Interest Increases at Evangelistic Services

Tonight Envoys Inman, the evangelist who is holding the meetings at the Salvation army hall on State street, will take for his subject "The Authority of Christ." He is said to preach with more than usual power and his messages are filled with many of the exceptional experiences that he has lived through. To use one of his own sayings about the time of the early days in the west, "The man who could use his hardware the quickest lived the longest." Some of the things that he lived through in his travels around the world when he was a bodyguard to a party that was making the tour are almost unbelievable. The crowds are growing and interest is becoming better. Mrs. Fred Fargo will give a solo at the service this evening. Envoys Inman will preach every night this week and twice on Sunday, at 11 and 7:45. This old scout who has been giving his audience some unexpected thrills promises even to go further than he has. The illustrations that he uses are taken from the battlefield of life and are doubly interesting because of that. Ensign Inman says he hopes there will be greater numbers to hear him speak.
