RESTORE DRAFT WITH CHANGES

Players Developed Through League Not Eligible to Draft Regulations

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Restoration of the draft with a slight modification was accepted by two of the class AA leagues of the nation, the Pacific league and the American association, here today, acting independently of the international league which refused to consider the draft proposal.

The American association and the Pacific coast league under the new management agree to accept surplus players from the major leagues under condition that they will be eligible to the draft for a price of $5,000.

After an all-day conference in which the representatives of the Pacific coast league fought for an increased draft price of $10,000, the proposal was accepted.

Under the acceptance of the new plan, the major league players, released to clubs in these two leagues, will be eligible to the draft, one player only to be drafted from each club. The players developed by the club will not be subject to the draft, and will be eligible for sale.

Officials of the two leagues accepting the plan said their clubs would be benefitted inasmuch as players with major league training would be available. Oscar Reichow of the Los Angeles club said acceptance of the plan had become necessary because of the scarcity of seasoned players for their teams.

The national association officials also adopted a resolution placing the minor league managers in the same class as players as regards to their contracts.

J. Cal Ewing of the Oakland club, was elected by acclamation to the board of arbitration to succeed William McCarthy, the deposed president of the Coast league. The association passed a resolution deploring the loss of McCarthy and expressing appreciation of his services on the board.

The minor leaguers while not taking any official action, opposed meeting in the future with the major leaguers.

The minors accepted the amendments such as had a bearing on minor leagues that were acted upon by the major leagues yesterday

SCHEDULE READY FOR BASKETBALL

First of the high school basketball games will be played here in the new gymnasium Monday night when the red and black quintet meets a picked team from the alumni. Eighteen games will be played this season, nine of which will be on the home floor.

Two letter men are being used as a nucleus for a team this year. Patterson, captain, and Fallin. The lack of a center is causing some concern as there are only two contenders for the position, Drager of Grant junior high, and Gould, who played end on the football team last season.

Two days after the students gather following the holiday recess will see the opening game, with Salem playing Newberg at Newberg. One good trip has been arranged by Arthur Hamilton, manager, when Salem plays The Dalles and Hood River January 11 and 12.

With the season rapidly approaching the opening contest work of pruning the candidates will begin by Coach Huntington in order that he may be able to give his squad his personal attention.

Basketball Prospect at Oregon Strong This Year

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 13.—Basketball prospects at the University of Oregon loom bright this year with seven lettermen in school, and an intensive practice schedule has swung underway.

The seven veterans are Bohler-trained men, and this year they are expected to develop into a formidable machine. George Bohler, who resigned as coach last year, spent two years in training this squad, and his system is believed to be very effective. This year William Rinehart, who learned the rudiments of the game in 1920 under Bohler, will coach, and he is expected to follow out the general program. Hugh Latham, '24, of Silverton, Ore., is the only member of the famous 1920 squad left, and he is expected to be a great help in organizing the five this season. He was the unanimous choice of all critics for the all-coast position of center.

Oregon faces a hard 13-game schedule this year, of which six will be played in Eugene. The complete schedule for the season is as follows: Feb. 4 and 5, Washington at Eugene; Feb. 8 and 9, OAC at Eugene; Feb. 13, Idaho at Moscow; Feb. 16, Whit-

Last year this plan was first carried out by the coaches of the valley, who met at Corvallis and there arranged their schedules instead of by correspondence. The games were decided upon and all teams were satisfied. As the plan seemed to be successful this year, the coaches are meeting again to plan their football schedules.
