is held to be of prime importance by the counties of northern California. In view of the fact that the Pacific highway will probably be closed to allow paying next summer, the Redwood highway has assumed a much greater importance as traffic will undoubtedly be routed that way to facilitate the work on the other road.

New Lumber Co. for Sublimity
A new lumber company has been formed with headquarters at Sublimity. The incorporators are G. W. Scott, John W. Sharp, H. P. Shannon and Fred Strom. The capital stock is $20,000 and will be known as the "Four S" Lumber company.—Aumville Star.

Pastor Taking Long Trip
ROSEBURG, ORE.—The Rev. D. T. Summerville and his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Fisher, are to leave Roseburg at noon next Tuesday, Oct. 2, for Vancouver, B. C., where they will take passage on the Canadian Pacific steamship "Niagara" Saturday morning, Oct. 6, for Honolulu, where they will visit for a short time. They will then go on to the Fiji Islands to remain for a little while, after which they will go to Auckland, New Zealand, and in that land of matchless scenery will spend considerable time. In sightseeing. They will then go to Sydney, and after visiting in that city and other places in New South Wales, will go by rail from Sydney to Melbourne to spend in that city and its suburbs and out in Gippsland country, about one hundred miles distant, a few weeks, which will close the outward part of the tour. On the return journey they will board the ship at Sydney, thence to Wellington, New Zealand, and on to the islands of Raratonga and Tahiti, at each of which they will take a short "lay over" and then by way of San Francisco home. They will have three summers without any winter between. Such a tour is quite a journey for a man of Mr. Summerville's years.

New Hatchery at Bandon Approved
BANDON, ORE.—Art Fish, district game warden, has received an unofficial report that superintendent Ryckman of the Oregon fish hatcheries has approved the plan to establish a new hatchery on a creek near Bandon.

E. Dyer offered the department free ground for the site of the hatchery, as much as the state required. The creek runs through extensive holdings of Mr. Dyer and runs through the town. It is said that the location is nearly ideal and has the added advantage of being easily accessible for the distribution of trout.

Let Governor Serve Term
Some of the same men who were the Governor's strongest supporters are now demanding his recall. Too bad to put a man in office who can't fulfill his platform promises, but the majority of the voters fell for him, so why not let him serve out his term of office and by that time the voters will know what to do—and it is a safe bet that he won't serve a second term.—Silverton Tribune.

FATHER IN WRECK

WALLA WALLA, WASH., Oct. 1.—W. J. Nourse, of Denver, believed to be one of the victims of the Casper, Wyo., wreck, is father of H. L. Nourse of this city. He is known to have been on the fated train out of Casper, according to a telegram received today by H. L. Nourse from an uncle, who went from Denver to Casper to seek news of W. J. Nourse.

A train of thought arrives no place if it is running local.

Are your feet swollen? This is not dangerous. Not half as bad as if you had the swell head.

IS AGAINST INCOME TAX

Legislative Department of Chamber of Commerce Opposes It

The proposed state income tax that is to be voted on by the people of the state next month, on referendum of the act passed by the 1923 legislature, is opposed by the committee on taxation and legislation of the Salem Chamber of Commerce. Dr. E. E. Fisher, director of the department, so stated at the noonday luncheon of the chamber yesterday. The department believes it would increase and not decrease taxes.

Note Is Burned
Burning of the $2500 note against the Chamber of Commerce was made with fitting ceremonies at the first luncheon of the winter Monday noon. The match was applied by J. C. Perry, president of the organization. Credit for bringing the Chamber of Commerce out of debt was given to members of the board of directors.

Appreciation of an opportunity to serve on the board was expressed by each member, who briefly told of the work of that body and of its accomplishments.

Federation Land
Belief that the outstanding work of the year was the splendid cooperation with the Marion County Community federation, was expressed by George Arbuckle, vice president. The Chamber of Commerce, he said, was not only a credit to the city but to the state as well. W. I. Needham, treasurer, spoke briefly, thanking the organization for the honor bestowed upon him and voiced his appreciation of the opportunity to be of assistance. T. M. Hicks, secretary, congratulated the entire board, saying that he had not had an active part, but that the manager, C. E. Wilson, was to receive the greatest credit.

Social Division Reports
That the cost of maintaining the club rooms during the last two years was but $200, was emphasized by P. M. Gregory, of the social department. This sum, he said, was for repairs and furniture. During last year there were 500 meetings held in the Chamber of Commerce room, with an anticipated increase of 100 this year. Five daily papers are available for visitors in the reading room, with 30 magazines. Writing stands and materials are also kept on hand at all times, and the billiard room is open to members during the week.

Poverty No Hindrance
Though handicapped by a lack of money, much has been accomplished by the civic department, William E. Wilson, chairman said. Chief of these activities was the opening of North Capitol street. He urged devoting profits from the auto camp to improvements of the grounds instead of turning the money into the general park fund. Continuation of the United States employment bureau, instead of being discontinued November 1, was also asked by the speaker.

Legislation and taxation accomplished during the year have been gratifying, according to Dr. E. E. Fisher, chairman, who praised the city council for its conservatism, declaring that Salem received the most value for a dollar than any other city. The success of the year is due in a great measure, he said, to the work of C. F. Wilson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. The committee is working for a new $500,000 school building on North Capitol street.

Cherrians Report
Functioning of the Cherrians was explained by W. M. Hamilton, King Bing, who said the organization has been active since its creation in 1912, and especially since affiliation with the Chamber of Commerce in 1915. Trips taken by the Cherrians during the year were to the Rose festival; July 4 celebration, Silverton; caravan to southern Oregon, including stops and parades in all principal towns en route; the Linn county fair in Albany, and as hosts to the Prunarians, Vancouver, Wash., and to the Lithians, Ashland, during the 62nd state fair.

William Gahndorf, president of the Business Men's league, told of the value to be derived from membership in that organization and of its harmonious relations with the Chamber of Commerce. Chief of its activities are the closing of stores and decoration of streets at various times; protection to the merchant against unworthy solicitors and fake advertising. The organization makes collections for members and handles a credit rating bureau.

Exposition Coming
Carle Abrams, of the agricultural department, told of the coming corn and industrial show late in November, urging that manufacturers of the Salem district make an effort to show the country what was being done along these lines. Last year there were 55 manufacturers represented, he said, and there should be more this year. An excellent program and live entertaining features for the nights of the show are being planned. William J. Busick, of the industrial department, asked Mr. Abrams to voice his sentiments concerning the plans for the winter exposition.

Nearly All Exhibits At State Fair Gone

Practically all of the exhibits at the state fair were removed over the week-end, teams and trucks hauling the last of these away Monday morning. Booths have been dismantled and the temporary structures are being torn down for the year.

Nearly all of the livestock was shipped out Sunday, a switch engine being kept on duty moving cars as these were filled and others were needed. The concessions generally disappeared before Sunday, but one merry-go-round outfit was still on the ground yesterday, though its wooden horses had been crated.

Tent city still exists, but in limited numbers only. Many of the campers remained over until the bustle of the fair had died out.

HILLMAN BROS. START BUSINESS

Local Boys Start Coal Business and Feel Confident of Their Success

The Hillman Brothers, well known in Salem and district surrounding, are the proprietors of the Hillman Brothers Fuel company with yards and offices at Broadway and Hood streets. The best coal from Wyoming and Utah fields will be found in their bins, according to their statements made in an interview yesterday, and they report that they are ready to serve people of this county at once.

They were prompted to engage in the coal business because of the fact that little coal is used here, and that they believed that by telling people more about coal many persons would eagerly seek coal as part of the fuel used during the winters especially.

The phone number given them is 1855, and although there was some phone trouble yesterday, they report that everything is ready for business today.

SCHMIDLING IS IN CANADA JAIL

Convict Reported Seen at Fair Grounds Hundreds of Miles Away

Occultists evidently should be visited by persons seeing convicts on the grounds during the state fair. Though there were a few in evidence, one "identified" was hundreds of miles away. In fact, he was in a Vancouver, B. C., jail at the time he was "seen" in Salem.

Warden Johnson Smith was notified yesterday by wire that Arthur Schmidling was being held in the province. Schmidling was received from Multnomah county October 11, 1921, for a term not to exceed five years for larceny. He escaped from the wood camp near McMinnville on May 28, 1923. When arrested in Vancouver he was traveling under the name of Frank Scott. Schmidling was at no time connected with the prison population.

Deputy Warden Little returned the latter part of the week from Chicago, where he went after Lionel Hobson, one of the convicts who escaped from the brickyard several weeks ago with other convicts by secreting themselves in a carload of brick.

In commenting upon yesterday, Warden Smith said that of the 84 convicts now at large who have escaped from the prison in years gone by, only 15 are those leaving during his administration.

KLAMATH FALLS WILL CELEBRATE

Ceremonies Marking Railroad Development Will Be Staged Soon

A two-day program of pageantry and carnival events has been arranged by the Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce for October 12 and 13 to celebrate the beginning construction work on the new main line of 152 miles north to Oakridge.

The celebration is to open at 10 a. m., Friday with a parade typifying primitive development progress made from the time of the Indians by pioneer farmers, trappers, lumbermen and cowboys as well as later progress. Friday afternoon will be taken up with auto rides to points of interest including the Sprague river district. Friday evening will be staged a pageant, "The Passing of the Covered Wagon," the crater, an amphitheater being specially arranged for a seating capacity of $10,000. Saturday forenoon there will be an excursion to Kirk where will be held ceremony making the laying of the first rail of the so-called Natron cut-off line. Saturday afternoon at Klamath Falls will be a concert, brief address and lumbermen's contest, the latter to be held on the water front of Klamath lake. Saturday evening will be given over to a big street carnival and dancing. Invitations have been sent Chambers of Commerce of the Pacific coast, to the governors of Oregon, California and Washington to participate. Special parties will come from Portland, Medford and other points.
