

SCIENTIFIC HUMBUG

Sanctimonious Slobberings of Scientific Scavenger Go On, While 3000 Physicians Use Electronic Methods in Diagnosis and Cure of Disease.
(From Progress, a National Journal.)

To build up a large circulation legitimately, is the business of any publication, but when a journal which puts on an appearance of dignity, honesty and sincerity, trifles with a subject of most vital importance to the well-being of the public, then it is guilty of a crime indeed.

Testified by the thousands to the fact that they have been cured of their ailments by this revolutionary method of diagnosis and treatment, after all the old methods had failed; noted professors from a number of leading countries have been convinced of the practical and beneficiary results achieved by Electronic Therapy in the struggle to exterminate disease; three or four publications (being free from the taint of medical and surgical trust advertisements) heralded this only effective weapon against diseases which have baffled science.

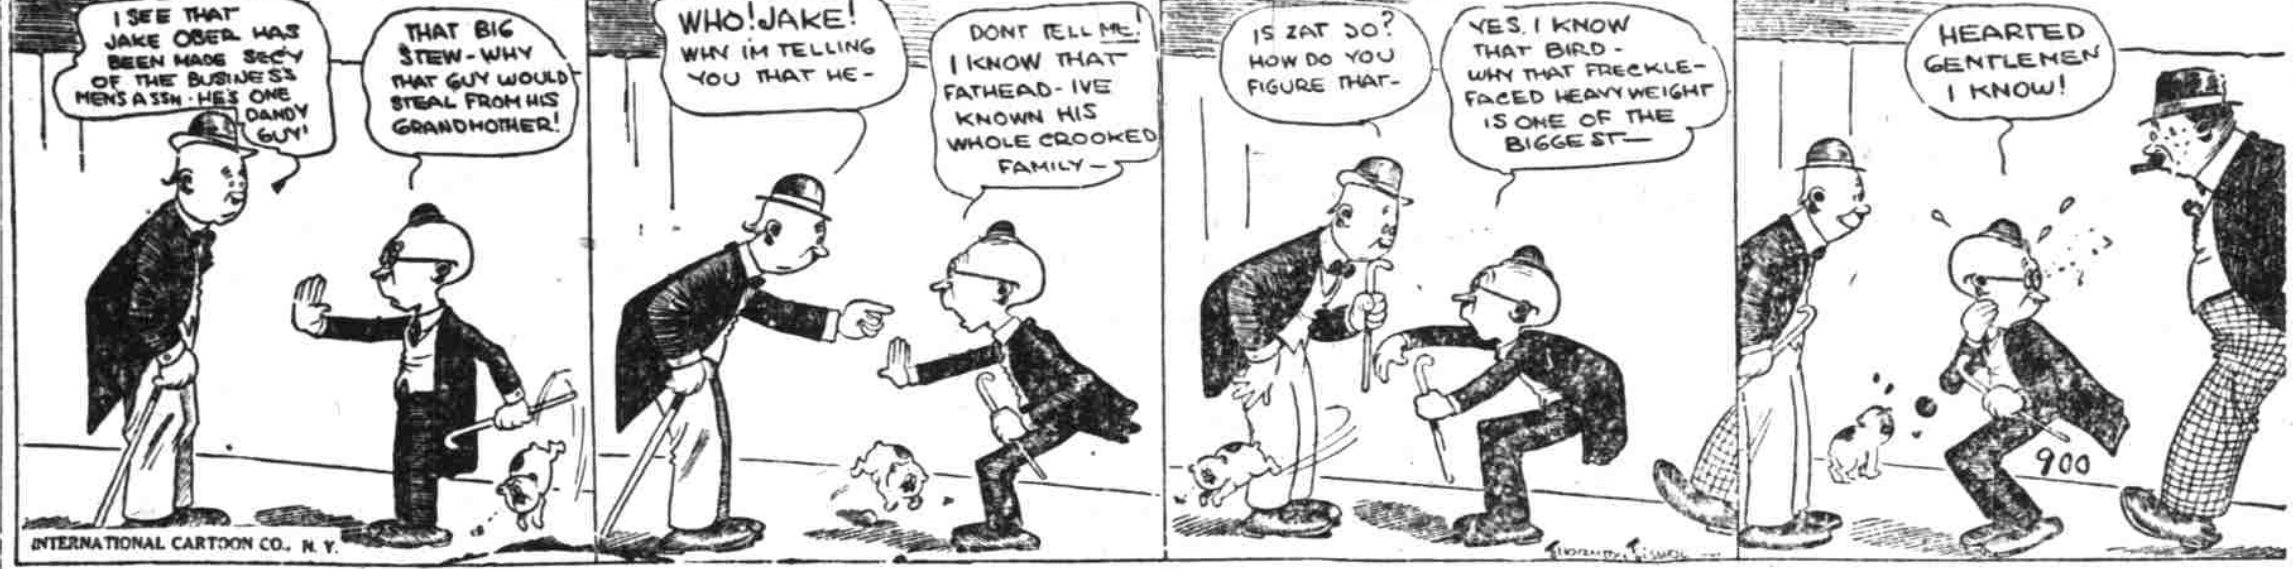

With our present day means of communication and transportation, which enables one to obtain details on a subject almost overnight, it has taken this journal more than two years to come out and say each month, I shall have something of interest about Electronic Medicine, next month!

We wonder if the Scientific American would wait two years to determine the reliability of a new discovery to cure the public of ITS brand of mental poisoning.

Should the sufferer who is seeking the sanctimonious sanction of this scientific scavenger die in the meantime, at least he can rest in peace knowing that he contributed to a benevolent publication.

It is more than two years since the discovery of Electronic Medicine has been made known; more than three thousand medical and osteopathic doctors have taken up this good work and are attaining most wonderful results; men and women in all walks of life have slight edge over their smaller opponents until Chastain, clever Medford forward, eluded his guard for a close shot under the basket. Eugene tied it up and the quarter ended: Medford 2, Eugene 2.

Medford Gains Lead

The second period was a repetition of the first with neither team able to secure an advantage in the game which had resolved itself into one of the prettiest and cleanest checking games ever seen on the local floor.

During the third period the play was all Medford's. Chastain, the outstanding player of the tournament, outdid himself with score after score which the Eugene defense seemed unable to stop.

McMinnville Striving

In the afternoon Eugene had found little trouble in vanquishing McMinnville 18 to 14. It was not without the usual McMinnville rally near the close of the game which for a time threatened Eugene's chances, even as it overwhelmed Forest Grove and North Bend earlier in the week.

Independence Surprises

Independence was the surprise of the tournament when in the second semi-final game they got away to a five-point lead on Medford and ran them close during all but the last quarter of play.

A neighboring paragrapher remarks that there are no parking troubles around the churches in town. If he will come to Salem, he will find a different condition in the streets around several of our churches. He will find parking space at a premium.

The new building projects on the taps for this year in Salem are not all announced yet, by any means. There are a number of big ones yet on the taps.

The Salem Iron Works has already built a big flax breaker for the state flax plant, and there are orders for two more—one for the Hoike people at Stayton and another for the Eastburn people at Aumsville or Turner. The flax industry is beginning to give its direct benefit to many people; and it is only getting fairly started.

The extinction of the Caliph was largely brought about by the passion of the Young Turks for the storied wealth of the Caliphate. There are said to be jewels, gold and property worth several hundred million dollars that will fall into the keeping of the new government and possibly obviate the immediate necessity of a foreign loan. It is a matter of dough rather than of religion.

Charles Edison at the age of 33 made the financial director of some thirty-three corporations in which his father, the famous inventor, is interested. Edison has not been utterly careless of the rewards of genius. He has been more thrifty than most prolific inventors and has always had money enough for his experiments and laboratory work. But if he has also invented a son who is a stem-winding financier he has done far better than most of his class.

Colonel Cousins Will Conduct Army Meetings

On Tuesday, March 18, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock at night the meetings that are conducted in the Salvation army hall on State street near Commercial will be in charge of Colonel John W. Cousins, who has charge of all the young peoples' work of the western territory of the Salvation army. Colonel Cousins will be assisted by Staff Captain West, the young peoples' secretary for the Oregon division.

These meetings will be made attractive in every way and Ensign and Mrs. Holbrook the officers in charge of the local work are planning to give the little folks a treat of goodies at the afternoon service that is to be held for the children and the young folks. Since the appointment of Colonel Cousins to head this department of the Salvation army work in the western part of the United States, rapid strides have been made and his success as a young peoples' leader has been pronounced exceptional.

The service at 8 o'clock is to be a regular evangelistic one and Colonel Cousins will be heard at his best at that time.

The children's and young peoples' meeting at 4 o'clock in the afternoon is for all the children who will come and a cordial welcome is assured to all.

JURY RETURNS 10 INDICTMENTS

Ten indictments were made by the grand jury when it reported to Circuit Judge Percy R. Kelly at noon Saturday. In a separate report the grand jury paid tribute to officials of state institutions and urged that immediate steps be taken to improve conditions at the boys' training school. The report was made after the grand jury had thoroughly investigated the institutions, and said that "there is nothing to be practically improved upon."

In speaking of the boys' training school, the report contained the following statement: "This institution is greatly overcrowded, and that on account of the facilities provided by the state of Oregon, it is impossible to segregate boys who are viciously bad from the unfortunate boys who are capable of being made good citizens. The management of this institution is in competent and trustworthy hands, and in view of circumstances confronting him, the superintendent makes an excellent showing. We heartily the inquiry today by testifying that there had been failures and neglect by department of justice officials to prosecute those violations in Texas.

Call Unexpected
Quimby was called unexpectedly in place of Means or Miss Stinson and supported Means' story that a deal for exhibition of the fight films had been made in 1921 with Jap Muma, friend of Jess Smith, and New York correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer; William H. Orr, ex-secretary to former Governor Whitman of New York, and Ike Martin, said to be of Cincinnati. Quimby said there was an arrangement that men who held state exhibitions received small fines, and then were allowed to proceed unmolested with exhibitions.

He identified some of the men named in a list given out by Mr. Daugherty last night as having been fined as those who sold state rights.

spend any time considering the minor and unimportant matters which took up the session Saturday. As soon as Gaston B. Means and Miss Roxie Stinson have concluded their statements and been cross-examined, "I will issue a statement that will, I think, be decidedly interesting and in which I will advise the public of the influences behind these malicious and scandalous attacks and the character of the tools that are being used in this cowardly manner by my adversaries."

INCOME TAX IS UNDER ATTACK

Standard Lumber Company Avers That New Law Is Unconstitutional

The Standard Lumber company yesterday instituted in the circuit court injunction proceedings against state tax commission to prevent its collecting the state income tax or enforcing any of the rules under the act. Attorney General Van Winkle will file a demurrer against the complaint Monday and it will be argued early in the week, obviating the necessity of the court's issuing a restraining order.

The complaining company is incorporated in Oregon, but its business is all within the state of Idaho. The plaintiff alleges that the tax denies it equal protection of the law with other taxpayers. The system of graduated rates is declared to be arbitrary and capricious. The complaint cites the fact that the act provides exemptions from the tax to various individuals and corporations, notably banks, insurance companies, trust companies and companies handling real estate. These exemptions are called arbitrary and capricious and as a result it is alleged that the law does not operate in a uniform manner.

A non-resident doing business in the state, says the complaint is subject to the tax under his net income derived within the state, and the definition of such income includes the proceeds from dividends. This is said to be discriminatory as between corporations having nonresident stockholders and those having no nonresident stockholders. In favor of those not having nonresidents among their stockholders. The law is declared to be unconstitutional in that it imposes a tax upon the entire income of individuals and corporations regardless of where and from what source the income is derived.

Regulations issued by the commission are declared to be in variance with the act. The provision that a copy of the federal income tax return must be filed with the state commission is attacked on grounds that it deprives the taxpayer of the secrecy contemplated under the federal act.

STICKERS ARE MUCH WANTED

Though the Salem automobile camp grounds have been open a little less than two weeks, approximately 50 camping parties have stopped overnight, several of them for a few days, according to T. G. Albert, superintendent.

Some work is being done on the grounds, and the brush has been cleared away as far west as the bridge. A team and three men were busy yesterday knocking off the high spots and filling in some of the worst of the low places.

Six new tents are up and the remaining four, giving a total of 10 tent-houses, will be completed in a few days. These are very much in demand on account of account of the chilly nights. Each is equipped with a bedspring that is fastened back against the wall during the day. A stove is supplied for each two tents.

Stickers are still in demand by tourists, Mr. Albert said, and until these are received many are being disappointed, for the sticker is the first thing that is sought.

Ashland, by a vote of three to one, recently voted to spend $10,000 on the well known camp grounds in Lithia park in order to keep these open the entire year.

A Better Way To Treat All Croupy Colds

An External Treatment That Replaces Internal Dosing. Nothing to Swallow—You Just Rub It On.

Today millions of modern mothers treat croup and children's cold troubles by the vapor method.

They use Vicks, the vaporizing salve, because it is externally applied. There's no dosing to upset a delicate little stomach.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts like a liniment or plaster. At the same time, the ingredients, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the affected air passages.

For spasmodic croup you rub Vicks well in over throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth. An application at bedtime will prevent most night attacks.

Vicks is just as good, of course for the other cold troubles of children and also for adults.
