OREGON—"Red Lights."
LIBERTY—"The Fair Cheat."
BLIGH—Ichabod Crane in "Headless Horseman."

"Everything comes to him who waits," according to the old maxim, and for once this came true in the life of Will Rogers, who plays the role of Ichabod Crane in "The Headless Horseman," or "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," the scheduled attraction playing at the Bligh today and tomorrow. It has always been, according to Mr. Rogers, his desire to play certain roles or represent certain characters in modern dramas. One of these was "Macbeth" the other was "Rip Van Winkle" and the last was Ichabod Crane in "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." When asked why he liked the first two mentioned, Mr. Rogers replied in his own inimitable way that he always found that a person who was not good-looking could always make a bigger success when heavily disguised.

Have you ever been the center of a plot? If not, you should surely see Wilfred Lytell, who is the center of the plot in "The Fair Cheat," at the Liberty today.

While Lytell is the center of the plot, he is not the whole center of the story. The plotters, Dorothy Mackall and Edmund Breese take their share of the picture. The story concerns a beautiful girl, daughter of a millionaire and her wedding to a penniless young man.

They plot to prove him true, but all their plots threaten to miscarry through some unforeseen happenings. The girl gets herself mixed up in a near scandal with a Broadway troupe and an ambitious press agent, while the young man thoroughly involves himself with the police in an attempt to prevent his future father-in-law from being robbed.

The story is exceptional because you cannot guess the ending. The cast is exceptional because of the care in their selection. The direction is exceptionally good because Burton King did it.

Boys' Chorus Hold Practice
Under the direction of Dr. H. C. Epley, the Sale portion of the Whitney boys' chorus held another successful rehearsal at the YMCA last night. Though the regular business session was not held, it was decided in the future to hold rehearsals Friday night instead of Thursday night beginning next week.

week. Practice will begin at 7:30 o'clock. T. E. McCroskey told stories to the boys while waiting for Dr. H. C. Epley to arrive. There was no change in the name of the organization last night, but this will probably be done at the next meeting. Parents of several of the boys were present.

Annual Open House

Plans are now being formulated for the annual open house to be held by the YMCA Tuesday, January 1, afternoon and evening. A committee has been put in charge of the program and is expected to meet within a few days to complete the arrangements. Carle Abrams is chairman of the committee. R. R. Boardman, physical director of the YMCA, has been working for several weeks in getting some special numbers in readiness. These plans will be presented to the committee for its approval. Open house last year was attended by more than 2000 people, who thronged the rooms all day and until 10 o'clock at night. The program, in the main will follow that of last year with some marked improvements.

Pendleton Woolen Mills Leases Portland Building

Convinced that Portland is the logical distributing center for the products of its various factories, the Pendleton Woolen Mills company has taken a five-year lease on a new building that is to be erected solely for its occupancy on property at the northeast corner of Ninth and Flanders streets, and owned by C. R. Davis of San Francisco.

When completed next spring the building, which is to be a three-story and basement brick structure primarily of the warehouse type, will house the sales and office headquarters of the company for the entire Pacific coast. Thenceforth the products of the company's woolen mills in Eureka, Cal., Washougal, Wash., and Pendleton will be cleared through the home building in Portland and it is expected that the increased efficiency resulting from the new selling plan will be accompanied by an increased output of woolen goods at each of the mills.

C. P. Bishop of Salem is president of the Pendleton woolen mills, and his sons are associated with him in executive capacities.

The new building in Portland, which will be erected under the supervision of Strong & McNaughton, is to cost nearly $40,000.

Santa Claus to Board Southern Pacific Trains

Santa Claus will board Southern Pacific limited trains Christmas eve. This was announced yesterday by J. H. R. Parsons, passenger traffic manager for the Southern Pacific lines, who stated that in order to gladden the hearts of children, also grown-ups who may be traveling on Christmas day and Christmas eve, the railroad will place elaborately decorated Christmas trees on all limited trains and distribute candy to the kiddies.

Silver tipped firs from the highest peaks of the Sierra Nevada mountains are being obtained for the occasion, Parsons stated. The dining car stewards on the limited trains will represent Santa Claus and immediately after dinner on Christmas eve all the children on the trains, both old and young, will gather around the tree in the
