Famous Scotch Acts Feature at Bligh

Famous Scotch acts are featured today at Bligh theater.

The Balmoral Kilties present an act that cannot help but please the most fastidious audience. They can sing, dance and play instruments with much artistry and there is always the breath of Old Scotland permeating the atmosphere.

Original Willie Twist: A pantomimist of the highest type presents a comedy acrobatic act chock full of laughs and thrills. His act is full of comedy and his line of work aside from being amusing to the children is also entertaining to the grownups. His feature trick is a table rock and fall, which has the audience sitting and gasping for breath.

Murray and Harris—This interesting duo presents a comedy singing and talking skit. They are both rapid-fire talkers of the new school and have their own original ideas of putting over comedy and it is evident that their way is perfectly all right as their act is always in demand where laughs are required.

"The Fool" Coming Soon to Grand

Channing Pollock's play "The Fool," that has created such a profound sensation in our American theater comes to the Grand for one night only, Wednesday, April 2.

No more human and virile drama has reached the American stage than "The Fool" and that there is a vast moral awaiting plays of a high moral character is shown by the nightly attendance wherever the play is being shown. Mr. Pollock has created an absorbing play and peopled it with characters you have known from childhood—you may even recognize yourself in the group.

The really fine thing about "The Fool" is that it stretches a beckoning finger, in the breadth of its strong appeal, to the nontheatergoer as well as to the hardened patron and you feel its powerful influence for good long after you leave the theater. It is a two-act drama—red-blooded drama—that drives straight from the shoulder and there is not a moment during the four acts you are not enjoying its unforgettable message that comes straight across the footlights.

The Selwyns, who are the producers, have cast the play with an unusually well balanced cast that includes Mitchell Harris, Helen Joy, Gay Seabrook, Henry Hall, Harry D. Southard, Marion Haslop, Brandon Evans, Clayton Frye, Eve Kohl, Margaret Pitt, Madeline Hartford, John Burkell, Edwin Redding, Florence Ronette Smith, James G. Morton, Frederick James Ned Seabrook, Geraldine Trevor, Martin Malloy and Edwin Ardell.

North of Hudson Bay Coming to Grand

Another of those thrilling stories of the far north, a tale of romance, hardship and double-crossed justice is coming to the Grand theater during the week. It is "North of Hudson Bay," a William Fox production, starring Tom Mix, and if ever a producer struck upon the one thing that an actor can do best Fox found it when he cast Mix to star in this picture.

In "North of Hudson Bay" Mix plays the role of a young mining engineer prospector who has taken up a placer gold claim in the Hudson Bay territory. The factor of the post, who is the Judge and the jury according to the law of the northern country, had murdered the prospector's brother and fastened the guilt upon the partner of the murdered man. The partner is condemned to the "Journey of Death," four hundred miles through the snow covered forests to the border with only one day's supply of food. Dane unwittingly feeds the condemned man and, according to the law of the north, is sentenced to a similar fate.

Bert Lytell and Blanche Sweet in "The Meanest Man in the World"

Coming to the Oregon Tuesday

World's Meanest Man at Oregon Tuesday

Bert Lytell as "The Meanest Man in the World" may be hard for the average film fan to imagine, but he, nevertheless, carries the title role in film of that name which comes to the Oregon theater for two days opening Tuesday.

Blanche Sweet and Bryant Washburn head the supporting cast in the production. The story, which is an adaptation of the famous stage play in which George M. Cohan personally appeared in New York city, deals with the business activities of a young lawyer who simply cannot succeed because he is too kind hearted. He is finally told by his best friend to be mean—to look everybody straight in the eye and say no.

How the attorney begins this new method of business and how he finds himself unable to live up to the title of "the meanest man in the world" provides some remarkable situations and finally, when he is sent to a small town in New York to foreclose a notorious overdue, he finds he can never succeed if he must use harsh tactics.

Blanche Sweet makes her return to the silver sheet in this picture, and critics who have seen her portrayal claim she never appeared to better advantage than in the role of Jane Hudson. Bryant Washburn also has an excellent portrayal in the role of Ned Stevens, the friend of the young

BIG BULL FIGHT HELD IN MARION

In the olden times when Satan lost the kingdom and was hurled to hell, from morn to noon he fell; from noon to dewey eve, and at the setting of the sun descended upon Aegaeon isle.

Last Sunday evening there was staged in the southern part of Marion county a terrific combat, a combat that would have done credit to the torador of Mexico and the best bull that ever entered the arena. It was a mighty fight between man and animal. For 20 minutes the man saved his life, expecting to lose it momentarily by holding the bull by the ring in his nose and one horn. There were perilous moments when the bull, with terrific force would work his head in an effort to disembowel the man, and so close did the horn come that the clothes were torn off, and a naked body was protected only by the strength born of emergency.

The bull put one knee on the man's chest and, acting almost human, was about to let down his whole weight, which would have been fatal in an instant. In some way, the man knows not how, he wiggled out and the bull came down on the ground.

The battle was not over, but the man had scored his first advantage. Thereafter every effort showed intelligence gaining over brute force. Although the bull was on top, the man, by small movements finally worked his body from under the bull, and held the bull's head solid to the ground until both were exhausted. They could not endure much longer. It was then the bull stepped back, for the first time showing any relaxation of his determination to kill his antagonist. The man made the most of it. He put his head to work and began to shove the bull back. Another minute and the man's strength would have been gone, but gathering himself for one final effort, he pulled his body to the front, pushed the bull back and was on his feet. The bull was on his knees. The battle was over. The bull gave up, and the breathless man realized for the first time the perilous situation in which he was placed. He shoved the bull over on one side. The man knew he was fighting for his life, but he fought without thinking of his peril; he fought for his life as an animal would fight, and he won because, in addition to his actual strength, he used his intelligence. The bull had only brute force; in that they were matched. Brain won over brawn because brain directed the man's strength, and not an ounce of it was wasted.

For 20 minutes the fight raged, for 20 minutes the man held the bull at bay, until finally intelligence won and he dragged himself inch by inch from under the infuriated creature and stood a conqueror. This fight occurred near Jefferson last Sunday evening. James Sharp was the man and a Jersey bull was the animal.

DELEGATES NOT TO BE DOUBLED

A recommendation of the Democratic national committee that the number of delegates at large to the national convention be doubled and half of them be women, cannot be followed in Oregon, according to an opinion written by Attorney General Van Winkle today on inquiry by Sam A. Kozar, secretary of state. This was a proposal by the Democratic national committee to give adequate representation to women, and it was proposed that each delegate have half a vote.

While the proposal is not quite clear in the minds of Oregon officials, it would apparently have the effect of increasing the Oregon delegation from 10 to 14.

The attorney general held that such recommendation is too indefinite and uncertain to authorize the secretary of state to act upon it, since no authority is vested in that office to decide upon such substitution, and no other resolution or order of the national Democratic committee has been received authorizing the same.

It was further held that since the constitution and statutes of Oregon provide that in all elections authorized by the constitution, unless otherwise provided by law, the person or persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be elected, it would be possible for eight men or eight women to receive the highest number of votes for delegates at large to the Democratic national convention, thus

Spotted Teeth Bleached White Quick Safe Way

To whiten dull, yellowish, stained teeth all you need now do is brush teeth with a few drops of mild harmless liquid—then use a special paste—and watch stains disappear. This new method is called Bleached Combination. The liquid softens the stains—the paste not only gently removes them, but prevents formation of new stains. Perfected by prominent dentists. Fine for removing green stains from children's teeth. No effect on enamel—its mild ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains. To avoid disappointment, beware of cheap liquid imitations. Always insist on Bleached Combination, the safe treatment. Small cost, at all good dealers, such as Dan'l. J. Fry, Perry's Drug Store, The Central Pharmacy, Worth & Gray, Millers.

defeating the purpose of the proposed change.

Therefore, the secretary of state should be governed by the definite allotment mentioned in the call for a Democratic national convention, i. e., two delegates and two alternates for each representative in congress, the former to be elected by the state at large and the latter in the respective congressional districts.
