Newport Bonds Sell Well
NEWPORT, Oct. 6.—Sale of $132,000 in refunding bonds at practically par for the Port of Newport was made this week by Fred Dawson, secretary of the association. The bonds were sold to the Commerce Mortgage Securities company of Portland.

Issuance of refunding bonds is a part of the plan of the Port of Newport to liquidate on indebtedness. At the present rate $25,000 a year is being set aside for retirement and if present schedules are carried out the entire amount of the indebtedness will be eliminated by 1942.

The deal in Portland put the port in excellent financial condition, according to Mr. Dawson. The bonds sold at $99.27 per $100 and brought $131,903.64. They are issued in 10 and 20-year denominations.

Big Fish Catch
GRANTS PASS, Oct. 6.—Commercial fishermen on the upper Rogue this season brought in $10,777 for their salmon catch, this representing the amount received for the 76,985 pounds of Chinooks taken by the gillnetters. About 15 boats were making the nightly drift during the first month as the larger part of the fish was caught in May and June. The salmon averaged 14 cents a pound, being sold locally through the City market.

Marshfield, Oct. 6.—Fine progress is being made in Marshfield on the drive for membership of the Coos County Health association, according to Mrs. D. A. Jones, chairman of the local drive. Workers were out yesterday and today and report a favorable response for memberships. The Rotary club and the Kiwanis club have joined in with the movement and favorable word is expected from the rural communities in the Marshfield district. The drive will close Saturday.

L. C. Bailey Buys Hotel
The Stayton hotel is in new hands. L. C. Bailey and family arrived in Stayton the last of the week, purchased the hotel and Monday morning were in possession.

Mr. Lesley retained a part of the ground adjoining the hotel, having about 60 feet frontage on the east side of the building and about 40 feet on the north. The sample room stands on Mr. Lesley's ground and is still his property. The Lesley family will move into their new house near the ditch on Second street as soon as it is vacated.—Stayton Mail.

A Mysterious Robbery
ROSEBURG, Oct. 6.—Federal officers and Southern Pacific special agents are busily investigating a mail robbery which is thought to have occurred near Boswell Springs some time yesterday. Little has been learned of the robbery and the officers are at a loss to find the perpetrators of the crime.

The first intimation that a robbery had been committed came yesterday afternoon when Carl Kane, a Southern Pacific track walker, came into Boswell Springs very excitedly saying that he had found mail scattered along the railroad tracks between Yoncalla and Boswell Springs. He was advised to report the matter at once, and the postmasters at both Yoncalla and Drain were notified.

They immediately got in touch with the postal authorities at Portland, and with S. P. officers here made an investigation.

Hikes to Cure Disease.
Photo shows Miss Martha Boseman, who is hiking from New York to Galveston, Texas, as a cure for tuberculosis. She was gassed while serving as a nurse during the war. Miss Boseman will enter Columbia University on her return.

Ducks Are Scarce
EUGENE, Oct. 6.—Only a few local ducks were to be found yet this week after opening of the duck shooting season Monday, and hunters ask a little wet weather and a cold storm in the north to bring the water fowl into this district. Principally wood duck, on which the season is closed now, a few mallard and gray ducks are now to be found.

Sportsmen are fixing up their shooting reserves now against the arrival of fowl, however, constructing blinds, repairing boats and gear.

Forest Map Larger and Better
ALBANY, Oct. 6.—Supervisor C. C. Hall of the Santiam forest, returned to Albany last night. Mr. Hall reported this morning that he is in receipt of copies of the new forest map, which now includes a greater range of territory than previously. The new map, based upon the latest available surveys, includes all of Linn county and the eastern section of Benton county, in addition to the entire Santiam forest extending into Marion county.

Mr. Hall reports that the suspension bridge across the Santiam river at Detroit will probably be completed early next week.

MOVIE GOSSIP

BLIGH
Four Acts Vaudeville. Herbert Rawlinson in "Fools and Riches."

"Give us something human," has been the plea of the motion picture public to the exhibitors. In "Trifling With Honor," the Universal-Jewel photoplay which will open at the Liberty theatre Thursday, the public is presented with an intensely human drama of the most gripping interest. The story has its appeal to every class of motion picture fan, because it is the story of a moral delinquent who was the idol of thousands of American boys.

He had a trust to keep—and to keep it he had to tear down and rebuild his inner self.

The story was written by William Slavens McNutt and first appeared in Collier's magazine, and is built around an escaped convict who became a professional ball player to mask his identity. In the underworld he was known as "The Gas Pipe Kid." As the home run king of the Pacific Coast baseball league, he was known as "Bat" Shugrue.

In the years that followed his break from handcuffs to a baseball glove the "Gas Pipe Kid" was forgotten, but "Bat" Shugrue became a name for hero worship on every sand lot on the west coast where kids played baseball.

Rockcliffe Fellows, well remembered for his work in "The Stranger's Banquet" and "Bits of Life," has the role of Bat Shugrue, alias the Gas Pipe Kid. He is supported by Fritz Ridgeway as Ida Malone sweetheart of the Gas Pipe Kid; Buddy Messinger, a youthful star in his own right; Hayden Stevenson, who will be recalled for his excellent work in "The Leather Pushers"; Emmett King, William Welch, Frederick Stanton, Robert Daly and other well-known players.

If ever May McAvoy plans suicide it will not be from the roof of a building. The star is very emphatic on that score.

During the filming of "Her Reputation," the big Thomas H. Ince play which will show at the Oregon theatre on Tuesday, there was a scene on a cafe roof where the little dancer plans to end her life by jumping into the alley below. The script casually stated that the director would have to determine just how far the action should be carried.

John Griffith Wray, the director, being a staunch believer in realism, arranged to shoot the scene from a tall roof. James Corrigan was to grab Miss McAvoy just at the critical moment. The "critical" moment arrived, but Corrigan did not; May toppled over the edge. (Yes, there was a net below, but that did not make the trip any easier.)

After being hoisted out and recovering her speaking paraphernalia, Miss McAvoy said the sensation was just like the thrill she got going down in an elevator when she was a youngster, only a hundred times worse!

Although his new picture, "The White Rose," is a modern story, D. W. Griffith has it continually refer to the past and in making his "exteriors" has particularly chosen backgrounds that represent the south of some years gone by. With his players in modern garb appearing against "atmosphere" of previous days, Mr. Griffith gains an extraordinary artistic effect.

He does not stop at this. Giving his imagination some free rein, he stages a "costume" ball for one of his big scenes. It has direct bearing on the plot. The ball is attended by the very aristocracy of the south of the present day, but a youth less fortunate than the others in wealth and station takes advantage of the fact that the affair is a "masked" one. He manages to get in, and dances with the girl he adores before being forced to leave.

Griffith has his various people appear for this ball in costume of the older days. Crinoline, hoop-skirt, powdered head-dress, uniforms of the Civil War, and even of the Revolutionary War, are shown. The old fashioned minuteman, rollicking gallops, of the lancers, and quadrille, all combine to make the scene one of striking picturesqueness. Mr. Griffith sets this revel amid a perfect bower in an old-fashioned southern home, with balconies flower-hung, and stately pillars and entrances rose-entwined.

In the new production will be seen in leading roles such well-known players as Mae Marsh, Carl rol Dempster, Ivor Novello, Nell Mamilton, Lucille La Verne, Porter Strong and others.

"The White Rose" will be shown at the Oregon theatre starting next Friday evening.

"Calvert's Valley," a William Fox production starring John Gilbert, will be the attraction at the Liberty theatre, for three days, starting Tuesday.

The story, "Calvert's Valley," was written by Margaret P. Montague and the scenario by Jules Furthman. Jack Dillon directed the picture. In addition to the star the cast contains such well-known names as Sylvia Breamer, Philo McCullough, Herschel Mayall and Lulu Warrenton.

While mystery is one of the main elements of the picture, the sporter being kept in suspense until the very end, it also carries the golden thread of a charming love story. According to reports received, the photoplay is an outstanding triumph.

The many recent successes of John Gilbert in Fox Pictures, notably "Monte Cristo," is an omen of great promise for "Calvert's Valley."

Bouche and Gage, present a treat for music lovers. These folks give a varied program of popular and classical numbers which always pleases. Their selection of solos shows good taste and the rendition shows years of practice. Each member of this duo has a pleasing appearance and lots of personality. At Bligh today.

James McNally derives plenty of laughs from his hat manipulations and comedy antics. He is a good asset on the bill as he has an odd but exceptionally enjoyable style of entertainment which goes over big. The act is called "The Boy With The Hat" and it is comedy from start to finish. At the Bligh today.

Kennedy and Grant offer a singing and talking comedy satire which is very pleasing. Miss Kennedy sings her songs in a very commendable manner and the comedy is clean and bright, and not of the slap-stick type. This act is just a little different from the usual comedy act. At the Bligh today.

Tom Post and Gibson Rita present "Let's Get Married," an offering consisting of comedy singing and talking, which more than pleased the audience last night. The talk is bright, snappy and full of laughs which were not overlooked. Both members of this clever team have good voices which are always in perfect harmony and their careful selection of songs makes this offering very entertaining. At the Bligh today.

Long Distance Racing Features Latonia Meet

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 4.—Long distance racing is featuring the Latonia race meeting, which runs for 31 days ending November 3. Purses in the seven stake events alone, offered by the Kentucky Jockey Club, aggregate $105,000.

The chief race of the meeting is the $50,000 Kentucky Special, which will be run Saturday. This is a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at one and three-sixteenths miles, and is the richest event of its kind run in America. The nearest approach to the Kentucky Special was in 1903 at St.

Louis when a $50,000 handicap was offered, and was won by Colonial Girl; but it was a guaranteed stake and the owner of Colonial Girl received $42,000 for his part. In the Kentucky Special the Kentucky Jockey Club adds $50,000 to all entrance fees. Zev and My Own both are entered in this race. Richer races have been run, but none of them was an open handicap for three-year-olds and upward.

The trouble with some of the peaches encountered along Broadway is that they look too good to eat.
