

Foremost Authorities Will Attend American Child Health Association Meeting And Discuss Problems

COURTENAY DINWIDDIE

SALLY LUCAS JEAN

DR. RICHARD A. BOLT

When the first annual meeting of the American Child Health Association opens at Detroit on October 15th, among the delegates attending will be found some of the world's most eminent authorities on all subjects having to do with child health.

The Association will be ably represented by three members of its executive staff, each of them a leader in this crusade on behalf of America's boys and girls, and each will have a message of vast importance to deliver before the distinguished gathering.

Above are shown Courtenay Dinwiddie, the Association's General Executive; Dr. Richard A. Bolt, Director of Medical Service, and Miss Sally Lucas Jean, Director of Health Education. Each has devoted years to the close study of the varied problems in his or her particular field.

As an organizer has gained an enviable reputation wherever the care of children and mothers is a matter of community interest. Dr. Bolt, thoroughly conversant with all phases of clinical and specialized medical work, is constantly in demand as an adviser to local and state health officers and only recently has ended an extensive tour of the Western States during which he was invited by several organizations to help lay the foundation for their respective departments devoted to child health study.

In her direction of child health education Miss Jean has originated the novel methods of instructing school children in "health habits" which are now in almost universal practice. "Playing the Health Game" is a part of the curriculum in thousands of schools, both public and private, and is among the most popular of the subjects taught.

The American Child Health Association has undertaken an objective which, if it is realized, will prove a boon to all elements of our national life. The Association, formed by the merging of the American Child Hygiene Association and the Child Health Organization of America, has Herbert Hoover as its president. It is a clearing house of useful and recent information on child health subjects and is dedicated to the improvement of the race through the logical expedient of reaching the children and the young mothers first. It covers every phase of child life, from the pre-natal period, through the pre-school age and through the school-boy and girl stage.

The administrative offices of the Association are at 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City, and national headquarters is maintained at 832 Seventeenth St., Washington, D. C.

strategy, unpopular though it was to the crowd that wanted to see the Babe "bust 'em," was vindicated.

Meusel Falls Down
For today, the elemental encounter between "brute force" and "master mind"—typified by Babe Ruth and McGraw—was in the background. It was McGraw's turn to apply the punch again with Stengel to decide a pulse-throbbing duel, but the Babe, hero of yesterday, was largely eliminated from the picture, though not of his own choosing. Ruth was ready to carry on where he left off in the second game, but he was given scant opportunity.

Such of McGraw's strategy as came to the surface today was designed to eliminate Ruth from the danger zone and it was done by Neft with neatness and dispatch. Twice the Babe came to bat with prospective runs on the bases; once in the fourth when Joe Dugan started the inning with a double, and again in the eighth with Dugan again on base. But knowing what one devastating clout might do to a game such as Neft and Jones were twirling, McGraw ordered the Babe passed in tentatively, and both times Bob Meusel fell down miserably in the emergency.

Yanks Rally Dangerously
In the fourth Meusel drove in to a double play, eliminating Ruth and himself, while advancing Dugan to third, but Pipp was an easy victim for Frisch and Kelly for the third out.

Again in the eighth, with two out and Dugan on first by virtue of a force-out of Whitey Witt, Ruth was walked and again, with two men on base, Meusel failed. This time he flitted out to Stengel to end the inning.

The inning before, the seventh, saw the most dangerous rally of the Yankees, a sortie that was checked by a sparkling play by Heinie Groh, the most brilliant bit of defense work of the game. With Meusel out, Pipp walked, but on Ward's shot to Bancroft, the first sacker was forced at second, the play in which he twisted the ankle which had kept him out of the game for 10 days prior to the series. After a delay in which his ankle was bandaged and he limped from the field, Schang sent Ward to second with a single to left.

Scott Meets Curve
Scott caught one of Neft's curves for a wicked smash down the third base line. Groh dove, somehow clutched the ball and then lunged forward, fielder and runner reaching the bag simultaneously, it seemed, but Groh was there first by just the fraction of a second necessary to make the putout and end the inning.

George Herman Ruth, the bustling bantam who won the second game of the current world's series for the New York Yankees, was held in check today by the puzzling pitching of Arthur Neft, Giant southpaw, in the two opportunities he had to hit.

Ruth went to the plate four times, but was credited with only two times at bat as he walked on the other occasions. He got one hit, a single, in the first that gave him an average of .500 for the day. He struck out on his other trip.

Another 24 hours of excellent world's series weather was forecast tonight by the local weather bureau. No assurance of such conditions continuing over Sunday, however, was advanced. The official prediction was: "Fair and warmer tonight and Saturday; unsettled and probably cooler Saturday night and Sunday."

Umpire Uses Ears
Umpire Bob Hart of the National league staff, who officiated today at first base, made one of the most unusual decisions an umpire ever is called upon to make. He decided not by what he saw, but by what he heard.

It was in the Yankee half of the eighth inning with one down, Witt got his only hit of the game, a hot single through the box. Hart took a position on the base line between first and second and close to the base line. On the

Ruth Purposely Passed
Coming back in the eighth inning after that crushing blow, Jones displayed his mettle by striking out Bancroft and Groh in succession, but he was withdrawn in favor of a pinch hitter in the Yankee half of that inning when Huggins directed his last desperate, but futile attack. Joe Bush, victim of Stengel's homer in the first game, held the Giants helpless in the ninth.

Facing the first real crisis of the series, John McGraw played his ace, Neft, and the nervy little southpaw came through with flying colors. His work was only slightly less effective than that of Jones. Three times he faced serious threats by the Yankees, and on each occasion he rose to the emergency and turned back his foe. In only one inning, the fifth, did the Yanks gather more than one hit off Neft. He issued three passes, two of them purposely to Ruth, and each time the next play Dugan grounded to Groh who made a sensational stop and threw out Witt at second, Frisch, who took the throw, whipped the ball to first for a double play.

To avoid being struck Hart dropped flat on his face like a doughboy when a shell was bursting. He had an excellent line on mother earth but not on the play. He heard Dugan's hoof strike the first bag before the ball rebounded in Kelly's glove and called the runner safe. And there was no dispute.

WEATHER CHANGES CAUSE SICKNESS

Extreme changes of weather during Fall cause many colds and coughs. For quick relief from throat, chest and bronchial trouble, coughs, colds and croup use Foley's Honey and Tar. Contains no opiates—ingredients printed on the wrapper. Largest selling cough medicine in the world. "Foley's Honey and Tar is the most pleasant and efficient remedy for coughs and colds that I ever saw," writes Wm. Jones, El Dorado, Illinois. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

A pedestrian was confronted in a dark alley by a hold-up man. "Hand over your money, or I'll blow your brains out," was the demand.

"Blow away," was the calm reply. "You can live in New York without brains, but you must have money."

RED CROSS WORK BIG LAST MONTH

Statistics Given in Report for Willamette Chapter By Secretary

September was a busy month for Willamette chapter of the American Red Cross, according to the report of Miss Georgie G. Pettit, executive secretary. In this time she handled affairs of 40 disabled men and their families and 27 compensation cases. Four hospitalization cases received her attention and seven vocational training. Other services were rendered in 28 instances, with 23 receiving federal action.

All of the time was not spent in the office on State street, for during September 54 calls were made and 201 visits received. Telephone calls numbered 243 while 193 letters were written and 90 received.

Three disabled men were loaning $164.29 while two able men received $23.50. One man, now in the service, received a loan of $35.

making a total of $222.79. Three disabled ex-service men paid in $40 on loans while one able man returned $11.39.

Cases of ex-service men under care the first of the month or new and reopened cases totaled 58, with attention given four cases where men are now in the service. These cases included the families of the men in question. Fifty-one civilian families received the attention of the Red Cross during September.

CHILDREN TAUGHT THRIFT

Tuesday will be "bank day" in all the schools of Corvallis beginning next week, and all school children will be constantly reminded of the value of saving by being allowed to bank their savings in their chosen bank through their own school and their own school teacher, according to the Superintendent J. O. McLaughlin announcement made last night by before the Parent-Teacher association of the South school. The announcement met with the enthusiastic approval of all present, and parents expressed their individual approval in discussing the project with the superintendent at the close of the program.

White Mail Boxes

ALBANY, Oct. 12.—An effort is being made by the Albany post-office to have as many rural mail boxes painted white with the name in uniform letters, as possible. The postoffice department has requested 64 people who have rural mailboxes to have this done. R. N. Torbet, local chief, made public the request today.

Mr. Torbet thinks the painting will improve the looks of the highways and of the farm houses. In addition he pointed out that it will be a protection against the weather. Another argument is that such painting will be convenient in transaction of business as well as for the mail carriers.

Owners of mail boxes can do the painting themselves or can hire it done.

The Slaughter Continues

EUGENE, Oct. 12.—With the season for hunting China pheasants opening next Sunday morning, the local sporting goods stores as well as the county clerk's office report an increasing demand for licenses on the part of prospective hunters. Three Sundays will be included in the open season. Birds are reported numerous in the upper valley. The birds have become very tame, and the whole flocks have been crossing

ADMIRAL CUTS BATTLESHIP FOR JUNK

The steel of turrets and armor belts is so hard none but the heaviest tools could be used to break the ship in bits. It was necessary for Admiral Plunkett to wear orthodox goggles and gloves. The workman in the rear is smiling at the straight line the Admiral has the highways in front of automobiles without even making an effort to fly. Many signs with the magic words "No hunting" are seen, but the hunters will manage to get by some way. It is not expected to take a hunter with a good dog long to get the limit.

Ducks and snipes have been hunted since the first of the month, with the season not being expected to reach its zenith until along about Thanksgiving time. January 15 is the last date on which ducks and snipes may be shot.

Mayor Keizer to Represent Oregon

MARSHFIELD, Or., Oct. 12.—Mayor Phil Keizer of North Bend, will represent the state of Oregon at the grave of the unknown soldier in Arlington cemetery at Washington, D. C., on Armistice day.

He will also represent his local post, Sunset "84," of which he is past commander as well as this section of Oregon.

He was a captain in the medical corps and was with the gas and flame division of the 30th engineers in heavy action in France, and at one time was reported killed in action.

Coots Bay to Continue Busy

COQUILLE, Oct. 12.—The winter promises to be a good one on Coots Bay for the working men. There will be plenty of employment according to present indications. Right now there is work for everyone who wants to work, according to W. J. Rust, in charge of the U. S. employment bureau.

The rainy season will prevent the moving of cedar logs over the highways but many of the camps which are engaged in this kind of work will continue to operate and get logs on the ground ready to move in the spring so there will not be many thrown out of employment in the cedar business.

The rainy season will stop much of the road work but the number of men engaged in highway construction is not very large this year so the stopping of the road work will not throw many men on the labor market.

Tourists Still Register

GRANTS PASS, Oct. 12.—Non-resident tourists continue to register at the local station at the Chamber of Commerce. Monday was quite a heavy day, 20 stopping here on that day. Yesterday 12 registered, this being about the daily average. The north and south traffic, about evenly divided. The registration office will be maintained here throughout the winter as a part of the work of the district office of the Oregon State Motor association.

Cascade Forest Reserve
Total receipts from the sale of timber, rent of grazing lands and resort sites in the Cascade national forest for the year ending June 30, 1923, were $23,779.53, according to a report just received here from district headquarters in Portland.

STENDEL WINS GAME FOR MANAGER MCGRAW

for the Yank machine, for with defeat they lost, at least temporarily, the services of their star first baseman, Wally Pipp, who wrenched again his weakened right ankle in sliding to second in the seventh inning and was forced to leave the game.

May Play Today

Just how serious is Pipp's injury could not be determined tonight, but general belief prevailed that it might cost the Yankees his services for the remainder of the series and thereby jeopardize the chances of the American league champions. His ankle, swathed in bandages, Pipp was able to hobble about after the game. He declared he would be ready to go back into the lineup tomorrow, but Miller Huggins, manager of the club, shook his head pessimistically.

"I can't tell until tomorrow whether Pipp will be able to get back into the game or not," declared Huggins. "His ankle is swollen and giving him much pain, of course, but it may be possible to work it around into condition tomorrow. In event he is unable to go in, I will switch Ruth to first, where he finished today's game and probably use Harvey Hendrick or Elmer Smith in right. Or I may send in 'Hinky Haines,' who took Babe's regular post for the last few innings this afternoon.

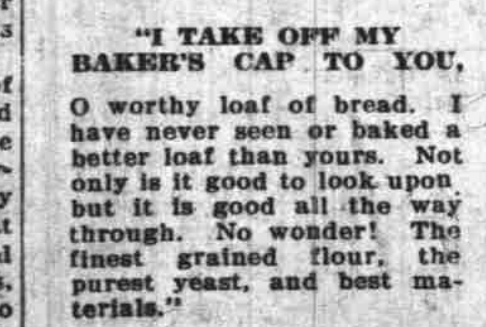

Giants Are Baffled

For eight innings, Jones, hero of a no-hit performance this season, baffled the Giants, save Stengel, with a marvelous change of pace and superb playing, yielding only four scattered hits while Neft was found for six. Except for Stengel, only one Giant got as far as second base, but that mighty wallop of Casey's wrecked the Yankee twirler's masterpiece just when it seemed close to completion.

Ruth Purposely Passed

Coming back in the eighth inning after that crushing blow, Jones displayed his mettle by striking out Bancroft and Groh in succession, but he was withdrawn in favor of a pinch hitter in the Yankee half of that inning when Huggins directed his last desperate, but futile attack.
