

PEOPLE LOOKING TOWARD OREGON

California Newspapers Urge Residents to Come North for Vacation

Editorials in Los Angeles papers are urging Californians to begin planning summer vacations in Oregon and Washington, according to U. S. Page, who recently returned from an extended trip through California. Mr. Page, who spoke at the Thursday luncheon of the Marion-Polk County Realty association, pointed out that unless a general effort is made to capitalize upon natural scenery, green mountains and good water, many of the benefits from tourist travel will be missed. Californians are used to dry, brown hills and hot camping places and they will be unable to resist the opportunities offered by the northwest, he said.

"Oregon has no need to be jealous of California, particularly Los Angeles," Mr. Page continued. "The greater the population and growth of southern California the greater will be the demand for Oregon products."

Lack of rain is keenly felt throughout that state, Mr. Page reported, and when he asked why hay was not shipped in from the northwest he was told that it was to a great extent but that the price was very high and all could not afford its importation.

Tia Juana proves a great disappointment and disillusion to those who have heard so much of the famous gambling and sporting center, the speaker said. It is located in a desert, its buildings are ramshackle and prices exorbitant.

Referring again to Los Angeles, Mr. Page said that its growth was enormous and that it was estimated more than 100,000 people had located there in the last few months. Building permits issued last year were for 24,000 residences, 85 apartments and 76 hotels. Apartments are scarce and rents high, single apartments renting from $75 to $250 a month. Skilled tradesmen are out of work and good automobile mechanics are paid only $25 a week, he said. Los Angeles is planning on a city of 5,000,000 in the next 30 years and has plenty of room for the development, Mr. Page said. For 18 miles from the heart of Los Angeles tracts have been laid out into lots. The city limits now contain 456 square miles.

Mr. Page commented upon the number of retired Iowa farmers who have moved to Los Angeles. There were 90,000 registered at the last annual picnic. Citrus fruits are the chief orchards in the southern part of the state and expenses in maintaining these are enormous. During cold spells it costs upward from $500 an acre merely to keep smudge pots going in order to prevent the fruit from freezing.

Walla and Mrs. Grainger had recently returned to Portland after visiting her mother in Walla Walla.

Last Tuesday, according to information from her sister yesterday, she went down town to buy some shoes and said she might also visit friends. She did not return, but nothing was thought of her absence until her picture was seen in newspapers yesterday.

Mrs. Grainger was a patient at the state hospital for the insane in 1922. The woman has not uttered a word since her arrival at the hospital.

BILLY SUNDAY GOES ELSEWHERE

Definite Announcement Is Made That Evangelist Cannot Come to Salem

It is now definitely stated that Billy Sunday, world famous evangelist, will not conduct a series of meetings in Salem the coming summer.

Upon receipt of an invitation, Mr. Sunday declined for the reason that the call was not unanimous from the local churches. However, a second invitation was sent, but the evangelist had scheduled another engagement which made it impossible for him to come to Salem, according to a letter received here yesterday.

Rupert Confectionery Sold to Hughes & Taylor

Purchase of the F. J. Rupert confectionery store, 538 State, by Hughes & Taylor, well known confectionery men of the city, was announced yesterday. The transaction was handled by the Childs & Bechtel real estate firm.

Both of the new proprietors have been engaged in this line of business in Salem before, having owned the Candy Kitchen on Commercial, just north of the YMCA. They contemplate certain improvements in their new property, including remodeling, new furniture and an addition.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert have been in their present location for the last two years. They have made no plans for the immediate future.

Mystery Woman Identified As Mrs. Bertha Grainger

The mystery woman who appeared Wednesday at the state hospital for the insane and who was taken into custody there when she was discovered peering in at the windows of the receiving hospital was yesterday identified as Mrs. Bertha Grainger of Portland, who was an inmate of the hospital in 1922.

Mrs. Grainger formerly was a nurse at Roseburg, but is said to have wandered away from there to San Francisco and later to Portland. In Portland she makes her home with Mrs. J. E. Dooley, a sister. Her mother lives in Walla

Curtis Cross to Build Home Costing $15,000

Thirty thousand dollars, equally divided between a residence property and a business block, will be expended in the near future, according to building permits issued yesterday by Marten Poulsen, city recorder.

For some time Curtis Cross, who is with the Valley Packing company, has contemplated the construction of a large residence, only recently having got his plans under way sufficiently to call for a permit to build. The residence will be of two stories, frame construction, and will be built at 1625 Fairmount avenue. Its cost is given at $15,000.

Building preparations are under way for the new home of the Newton-Chevrolet company, Chemeketa and High streets, and the forms were being placed yesterday in readiness to pour concrete. This building will cost $15,000 and will be of concrete construction, according to the permit issued Charles Weller, owner. The address given in the permit is 525 Chemeketa.

Newspaper Men of State Gather for Conference

EUGENE, Or., Feb. 14.—Representatives from most of the newspapers in Oregon, as well as a great many advertising men and trade journalists, began arriving here tonight to attend the sixth annual Oregon newspaper conference at the University of Oregon which will open tomorrow.

Prominent men who will speak tomorrow include Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Oregonian; Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism; H. R. Crossland, professor of psychology; Hal E. Hoas, Oregon City, head of the Oregon State Editorial association; Elbert Bede, editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel, and various others connected with publications. Meetings of the Associated Press, United Press and International News Service will be held in the afternoon.

F. T. Romig of Amity Killed By Angry Bull

AMITY, Or., Feb. 14.—While helping his son with work on their farm three miles south of this place, F. T. Romig, a resident of Amity, was attacked and killed by a bull which had escaped from the barn and which Romig had tried to drive back.

Mr. Romig is survived by three daughters and three sons. His wife died less than a year ago. His youngest son, Maurice, is a student in Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis.

ELKS LODGE TO BUILD TEMPLE

Definite Decision Reached to Construct Building This Year

The Salem Elks lodge has definitely decided to build a new temple this year, according to announcement by the building committee yesterday. As a maximum cost the committee has fixed $150,000. Cuyler V. Patten of Salem has been selected as the architect and he has been instructed to submit plans, from which a choice will be made. The plans will be received by the committee the first Wednesday in March.

The lodge is in excellent condition financially and its quick assets amount to about $65,000. The members of the building committee are Charles R. Archer, chairman, E. W. Hazzard, H. H. Olinger, W. D. Evans, Frank T. Wrightman, Homer H. Smith, T. B. Kay and E. M. Page, ex-officio member as exalted ruler of the lodge.

Salem and Stayton High Schools Debate Tonight

The Salem high school debate team will meet the Stayton high school team in a dual debate tonight. The Salem affirmative team will go to Stayton while their negative will come to Salem.

The subjects which they will discuss is the severance tax and will therefore be looked upon with interest by those who are interested in the taxation question. The question is: "Resolved: that the severance tax should be made a feature of state and local taxation."

The Salem team is composed of Benoit McCroskey and Edgar Tibbets who uphold the question at Stayton, and Elizabeth Fairchild, Bernice Mulvey who represent the negative.
