

ADAM BURNS BACK FROM A LONG TRIP

He Spent Nearly 4 Months and Visited Many Places and Saw Many Things

Every one in the Waldo Hills country knows Adam Burns. He was a long resident of that rich section of Marion county, where he was a prosperous farmer and a good neighbor. Many people in Salem know Mr. Burns. He lives at 2308 Trade street.

Mr. Burns returned on Monday from a trip that lasted nearly four months. He traveled mostly on the railroads. Mr. Burns made some interesting notes of his travels for the readers of The Statesman, as follows:

"After leaving Salem June 12, went through California to Los Angeles and Long Beach; stayed there four days; then through the orange orchards and vineyards into Arizona, where we had desert for two days and nights, then in Texas it was some better; where the cotton grew and lots of rice. The rice grew under water. In Louisiana we found they raise cotton also, worked by colored people. It rained a great deal there. We went through part of Mexico and part of North and South Carolina, then into Alabama. We then passed over the Mississippi river at New Orleans, then up into Georgia. There were mostly colored people and not very prosperous in Georgia. Saw Atlanta, Ga., where Sherman started his march to the sea. A very rough country from there to Virginia and on to Washington, D. C., a most wonderful city.

THE FALL OF THE MARK BRINGS WANT.

Times are so bad in Germany that people are wondering where to get their next meal, due to the continuous fall of the mark. Photo shows eight children of a Berlin working man sleeping in a bedstead, a mattress and a chair.

"While there went through some of the most interesting buildings, such as the capitol; one half 720 feet long. Was in the room President Harding occupied when in the capitol; was in senate chamber, also representative hall, and say, it was just fine. Then went to the mint, where they make money and stamps by the billions. They kept us pretty well out of reach. Saw Abraham Lincoln's memorial. His statue is 19 feet high and nine feet between his arms on the chair, and the ceiling is decorated with all kinds of paintings. It sure is beautiful. Saw many buildings of interest; also went to the cemetery of the unknown dead. It was quite impressive, as there were no inscriptions on the tombstones.

"Saw Washington's monument, 550 feet high and 56 feet square at the base. From there went to Mt.

Vernon in Virginia, 24 miles, to Washington's old home. Saw the room he died in; also the bed. The rooms are kept in perfect order; one rag carpet. It was quite a large house. Saw all the old dishes and all that it takes to keep house. His old carriage sure was a curiosity. Also saw the first fire engine; the buckets hung on the wall for 150 years or more. The barn was built in 1733. Was in the church where he attended. There were doors into every seat. I opened one and went in and sat down, and while we were passing around there was music all the time, but couldn't see where it came from. In passing out they had some old hymn books that were 160 years old.

"In leaving Washington for Boston went through New York and there passed under the Hudson river and then crossed a bridge three miles long. Boston is a wonderful city. From there went to Worcester, where I stayed three weeks, and then to Hartford, and Waterbury, Conn., where they make the Waterbury watches and saw the plant; then back through Albany to Buffalo, N. Y.; from there to Niagara Falls; stayed one day and night.

"From there went to Canada, where I spent the most of my time, as there was where I was raised from boyhood. Many things transpired there, too numerous to mention. I was at Lake Huron and the Georgian Bay, 300 miles from the falls.

"In coming home had to come back to Buffalo, then Cleveland, where I stopped off two days; then to Chicago and Denver two days; then to Salt Lake.

"The states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Utah and Idaho were mostly corn and stock raising. Some great scenery through the Rocky mountains, especially Colorado Springs and the Royal Gorge; that is too wonderful to describe. I forgot to say while at Salt Lake City I saw where Brigham Young and three of his wives, one mother-in-law and 12 children are buried; saw the wonderful Mormon temple. Coming through Idaho we had a snowstorm. Much more I could say, but am afraid of impeding on the editor. Might be glad to get back to old Salem. Many people in the east don't know there is such a place as Salem. You bet they do now, since I was there. I saw McKinley's monument in Buffalo, where he was shot."

NEW CORPORATIONS

Percy A. Capper, former state engineer, Robert J. Simpson, who was office engineer under Capper, and E. R. Place have incorporated the Land Settlement company, which is capitalized at $100,000 and which has offices in Salem. The purpose is to develop and subdivide irrigated and other lands.

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the White Automotive company, Inc., capitalized at $3500 and having headquarters in Portland. The incorporators are H. E. White, G. H. Huthman and R. D. Trockmorton.

Notice of the increase in the capitalization from $500,000 to $1,000,000 was filed by the Jantzen Knitting Mills of Portland.

A permit to operate in Oregon was issued to the Bair Shipping company, a California corporation capitalized at $10,000. J. M. Van Duser of Portland is attorney-in-fact for Oregon.

The following permits to sell stocks and bonds were issued:

To Hygienic Humidifier company, Portland, to sell stock in the sum of $10,000; to Herbert Gordon, Portland, to sell bonds in the sum of $10,000; to Edward H. Haines, Portland, to sell bonds in the sum of $15,500.

The Land Products Show, held with the Pacific International Live Stock Exposition at Portland, November 3-10, has grown steadily until it is a great show of itself. This year is added the Northwest Grain and Hay Show, formerly held at Pendleton.

Many believe that automobiles are the cause of laziness. And probably laziness was the cause of automobiles.

POLITICS OFF LABOR AVERS

Political Interference With Freedom of Action Decried in Report

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 4.—Development of an industrial franchise "comparable to our political franchise" must be the next goal of the labor movement, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor declared today in its report to the Federation's annual convention.

Warning of the "threat of state invasion of industrial life," the council asserted that the hour has struck for "a pronouncement of the aims of labor that shall more nearly express the full implications of trade unionism."

Turning Point Seen.

"The close of the war marked for us a turning point in human relations," the report said, "and threw forth in bold relief the inadequacy of existing forms and institutions. Henceforth the movement for organization of the workers into trade unions has a deeper meaning than the mere organization of groups for advancement of group interests."

"Henceforth the organization of the workers into trade unions must mean the conscious organization of one of the most vital functional elements for enlightened participation in a democracy of industry whose purpose must be the extension of freedom, the enfranchisement of the producer as such, the rescue of industry from chaos, profiteering and paralytic individualism, including individual incapacity, and the rescue of industry also from the domination of incompetent political bodies."

Free Action Needed.

"The largest freedom of action, the freest play for individual initiative and genius in industry cannot be had under the shadow of constant incompetent political interference, mediocrity and restriction."

"Through the muddling conflict of groups who still find it impossible to come together in cooperation we must look to a future that must have its foundation upon cooperation and collaboration. The threat of state invasion of industrial life is real. Powerful groups of earnest and sincere persons constantly seek the extension of state suzerainty over purely industrial fields. Such ignorant encroachments as the Esch-Cummings act, the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations and the Colorado Industrial Commission act, each a blundering gesture of government acting under the spur of organized propaganda or of political appetite for power, are examples of what all industry has to fear. The continuing clamor for extension of state regulatory powers under the guise of reform and deliverance from evil, can but lead into greater confusion and more hopeless entanglements. Trade unionism may lead the way for true progress, even at the cost of being branded as reactionary by those who do but little save propound formulas based upon utopian thought and devoid of the benefit of experience and of any cognizance of our fundamental social structure, our industrial life or our national characteristics. We advocate organization of all wage earners and of all useful and productive elements."

Labor More Active.

"Labor now participates more fully in the decisions that shape human life than ever before and more fully in America than in any other nation on earth; but our participation must be gradually brought to completion. The purpose of this is not only the commanding of better wages and better conditions of work, vital as those are and have been. The purpose that now unfolds is broader and nobler and filled with deeper meaning.

"For the future industry must become something of which we have a national consciousness. It must cease to be a disconnected collection of groups, like states without a union. The future demands an American industry, in which it shall be possible for all to give of their best through the orderly processes of democratic, representative organization."

Germans Again Willing To Drink French Wines

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—There is good reason to believe that "passive resistance," unless constantly fed with new fuel to keep it alive, will, in the course of time, die a natural death.

Such seems to be the case in Berlin.

French wines, which were boycotted after the occupation of the Ruhr last January, now are offered in whispers to known patrons at some of the first class Berlin hotels, and are displayed in show windows of downtown wine stores. Even French cognac is served, provided it is asked for quietly, at many of the bars patronized by foreigners.

The sign "No French or Belgians sitting here," which appeared like magic over all Berlin almost as soon as the French troops set foot in Essen, have disappeared from most first class cafes and restaurants. They are, however, still displayed prominently at many of the shops in the suburbs and in the beer halls where the patrons are chiefly Germans.

Opera in Buenos Aires Lacks Public Support

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—This city possesses one of the finest opera houses in the world, the Colon. Of recent years the attendance has decreased steadily until today the management is confronted with serious financial difficulties.

Various arguments have been advanced to account for this condition—the local business depression and a change in the public taste since the war—but the most popular answer is that the United States is making opera too expensive for the rest of the world.

America attracts the best artists with high salaries, and even in the summer time, it is alleged, famous singers make much money from concert tours and working for phonograph companies. Hence they have no inclination to come to South America.

Air Travelers Subject To Passport Regulation

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—An air traveler in Europe has to get his passport vised for every country over which he may fly, even if he does not intend to land in that country. This measure was found necessary in order to prevent a passenger, through accident or forced landing, finding himself in a strange state without the proper documentation.
