OREGON—"Anna Christie".
BLIGH—"Desert Crucible."
LIBERY—"Gold Madness."
GRAND—"Hunchback of Notre Dame."

One by one, individually and in the intricate groups and patterns into which Victor Hugo wove their lives and destinies, the characters of that immortal novel of bloodshed and revolution, love and faith, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" moved again in life across the screen at the Grand theater last evening for more than a thousand theater goers of the Willamette valley.

They came from all parts of Marion and Polk counties within a radius of 20 miles and they saw what is unquestionably the greatest screen production that has ever been shown in the city.

For them Quasimodo, Clopin, Esmeralda, Phoebus and a score of others whose names Hugo's gifted pen has given a distinct niche in literature, lived again through the art of Lon Chaney, Ernest Torrence, Patsy Ruth Miller, Norman Kerry and all others of any all-star cast, who lifted pages bodily from that great story and translated them into interpretive action, retelling the story dramatically, yet without the offensive incidents that have earned enmity for the author in some quarters.

There is some disappointment for the viewers who look for a faultless reproduction of Hugo's story in detail, for many deviations from the sequence of the original plot have been indulged in. But what is lacking in this respect is made up for in the artistry of the production in its entirety, and the master manner in which the characters are portrayed.

Lon Chaney as Quasimodo is a revelation that will never be forgotten. Nothing more realistic, nor repulsive, nor faithful could be portrayed in a character that he puts into this role. The rest of the cast is equally high in the picturization of the parts.

That "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" will set a new high mark for attendance for Salem is a foregone conclusion to those who saw it last night. It will remain at the Grand until Sunday night.

AGGIE QUINTET IS WINNER AT SPOKANE

Gill and Ridings Star for OAC Hoopsters in Gonzaga Game

SPOKANE, Jan. 23.—Oregon Agricultural college hoopsters tonight defeated the Gonzaga university five in 27 to 18 in a northwest conference game here. The score was tied four times during the course of the game and the first half ended 9 to 9. In the second half, however, the Oregonians outclassed the Washington players, displaying what was characterized as the best all around playing shown here this season.

Gill and Ridings, OAC forwards started for the invaders, with Hueter, Gonzaga center, the mainstay for his team.

SPOKANE, Jan. 23.—The Pacific university basketball team at Forest Grove, Or., has been booked to meet the SAAC quintet here January 28. It was announced today by Manager Armenia of the local organization. The game will be one of several scheduled for the Oregon team which is making a northern trip to play Washington State college and Gonzaga university of Spokane.

American Born Japanese Not to Be Japan's Subjects

(By The Associated Press)
TOKIO, Jan. 23.—Removal of snarls in the relation of Japanese residents of America with Japan preparatory to further diplomatic discussions between the two countries was the object of a bill introduced in the house of peers today by the cabinet revising the nationality law to the extent of withdrawing Japanese citizenship from Japanese acquiring any other nationality.

The bill was framed chiefly to meet the difficulty affecting American born Japanese who have been considered Japanese subjects as well as American citizens unless they renounce allegiance to the Mikado by their 17th birthday.

Portland and Seattle Join Hands at Hearing

PORTLAND, Or., Jan. 23.—Seattle joined hands with Portland today in submitting evidence at a hearing here before Examiner M. A. Pattison of the interstate commerce commission favorable to the application of the trans-continental railroads for relief from the fourth section of the transportation act, asking permission to put into effect reduced terminal rates to the Pacific coast from Chicago territory on many commodities.

The carriers hope by this means to retrieve some of the freight business now handled by inter-coastal water lines. Testimony today showed that some commodities such as iron and steel, come by steamer to the extent of 90 per cent of the whole movement.

The Seattle case was presented at the afternoon session. Portland will make its showing at tomorrow's session.

Yakima Growers Planning Large Cooperative Union

YAKIMA, Jan. 23.—More than 150 apple growers of the Yakima valley who met here this afternoon to recommend two delegates for the northwest committee, did not stop after choosing candidates but proceeded to formulate plans for organizing all the independent growers of the valley into one big district cooperative association at once to be ready to carry out any plans which the committee of five, representing Yakima, Wenatchee, Walla Walla, Hood River and Spokane, will suggest.

J. Howard Wright, chairman of the meeting, was authorized to appoint about 20 delegates representing the various local apple districts of this valley to organize at once. The following were recommended to N. B. Coffman, from whom to choose two members from Yakima on the committee of five: Mr. Wright, J. R. Schwartz, A. S. Congdon and C. H. Hinman of Yakima; S. M. McKee of Selah; F. A. Norton of Grandview, and J. C. Childs of Donald.

Growers here are anxious that Wenatchee and other districts show interest in the northwest plan of organization.

LENINE'S CASKET BORNE BY FRIENDS

Comrades Carry Coffin for Five Miles Through Troop Lined Streets

MOSCOW, Jan. 23.—(By the Associated Press)—The body of Nikolai Lenine, late premier of soviet Russia was brought to Moscow this afternoon from the little town of Gorky, where his struggle for life, after a long illness ended on Monday. On the shoulders of his comrades of the council of commissars, his coffin was carried nearly five miles through streets guarded by soviet troops to the House of Unions, where it is to rest in state until the funeral ceremonies.

As the casket, uncovered but for a lid of thin glass was carried through the streets, the windows of the adjoining houses, the bodies of the houses, the adjoining fences and all places of vantage off the thoroughfares, on which all traffic was stopped, were crowded with thousands of silent onlookers.

More than 20,000 members of parliament and the communist party and delegations from various departments and labor unions, the civilians and chilled hands gathered at the railroad station where the train bearing the body arrived promptly at 1 o'clock to the slow and solemn music of a funeral march played by the soldiers' bands.

The temperature was down to zero, but as the casket was brought down the platform, heads were bared to the snowflakes by the civilians and chilled hands lifted in military salute.

the body, but the bearers ran otherwise. Behind came Lenine's wife, and her brothers. There were tears; it was too cold to cry. Through the workers' district a red square, where he will be buried beside Kremlin walls, Lenine's body was taken to the House of Unions. The crowds were held back by solid lines of police.
