

1000 PLANTS ARE KILLED

Determined Fight Against Blister Rust Extends into Marion County

More than 1,000 plants of the cultivated black currant, alternate host of the white pine blister rust, have been destroyed in Marion county as a part of the state-wide campaign against the disease. This is in pursuance of the state law recently passed, declaring the black currant a nuisance because of the seriousness of the white pine blister rust invasion in the northwest. The disease is caused by a plant that lives in the inner bark of the white pine trees and in the leaves of all known kinds of currants and gooseberry bushes.

Other Currants Immune
Blister rust spores coming from long distances will produce the disease on cultivated black currants when other currants fail to take it. Again it produces spores in abundance and spreads the disease to both pines and currants. Destruction of black currants in regions where pine forests are grown will tend to prevent the disease from coming in. It never passes from pine to pine.

White pine trees in the northwest when attacked by the fungus die in from two to five years, often leaving the leaves in place. The injury is similar in appearance to that done by fire. In British Columbia where the disease is prevalent, considerable damage has been done to white pine forests, according to L. N. Gooding, junior pathologist of the United States bureau of plant industry.

Great Damage in East
The disease has already done great damage in the New England states and is costing thousands of dollars annually for its control there and in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The disease in Europe has made the growing of white pine impossible. The white pine of the northwest is more susceptible than the white pine of the eastern states or of Europe. The pine forests of Oregon afford a large source of revenue. The damage in case the forests become infected with the blister rust will seriously impair the white pine and sugar pine lumbering industries, Mr. Gooding says.

Men in Field
Mr. Gooding, who is located at Corvallis, is carrying on an eradication campaign in cooperation with the black currant owners of the state. Last summer five men were in the field looking for the disease and eradicating the black currants. More than 300 fire wardens, the regular forest service officials, the county inspectors, and the college extension service are on the lookout for the disease, and are assisting in the eradication campaign.

More than thirty thousand cultivated black currant plants have been destroyed in the entire state, 17,000 by the owners themselves. The school children of the state are also helping locate the plants.

ALBANY COLLEGE FAILS TO COME

Rathbun Compelled to Form Two Bearcat Teams to Entertain Crowd

Claiming that a large number of injured players prevented them from making a formidable showing against Willamette, Albany college yesterday canceled its game with the Bearcats, scheduled for the afternoon, giving the local men less than two hours' notice before the time set for the opening whistle. In order that the crowd should not be completely disappointed, Rathbun staged a mix between two Bearcat squads.

The game between the two Willamette teams, called the Cardinals and the Golds, provided an interesting battle. The Gold players, most of whom were first-string men, captured the battle, 19 to 0. With both teams knowing the other's signals, star playing before the Willamette supporters was the chief incentive, and both squads put up a lively scrap. Lillegren made the stellar play of the game when he intercepted a pass and tore 70 yards down the field, giving the Gold squad its first touchdown. In the second quarter Patton carried the ball over the goal line in a cross buck play, and in the final period Findley nabbed a well placed pass and traveled the 35 yards to the line. Only one place kick was successful.

The two squads lined up as follows:
Gold—Patton, Fashnacht, Oliver, Stemsipher, Maistrom, Logan, Findley, Isham, Stolzheise, Wilkinson, Lillegren, Booth, Pearce.
Cardinal—Huston, Sherwood, Rhodes, Chapin, Shirmacher, Mason, Edmundson, White, Nakoma, Moore, Erickson and Caughlan.
