BOOST SONG READ FRIDAY EVENING

Lines That Glorify the Spirit of Cooperation Among
Salem People

(The following boost song, written by Edna Garfield, of the Salem Writers' club, was read at the Salem products dinner at the Elks building on Friday evening, by Mrs. Seymour Jones, president of the Salem Woman's club and toastmaster for the occasion.)

HOME PRODUCTS

Hail, Home Products! Hail to you!
For in Oregon you grew,
Or in Oregon were made—
Things of every shape and shade—
Things of every class and grade:
Things to wear and things to eat;
Our Home Products can't be beat!
Things to tickle every palate,
How-so-ever we cast our ballot.
Fabrics, too, for most exacting;
(Though the vogues are quite distracting!)

So on thru the category,
Let Home Products tell the story.
Use them once, there's no retreat-
ing,
You will give them loving greet-
ing;
Aye, thereafter you'll demand
them—
And the dealers then will land
them.

Man with hoe, and city brother,
Work together, one another—
Use Home Products—help each other!
Let us boost them every day,
And we'll find, in very way,
Oregon is getting better:
She'll become a true go-getter!

Let us stretch our wings and flap;
Put Home Products "on the map";
Do our do; and day by day
Give Home Products Right-of-way!

OREGON NEWS

OREGON CITY, March 22.—July 25 and 26 have been set for the 17th annual convention of the Oregon State Editorial association by Hal E. Hoss, president of the organization. The state editors will hold their convention at Tillamook, where they will be guests of the Kiwanis club.

PORTLAND, March 22.—The jury in the trial of Albert and Joel H. Coe, charged with arson in connection with the burning of their cafeteria last November, was dismissed this afternoon after remaining deadlocked since last night. It was announced the jury stood seven to five for acquittal.

MEDFORD, March 22.—Percy H. Bell, cashier and proprietor of leaving five children, none of them grown at the time, to the care of their father. Her death must have saddened many other children, for all her life she had devoted time, thought and work to improving the lot of little ones in poverty. As a school girl she worked at a small boys' club in Kensington, and later education claimed her keen interest. To the grown-up poor, as well as their offspring, she lent a hand of help. One of her principal aims being to improve the working conditions of barmaids and charwomen.

Mrs. Macdonald's interests were political as well as humanitarian, but perhaps the former was but a means of attaining her ambitions in the latter respect. She was the daughter of Dr. J. H. Gladstone, a scientist of some repute, and she first met Mr. Macdonald in 1895. Later, for years, their home was crowded, once every three weeks, with men and women busy in the service of the labor party. But her home was not a political salon, as are the drawing rooms of many of the wealthy wives of politicians. Mostly it was a place where friends were always welcome.

STATUE PUZZLES THE SUBJECT OF IT

Ezra Sees His Likeness, for Which He Never Posed,
Never Heard of at All

(With a photo engraving of the statue, the following appeared in the Los Angeles Times of Tuesday morning last)

"It's a small world after all," said Ezra Meeker, oldest living pioneer of the Oregon Trail yesterday, as he gazed on a bronze statue of himself that was uncovered in a small art shop in Vienna and brought to this country by A. Well of Eagle Rock.

The romance and mystery surrounding the statue were heightened by Mr. Meeker's declaration that he had not posed for the piece, did not offer an explanation for its presence so far away from the Old West in which he spent his early days.

"There are my oxen," said the pioneer as he examined the base of the miniature statue with a magnifying glass yesterday at Mr. Well's Eagle Rock studio. "Look how that horn turns down; how well I remember that."

He found that even the improvised cloth feed bin, used in going over the pioneer trails, was depicted true to life. The statue itself is Mr. Meeker in miniature. The broad-brimmed hat, the bearded Indian vest, even the gauntlets, the pioneer recognized at a glance. Mr. Well was unable to satisfy

PILGRIMS VISIT DAILY MEMORIAL TO WIFE ERECTED BY PREMIER

(By Mail)
LONDON, March 5.—The achievement of Ramsay MacDonald in raising from an envelope-licking clerk to the highest political position in Great Britain is tinged with tragedy in the thought that his wife, who labored with him in his struggles to improve the position of the poor, died before great honors came to him.

A memorial erected by Mr. MacDonald and her friends to Mrs. MacDonald in front of their former home in Lincoln's Inn field has, with labor's advent to power, changed from an unsung marble group and wooden bench to a center of public pilgrimage. Daily hundreds leave the rumbling traffic of Fleet street and the Strand to stroll through the quiet little park near which the memorial—stretched to welcome a host of little children—identifies itself thus: "This seat was placed here in memory of Margaret Ethel MacDonald, who spent her life in helping others."

Mrs. MacDonald died in 1911.

Helping Others

At different times all of us need the help of others. Life is much more enjoyable because we do have friends who are willing to lend a hand in time of need. And because they help us, we, too, are willing to help them.

Keep this thought in mind when you deal with us here at the United States National. You are helping us by keeping your money on deposit. This makes us want to help you. When you need a friend or advice, come in and talk things over.

Mr. Meeker's curiosity regarding the original of the statue. The method of casting bronze in Austria is familiar to Mr. Well, he said, and could not be duplicated easily outside of the country. Mr. Well is sure it was produced in Vienna. The sculptor's name, inscribed on the base, is C. Curtz, but the name does not offer any clue to the origin of the piece.

Mr. Well is arranging to display the statue here and asks any one who has any solution of the mystery to get in touch with him.

Try This Way To Get Relief From Head Colds

Nothing to Swallow—
You Just Melt a Little in a Spoon and Breathe in the Healing Vapors.

To stop a head cold, try this simple, direct method. Melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the penetrating vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc. Also put a little up each nostril and snuff well back.

Another method is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Mothers prefer Vicks for their children because it avoids so much internal dosing. It can be used with perfect safety on the youngest child.
