THEATRES MOVIES

LIBERTY—"She Loves and Lies."
OREGON—"The Virginian."
GRAND—"Drivin' Fool."

Florence Vidor, playing the leading feminine role in "The Virginian," at the Oregon theater, clad in trousers and back country leather boots, entered the women's classes at rodeo recently held at Lone Pine, Cal., where the company was on location. While Miss Vidor failed to win a first prize, she surprised her huskier sisters of the mountain country.

In "She Loves and Lies," starring Norma Talmadge which opens at the Liberty theater tomorrow, one of the two roles in which the charming and versatile actress appears is that of a young art student.

In order to get realism and proper atmosphere into the picture, Miss Talmadge and Director Chester Withey spent many weary days "doing" Greenwich Village. But the result was gratifying, for when they emerged they had secured some of the finest scenes existing in New York's historic Latin quarter.

In "The Drivin' Fool," the six-reel feature coming to the Grand theater tonight, Wally Van, the star, makes a cross country automobile drive from San Francisco to New York. Many times, while going over the snow-topped Rocky mountains Wally, with the help of Horatio St. Albans, his dusky partner from a South Sea Isle, was forced to cut his way through heavy snowdrifts which had completely covered the road. This, of course, was a great disadvantage to Van, as he was out to set a record for the trip, as well as for the picture. While on the Lincoln highway, about the halfway mark, Wally was humming along between 55 and 60 miles an hour when just beyond a turn in the road he spied a hay wagon which made it impossible for him to pass. It was useless to apply the brakes, and Wally's only alternative was to drive off the road. He did, but he didn't notice a ditch and a few hours later, when Van and Horatio regained their senses and started their journey once more, they found the same hay wagon "filling" the road some 100 feet ahead of them, ignorant of the misfortune it had caused them. We feel safe in saying that Wally waited for it to turn off the highway before he attempted to pass it again.

JUDGES SEEK SOLUTION TO TAX PROBLEMS

to the state school for the feeble-minded where they were shown through the several buildings and the industries of the institution were explained.

Governor Pierce, in his address at the girls' school, emphasized the point that the various communities of the state should be organized so that it would not be necessary for the boys and girls to be sent to the state schools to become added burdens upon the taxpayers. He urged the county officials and the churches to work to this end.

Management Praised
Secretary Koser spoke in a general way of the work of the girls' school and lauded the management of Mrs. Clara Patterson, superintendent of the school, as had also the governor.

Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. McGuire reiterated the thought expressed by the governor that the communities should see to it that there is no necessity for the boys and girls to be sent to state institutions. Mrs. McGuire pleaded for a closer bond of connection between the schools and the homes.

Judge Kanzler in a talk of five minutes, stressed the point that it is the neglectful parents who are delinquent and not their children.

Favor Cottage Plan
Superintendent L. M. Gilbert, of the boys' training school, was official host to the visitors last night after the judges and commissioners had spent the afternoon going over the grounds and buildings. Each department was inspected and Superintendent Gilbert was complimented upon for the order maintained and the splendid way in which his boys waited upon the tables. Judges and commissioners praised the cooking and welcomed the band.

After dinner the gathering met in the chapel, where Superintendent Gilbert spoke briefly, followed by Chester A. Lyons, superintendent of the "Big Brother Farm" near Lebanon. Governor Walter M. Pierce was a special guest.

In general, the visitors favored the cottage plan of housing the boys. Many of the judges saw boys that they had sent to the school and several private conversations were held with Superintendent Gilbert.

Delbert Reeves Legion Post Arranges Banquet

SILVERTON, Or., Jan. 10.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The Delbert Reeves post, No. 7, American legion, has made plans for a big affair to take place on Tuesday, Jan. 15. The affair will open with a banquet at the Methodist church, to which the community clubs of Silverton and Mt. Angel have been invited as guests. The American legion wishes to show their appreciation of the cooperation which the business men give the post.

Commander Kiddle of Island City, Or., will be with the legion and will be the chief speaker of the evening. Following the business men's banquet the Legionnaires will hold a meeting at the Knights of Pythias hall. To this the legion posts from Salem, Independence, Woodburn and Dallas have been invited. Again Commander Kiddle will be the main speaker. State Vice Commander George Griffith and Adjutant Harry Nelson will also be present. The evening's meeting will be followed by an oyster spread.

Lutheran Church Holds Annual Business Meeting

SILVERTON, Or., Jan. 10.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The St. John's Lutheran church of Silverton held its annual business meeting Wednesday of this week. The budget for the past year showed the total receipts to be $4500. For the coming year it was raised to $4700. Sixty-six new members were admitted to the church during 1923. The congregation decided to hold a mission festival during the early spring. Another matter discussed was that of the pastor's vacation. It was finally decided that he be given one month's vacation during the summer. He was given the opportunity of selecting the month he wished. Rev. S. Lindseth is pastor of the St. John's congregation.

Elections made during the business session included that of board of trustees. To this Edwin Overlund, Oscar Olsen and H. B. Jorgenson were elected. Members of the board of deacons are A. A. Grinde, Rev. N. W. Sjovangen and Peter Westby. Ushers for the following year are Jonas Byberg, Oscar Johnson, Irvin Rue and Howard Jorgenson. Other offices filled included organist, Miss Nora Skjelver, Mrs. Gordon McCall, assistant organist; O. K. Sebo, secretary; A. A. Ulvin, financial secretary; Thomas Strand, treasurer.

State Pro Agents Do Well in Coos County

Although Sheriff Ellingsen of Coos county is said to have been one of the loudest at the Portland meeting of peace officers in his complaints at the "pussyfooting" of state prohibition agents, George L. Cleaver, state prohibition commissioner, exhibits a letter indicating that Ellingsen cooperated closely with the agents who were sent into Coos county and appeared to be satisfied with their work there. Cleaver says Ellingsen was allowed to take the credit for the work done.

The letter is from District Attorney Ben S. Fisher, who says that Paul and Carl Munpowar, the two state agents, were in Coos county 26 days prior to the first of the year, and that they did good work in a thoroughly ethical and gentlemanly manner. As a result of their work there were 13 arrests and convictions with the assistance of the sheriff, fines totaling $5150, and jail sentences aggregating 190 days. Fisher said he wanted the two agents returned to Coos county after the first of the year.
