Court's Authority Is Defined in Opinion

A. J. Moore, district attorney for Deschutes county, has been advised by Attorney General Van Winkle that the county court has no authority to make a change in the valuation placed upon a taxpayer's property by the county assessor. Also it is held that the court cannot revise or review the rulings made by the board of equalization relative to valuations on property for purposes of taxation.

The opinion holds further that the court cannot reduce or increase the property owner's taxes as fixed by the equalization board, nor can it make any change whatever in the assessment rolls after they have been examined, corrected and approved by the equalization board.

But it is also held that in a case where a taxpayer was resisting payment of a tax and was making threats to begin suit to enjoin its collection, the county court, to prevent litigation and settle the controversy, could lawfully and in good faith enter into a compromise agreement with the taxpayer and accept a less amount in full payment and satisfaction of the larger amount of taxes originally levied against the property in question.

Ministers in the various churches will devote one of their sermons upon general topics suggested by the national movement. A different phase of the movement will be developed each day.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a program which was followed by refreshments served in the library. Nearly all of the faculty and a large representation of parents were present.

able after receipt of the license blanks in order to avoid the congestion in the department around the first of the year in the event they fail to do so," said Mr. Koser. "The business of registering motor vehicles has grown in this state at a most unprecedented rate, when it is reflected that in a short period of 10 years the registrations have increased from slightly over 16,000 to 162,000. The total registrations for the year 1914 aggregated 16,347, while for the year 1923 it is estimated that it will not be less than 165,000. The importance, therefore, of giving immediate attention to securing a 1924 license is apparent so that all cars desiring to operate without interruption after January 1, 1924, may be equipped with appropriate licenses for that year."
