Actor First to Use Psychoanalysis

Elsie White, Noted Singer, Explains Reactions

New York City.—"Psychoanalysis was discovered by the first actor way back in the Garden of Eden days," declares Elsie White, who wonders why everybody acts as if all these "isms" they talk so much about nowadays are something new. "Believe me, if you couldn't dive down into unconsciousness and subconsciousness, you wouldn't get very far on the stage," she points out. "You've got to catch your audience to see whether you speak their language or not, and before long it's no trick at all to do it successfully. People's eyes give them away almost always. 'I am singing one song now that I call the emotional test—'Every Night I Cry Myself to Sleep Over You' it is named. It is not really as plaintive as the title sounds, but for all that it certainly goes down into folks' hearts and pulls out what's there. 'The woman whose husband has the lodge habit, the young girl who is in love with a married man and the mother whose son is on the wrong track—as I sing I look out and see each one react. The sentiment in the song and the sound of a sympathetic voice combined with melody which brings memories constitute a complete probe than a psychoanalyst could ever devise.'"

Talks were given by Henry O. Miller and Allan Carson. Officers installed last night were Bryan H. Conley, commander; William Wallace Smith, senior vice commander; Guy Young, junior vice commander; Jay D. Coulter, quartermaster; Chris J. Kowitz, officer of the day; Harold Garver, adjutant; A. M. TEPOT DOME PARLEY WAXES WARMER YET (Continued from page 1)

"that they would ask him to lie" about certain matters.

Resignation Asked—As the debate proceeded there were suggestions from Senators King of Utah and McKellar, Tennessee, Democrats, that Secretary Denby should be asked to resign because he signed the leases. Senator Hefflin, Democrat, Alabama, renewed his notice that there would not be a "whitewash" in the Teapot Dome matter and declared he was ready to vote now on the Caraway resolution. Senator Lenroot opposed the resolution on the ground that it would halt the inquiry, but Senator Walsh disagreed with him. The Montana senator and Senator King agreed with Senator Lenroot, however, that many serious questions were involved in cancellation. Senator Walsh said the question of the validity of the lease was a judicial one and that he did not believe congress could determine it. As the debate progressed, Republican members of the investigating committee, made it known privately that when Mr. Fall appears before them Friday they will insist that he disclose fully the source of the $100,000 fund he took from Washington after his resignation from the cabinet. Moreover, they said they would follow the subject to its conclusion by calling as witnesses those from whom Fall testified he obtained the money. These members said the committee would not be content until it had fully substantiated all statements regarding this fund by corroborating evidence, including an examination of the checks and securities used by Fall in raising the money, as well as the notes of other securities given by him for the loan.
