

YOUTHFUL DREAM REALIZED
BY SALEM OXFORD WINNER

(By Catherine Spall in Oregon Sunday Emerald.)
A dream of a youth in high school, a rosy dream, though overshadowed by an "if," and then a dream of a collegian, materialized and realized. The youthful dreamer whose dreams came true, is William Arthur Rosebraugh of Oregon Rhodes scholar at Oxford.

Mr. Rosebraugh, who measures over six feet in height, weighs 155 pounds, has chestnut-brown hair, and blue-gray eyes, strikes one as exemplifying a typical American college man. He walks with dignity, is well-groomed, and displays his poise.

"How did I feel after examinations were over?" he removed his pipe, and mused as he prepared his answer to the question. "I was pretty low just before hearing the results of them. Why, it didn't sink in for a couple of days. I thought it might be a mistake. My reply was almost boyishly unaffected. Rosebraugh wasn't informed of his being chosen until a relative who had read the decision in a paper phoned his congratulations.

The Oregon track star expressed the desire to win his "blue" (Oxford's blazer is blue) in track in which Oxford competes in athletics against Cambridge for one school. "I intend to try out all English games, soccer, tennis and rowing." Included in those with which he will probably experiment will be rugby and cricket. Students at Oxford are required to spend three or four hours each day with sports, he declared.

Oxford, England, is about 50 miles out of London. Rosebraugh plans to commute back and forth frequently, spending much of his time at the "Inns of Court" in London. Seeing an uninformed look appear on the reporter's face he hastened to explain that when the legal profession in England was like a guild, apprentices to this occupation used to meet at these inns and talk over questions of legal interest. In England of today, they are passed in that respect, but every student of law is now required to take a few meals each month at the Inns of Court before they are entitled to be admitted to the English bar. Rosebraugh will do this as much as he desires to hang up on his wall an "English shingle." The novelty of the affair also appeals to him.

Rosebraugh will finish his University work in the spring take his bar examination soon after, brush up on his Latin (he even said Oxford examination questions are sometimes written in the Latin language), and will leave some time in the fall.

Oxford begins in early October. A peculiar system of school attendance prevails in the English institution. There are six weeks of school, followed by six weeks of vacation, with a longer vacation occurring in the summer, during which the Oxford scholars generally travel in Europe. The abbreviated six weeks of vacation are not wasted, the Rhodes scholar stated, for it is then that most of the work is done, time during the six school weeks, being taken up with attendance at lectures. Rosebraugh's plans for the summer vacations are rather indefinite yet, but he hopes to travel in Europe, to observe political institutions, view the lives of the people there, and see the art treasures.

"Do I like tea?" he shot the quizzical look and typical gaze of a lawyer as he answered the query after having made certain he was

Community Club Holds Meeting at Mt. Angel

Accepting an invitation extended them at the last meeting of the Community club by Rev. Father Alcuin, more than a hundred members of the club motored to the college on the evening of December 11.

They were accorded a hearty welcome by the Rt. Rev. Father Abbot Bernard Murphy, O. S. B., and the Fathers Alcuin and Odilo.

A pleasing program was prepared for the visitors, which began with an inspection of the biology laboratories and there to the various other departments, class rooms, museum, study and music halls and the chemistry laboratory. Interesting short talks were given in explanation by the heads of the different departments, as the crowd wended their way through the building led by the Fathers Alcuin and Odilo.

Arriving at the college auditorium a fine surprise was in store for the visitors. First the assembly was addressed by Father Alcuin, rector of Mt. Angel college, who expressed his gratification to the visitors for the numerous attendance. He spoke very feelingly of the future of the college. He told his listeners what Mt. Angel college has done, and is still doing for the education of young entrusted to its care. He dwelt on the necessity of a good education, and lauded his predecessors for the excellent work they had performed. He asked for a better understanding between city and college. He felt that there is really need for a better acquaintance between the two. The problems of each affect the other, in that they are bound up in the purpose of giving the best of their services to those within their precincts. He asked for the cooperation of the community in the things presented by the college in the class room, the stage and the campus. He invited the community to attend the athletic meets thus showing that they are alive to the things done by the college and the student body.

THEATRES MOVIES

If press criticisms count for anything, and we have every reason to believe they do, the original Stetson's production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which will be seen in the Grand theatre, for matinee and evening performances, on Monday Dec. 31, the matinee commencing at 2:30, has caught the public fancy. The different theaters where the offering has been presented are said to have been crowded at every performance and no reasonable doubt remains but that the season's gross business will reach a figure that will astonish the theatrical world. For a play holding the boards for over 60 years, during which period not a single day has elapsed when it has been entirely absent from the theater, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" still exhibits wonderful vitality. Scorned, ridiculed and rejected by the elite of the more important theaters a few years ago, it is now ensconced in the very homes of art and refinement, and thousands are weeping and laughing nightly at its various incidents. I doubt whether there has ever been so lavish and adequate a production of this well known drama as that which the original Stetson's company will bring to this city. The reputation of Leon W. Washburn, the dean of American theatrical managers, as a producer of big productions is well known to most theater goers, but few are aware of the fact that this actor's production of the late dramatist Beecher Stowe's immortal masterpiece is one of the most stupendous ever sent on tour. So many actors and actresses of pleasing reputations and personally have never before been seen in any presentation of this well known play. The company numbers about 20 persons, including a sextette of genuine artists, who have been especially engaged to present their old-time southern melodies, so essential for a proper and satisfactory production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

the doors of the United States had not been closed irrevocably against them. They sat and listened with their more fortunate companions to the carols of church singers and eagerly stepped in line to take a gift from Santa Claus, who had something for each. The carols were sung in many languages.

It's hard to understand what some motorists are driving at.
