STILLMAN DRAWS WIFE AND INDIAN INTO GLARE AGAIN

Mrs. James A. Stillman, Baby Guy, upper left; Stillman below, and Fred Beauvais, above at right.

The filing of an appeal by James A. Stillman, millionaire New York banker, to have the divorce won by his wife, "Fifi" Potter Stillman, a year ago, set aside, promises to bring into the "pitiless light of publicity" again the romance of Mrs. Stillman and the Indian guide Fred Beauvais. Stillman, with his appeal, reveals the much talked of but hitherto banned "confession" note of Mrs. Stillman which her husband has long wished to use in substantiating his claim that Guy Stillman, whom the court ruled his son, is really the son of Beauvais.

TELLS FRANCE'S NEEDS.

President Millerand in a speech reviewing France's foreign and domestic affairs proclaimed a policy of better relations with the Allies and for more births, less expenses and lots of common sense. Taxes, the President said, had risen from 460 gold francs per capita prior to the war to 2,400 francs last year.

ILLINOIS SOLON IS BOOMED FOR HOUSE SPEAKER

Representative Martin B. Madden.

A group of middle-west Republican members of the house has started a boom for Representative Martin B. Madden as speaker of the house when congress convenes next month. Their plan is to have Speaker F. K. Gillette given an ambassadorial post—probably to Italy—that his place may be filled by Madden without any embarrassment to the former.

The Yale bulldog and Princeton Tiger are now chewing raw meat in preparation for their annual grid battle at the Yale bowl Nov. 17. And because of its remarkable reversal of form this season Yale is confident of not only wiping out the 3 to 0 defeat of last year but that disastrous 20 to 0 licking of 1920, Yale has a big edge on victories won in the annual tussle, having annexed 24 up to this year, while but 13 are chalked up for Princeton. Nine games have ended in ties.

PAT SOMERSET, JR.

The marriage of Edith Day and Pat Somerset ended a martial tangle of two years' duration. Miss Day was in London when she separated from her husband. A few months afterward Somerset's wife applied for divorce, naming Miss Day. On the return to this country of Miss Day and Somerset, Carl Carlton, the husband of Miss Day, started deportation proceedings against Somerset. When he learned of the infant in the case he halted his case.

LABOR MEETING.

"America's wage earners have won tremendous triumphs during the year," Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a statement regarding the opening of the forty-third annual convention of the federation now in session in Portland, Ore. He added that labor will now plan in this meeting to "go forth in conquest of progress and greater achievement."
