PERKING UP IN THE SANTIAM COUNTRY

The East End of Marion County Going to Make Us Sit Up, They Say

The people up in the Santiam country are growing cocky—they are beginning to say their east end of Marion county is going to be the richest and most important end.

And if you have been up Stayton way lately, or in Turner or Annsville or Sublimity or West Stayton, or Mill City or Lyons, you have heard a lot of talk about the coming boom in the Santiam mining district.

Millions and Millions

Ever since the woods were burned, and Mt. Jefferson was a hole in the ground, it has been known that there is a lot of wealth under the hills and mountains up there, all the way from a little above Stayton, clear through to the plains of Jefferson county; that there is enough gold and copper and silver and lead in the bowels of the earth up there to pay the money cost of the World War, and then some.

But now they are talking of getting some of it out. The working of the Lot-Larsen mine, with a concentration plant, now being gotten into operation, and all kinds of rumors of new values, is stimulating things in the Santiam district.

The Silver King mine people, with their operations near the old Elkhorn postoffice, are getting a new move on. Their fans are saying their drills will soon reach a vein that will show fabulous values.

Looks Like a Boom

The stockholders and managers of all the other mining concerns that have done development work in that region—and there are dozens of them—are looking up their old certificates and dreaming of big things to come.

In fact, the air is full of things of which mining booms are made. There is no doubt that, in time, vast wealth will be poured out of the Santiam mining district. The wealth is there; ores in all but unlimited supply. And perhaps the time for big developments is very near at hand.

They are saying, up there, that there is to be a railroad to ship out the ores.

They are saying a Denver crowd is looking to putting in a smelter in that district.

They are whispering of a great development of the many water powers up there in the shadows of Mt. Jefferson—and there are a lot of fine powers, capable of development at comparatively small cost.

The way things are going now, it would not take a great deal to work up a real mining boom. If it comes, it is to be hoped it will be founded on such solid development as will make it permanent.

Will give Salem the great mining camp at her front door for which she has been looking for so long.

M'LEAN SAYS CHECK WAS NEVER CASHED

Publisher Claims Secretary Fall Never Obtained Money on Paper

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 11.—E. B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher loaned former Secretary A. B. Fall, $100,000 but the checks for this amount were subsequently returned uncashed with the statement that the former interior secretary had arranged to secure the funds elsewhere. Mr. McLean told Senator Walsh of the Teapot Dome investigating committee today, according to a letter addressed to Mr. Fall by Mr. Walsh and made public a day later.

Mr. Walsh came here to question Mr. McLean concerning the transaction. He held a private meeting with the publisher this afternoon at the close of which he made public a letter addressed to Mr. Fall, who is also in Palm Beach.

Senator Walsh told Mr. Fall in his letter to him that he would be glad to take "for the information of the committee" any further statement that Mr. Fall cared to make.

SON EXPLAINS FATHER'S WORK WITHIN BANK

Thomas Fiske, defense counsel, was rebuked by the court.

Senator Sinclair, under cross-examination admitted that his son, Myron, told him two days before his arrest that he had embezzled the bank's funds, and that he (Senator Sinclair) had gone to Seattle in an effort to borrow money from the Skinner & Eddy corporation to make the shortage good.

Earlier in the day Senator Sinclair testified that he did not know of his son's embezzlement until after the latter's arrest. The defense announced tonight that it would rest its case some time tomorrow morning, the case probably going to the jury tomorrow night.

Oregon City Commission Is Target of Opponents

Through quo warranto proceedings that were filed in the supreme court yesterday by L. Stipp and William Stone, Oregon City an attempt is being made to have the commission form of government at that place declared invalid.

William Anderson, C. N. Caulfield and Frank Cross, the city commissioners, are defendants.

It is alleged that the act that created the commission form of government is void because it was referred to the people and voted on at a special instead of at a regular election. The commission is to be represented by Chris Schuebel, former member of the state legislature. The opposing attorneys will submit their arguments to the court by brief.

The special election at which the commission form came into being was held November 6 last.

JEWELRY BANDITS WORK IN DENVER

Two Men With Woman Leader Stage Daylight Robbery of City Firm

Christensen had gathered up some valuable stones and jewelry from the windows and showcases, preparatory to carrying them to a safe.

Two men, he later told police, entered the store and one of them covered him with a revolver. He was ordered to hand the bag of jewels over the counter, the bandit in turning handing it to his confederate.

One robber ordered Christensen into the basement and told him to remain there for five minutes while the other carried the bag outside to a waiting automobile. The second bandit soon appeared and, together with the young woman lookout who had kept watch outside the store, the trio jumped into their machine and drove off.

WAR SCOUT TO PREACH HERE

ENVOY JESSE E. INMAN

The meeting at the Salvation Army hall that is to be conducted by Envoy Jesse E. Inman is to be one of the most interesting ever conducted under the auspices of the local corps of the Salvation Army, according to Ensign Edward Brooks, who commands the local corps work for that organization.

Envoy Inman is an old-time scout under Custer, Teddy Crook. He also claims the distinction of being the oldest listed man in the World War.

He has traveled all around world, and will have many colored illustrations that will bring to many striking experiences that he has been through in a most terrible manner.

Envoy Inman is considered a speaker with power and will hold this series of meetings for two weeks. A cordial invitation is issued to all to hear this unusual speaker, who is still a young, active preacher.
