Not only the music lovers, but the citizens of Salem welcome to her own home town, Winifred Byrd. "America's wonder pianist." It is always to an enthusiastic audience of "just home folks" that Miss Byrd appears in her home con-

Since her debut in New York five seasons ago, her success has been steadily growing with each appearance. Everywhere she is recognized as a leading woman pianist of the American concert stage. She has temperament, force, tone, technique, and an abundant spirit by virtue of which she has attained the high place she holds among American-born pianists of her generation.

So tiny is she as she stands before the stolid, massive looking instrument, one wonders where is the strength in those tiny hands, the force in the small body to bring forth these crashing crescendos of Schumann, or the interlocked octaves in the B major section of the Scherzo of Chopin. One of the New York critics has said of her: "If Guiomar Novae is the queen of Titania, Winifred Byrd is the Puck of Pianodom!"

Although Miss Byrd has been in Salem since the first of last week, she has deprived herself of the pleasure of a visit with her own home people. She has been spending her energy practicing and putting the final touches to the home concert.

A number of friends gathered at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Luckner on Laurel avenue Friday night to celebrate the opening of the new residence with an informal housewarming. Hysler and children, Mrs. Edgar Willard, Mr. and Mrs. H. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. A. Flala and Mrs. Flala, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. E. Rinderman, Mr. and Mrs. G. Trott, Mr. A. At the hour of eight, last evening in St. Joseph's Episcopal church, Miss Margaret Bauman and Wayne Shumaker were married by the Rev. H. D. Chambers, who read the simple ring ceremony before about 60 friends and

DAN CUPID BRINGS NEW HAPPINESS TO MRS. CARUSO, WIDOW OF NOTED TENOR

Mrs. Enrico Caruso.

Mrs. Enrico Caruso, widowed by the tragic death of the famous tenor, is soon to remarry, according to reports from Europe, verified by her family. The man Dan Cupid has found to bring happiness into her life again is Capt. E. A. Ingram, wealthy Scot, whom she met three months ago. Caruso died in August, 1921.

relatives of the bride and groom. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Carlton Smith sang "O Fair, O Sweet, and Holy." To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Floma Proudly, the bridal party took their places before the chancel of palms and yellow chrysanthemums, whereon burned lighted tapers. During the entire ceremony Miss Proudly played the soft melody of the "Spring Song."

The bride wore a traveling suit of dark blue with a black fur and a small, close fitting hat in the Chinese mode. Her corsage was of pink bride's roses. Miss Pearl Pike, in a gown of dark blue silk, with a fur neckpiece and a corsage of Cecil Brunner roses, attended the bride, and Mike Edwards acted as best man. Miss Ruth Edwards and Miss Hester Hillpot were ushers.

After the ceremony the young couple left by motor for a week's tour through California, after which they will be at home to their friends at 480 North Cottage street.

For the past three years Mrs. Shumaker has been clerk in the traffic division in the office of the secretary of state. Mr. Shumaker has been working for the Standard Oil company here in the capacity of collector for the past year. Since coming to Salem both Mr. and Mrs. Shumaker have made many warm friends.

Prior to the wedding the bride-elect was the motif for a number of showers and informal affairs. On November 1 Miss Marjorie Mellinger and Miss Margaret Pierce entertained for her with a miscellaneous shower. A number of girls in the office of the secretary of state gave a surprise shower for the bride at her home last week.

The bust of St. Joan of Arc, recently brought from Rome by Fr. J. R. Buck, which has been on display for the past week in the Liberty street window of the Hartman Brothers jewelry store, has been attracting much comment and admiration from passers-by. The bust is a worthy piece of plastic art, and the lights in which it is placed display its artistic virtues to particular advantage. This is the original work of a modern sculptor of Rome, Carlo Manetti.

In a quaint little shop on the Piazza di Roma in Rome Father Buck found this piece, and at first sight it held him with a curious fascination. Again and again he visited the shop to see the statue, until when it came time to leave Rome he purchased it, bringing it home to enjoy for his own. In this same shop were two other full size statues which he has been contemplating purchasing for the church. However, the tremendous cost of the freight alone makes it almost too impractical for consideration. The freight on the bust of St. Joan of Arc from Rome to Salem amounted to $57.

It will be noticed that the statue has the effect of being carved from two kinds of marble, but the artist informed Father Buck that the statue is made of one piece, the lower part of the figure being treated by a certain oil process which results in the fawn mottled effect.

Everyone knows the story of Joan of Arc, the simple little peasant maid who heard the angel voices urging her to lead her France to victory against the English. Fired with the glow of her divine inspiration she pleaded with the king again and again to let her go forth and lead her discouraged countrymen to victory. But she was just a simple minded peasant maid, and the king only laughed. At last she persuaded the king with the intense sincerity of her mission, and on a white horse she led the French soldiers against the enemy in an unbelievable victory. Down through the succeeding centuries, the story of her courage has been an inspiration to the French. She has long been immortalized in the hearts of many, but not until during the past year was she canonized by the Catholic church, which entitles her to the title, St. Jeanne d'Arc.

It is interesting to know that St. Joseph's church of Salem is the first church in the west to have dedicated a window to the new saint. The window was presented to the church by Eugene Eckerlin, in memory of his son, Ernest, who died on the battlefields of France in the late war.

About 250 members of the Adventist church met at McCornack hall Monday night to celebrate the birthday of the pastor, the Rev. H. C. Ernston. A very delightful time was enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served, and music for the evening was furnished by the Portland male quartet. During the evening Dr. Ernston was presented with an attractive set of upholstered furniture.

Among the Eugene visitors who came to Salem for the Salem-Eugene high school football game Monday was Miss Lucille Higby, a teacher in the Eugene high school. While in Salem Miss Higby was a guest at the home of Miss Gussie Niles on Marion street.

The first of the series of lectures on topics of current interest was a feature of the program of the regular monthly meeting of the Etokta club, which met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Fisher. Mr. William Gahlsdorf talked on French china and pottery, giving a historical background of the making and uses of chinaware, and also pointed out the ways in which to discriminate between well made china and the poorer qualities. With samples of Japanese were English and German china and bits of pottery of different designs with which he illustrated his lecture.

Reports of the county federation meeting of last month in Jefferson were given by Mrs. E. E. Fisher and Mrs. R. K. Ohling. During the afternoon the women kept their hands busy hemming towels for the Salem hospital.

Mrs. William Gahlsdorf was a special guest of the afternoon, and two new members, Mrs. Charles Jamison and Mrs. Henry Fletcher, were present for the first time Yellow marigolds brightened the rooms of the home of Mrs. H. S. Poisal yesterday afternoon when she entertained the members of the Monday Afternoon bridge club at a 1 o'clock luncheon and an afternoon of bridge. This is a two table bridge club, the members of whom are Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. R. B. Goodin, Mrs. Herbert Haid, Mrs. Ann Klein, Mrs. J. W. Lewis, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Mrs. R. E. Anderson, and Mrs. H. S. Poisal.

Mrs. George E. Shaw was a luncheon guest but did not remain for the games. The high score of the afternoon went to Mrs. A. T. Wain who took the place of Mrs. Ann Klein who is out of town for a short time.

Mrs. William E. Kirk was hostess to the regular meeting of G chapter of PEO Sisterhood at her home Monday evening. After the business had been dispensed with Miss Grace Smith read a paper on "Hawaii" after which the rest of the evening was spent talking over the plans for the philanthropic work of the chapter of the year. Nothing definite was decided upon. During the evening Mrs. W. D. Smith was initiated into the sisterhood.

Adolfo de la Huerta.

Regardless of who captures the nomination for president of Mexico at the convention of the Co-operativists party Nov. 20, the nominee will carry a radical plank in his platform. And as the Co-operativists now dominate the political field the nomination is considered practically equivalent to an election. Adolfo de la Huerta, who recently resigned as secretary of the treasury, is favored by party leaders but it is rumored the more radical members may bolt and back Gen. Plutarco Calles. The party has declared itself in favor of the "socialist system."
