Madge Bellamy Is Feature at Grand

Life is just one packing up after another for Madge Bellamy in "The White Sin," which is now showing at the Grand theater and will be shown through Saturday and Sunday.

The first grip comes into prominence when Madge, tired of the drab life she leads in Farm Center, runs away and becomes maid to a wealthy New York girl. After some thrilling experiences on the yacht owned by her mistress, she is forced to leave and zip!—another "closeup" of the grip.

Things run smoothly with Madge for a while and the traveling bag accumulates a fine coat of dust and cobwebs. Suddenly, the man whose wife she is posing as and who was thought to be dead, which unexpectedly comes to life—which means another hasty packing.

We endeavor to make a merit of faults that we are unwilling to correct.

4000 Notes With Delinquencies Not Numerous

George G. Brown, clerk of the state land board, says the state irredueble school fund is in better condition now with respect to its loans than it was a year ago. The board holds about 4000 notes and only in the neighborhood of 200 are in process of foreclosure because of delinquent interest.

With over $7,000,000 in the common school fund the condition of that fund is as follows:

Mortgages out for foreclosure, September 30, 1923, 198, aggregating $306,450; mortgages sent out for foreclosure since September 30, 28, totaling $49,850; total of these two items, 226 in mortgages or $356,300; foreclosures completed and sheriff's deeds issued since September 30, 1923, 6, or $3715; reinstated or paid in full, 23, aggregating $50,000; remaining in process of foreclosure, 197, aggregating $302,585; total of three latter items, 226 mortgages, aggregating $356,300.

The agricultural college fund shows only two mortgages out for foreclosure on September 30 last, representing $1100. None has been added since and both of these loans were in process of foreclosure on December 31.

In the university fund all loans continue in good standing.

THE SEA-FARER RETURNED

By Anna Van Horsen Nelson

And when I went a-seafaring
This is the thought that prompted me:
The man who always stays at home
A sorry fool must be.

But now I have returned to find
That one I loved, who was more kind,
Has faded, O, farther than the wind,
Has gone much farther than ere I,
Beyond the sea, beyond the sky.

And now I live within her house,
With each familiar place a tryst,
And when I close my eyes for tears,
I feel my eyelids kissed.

I cannot leave such sweet embrace
I shall not wander any more,
I can but watch with shadowed face

The happy folk that stayed ashore.

About twenty members of the interior decorating section of the Salem Arts league met at the library for the interesting study of rugs, tapestries, and carpets on Thursday evening. Mrs. Churchill had charge of the meeting. The history, manufacture, and designs of these textiles was carefully considered. The ancient, renaissance, and Italian phases of tapestries were considered. The rugs were studied as European works and then as modern. The lesson was one of the interesting series which are sent out from a New York correspondence school. A new problem in interior decorating will be taken up on April 10.

The appearance of Harold Bauer and Pablo Casals in joint concert last night in Corvallis drew a number of Salem music lovers to the college town for the evening. Among those going down were: Miss Lena Dotson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Denton, Professor and Mrs. T. S. Roberts,

Mrs. Bertha Junk Darby, Miss Patchin, Julia Patchin, Miss Joy Turner, and Mr. and Mrs. George Will. Harold Bauer is a master-pianist of world fame, and Pablo Casals is everywhere acknowledged as the greatest violin-cellist alive. A special stage was erected in the college gymnasium for the event. The artists made a very successful appearance in Portland earlier in the week. Miss Helen Pearce and Miss Dorothy Pearce are spending the week in Washington as the guests of Miss Genevieve Phillips, at Doxy.

Fifty of the most ravishing garbs of spring were very effectively displayed at Miller's recent two-day style show, with the three chosen models exhibiting gracefully on a palm and hydrangea decorated stage, with music playing softly behind scenes. Black and white, sunshine yellow, Lanvin green, Chinese red, and powder blue were the predominating colors throughout the lavish display of gowns appropriate to the formal dinner, the sport tea, and the afternoon at home. Many fetching sport togs were also exhibited. The favorite fabrics seemed to center around the charmeens, reps, twills, and the faddish and conventional crepes. Beautiful millinery was in evidence with every costume. Handsome umbrellas, and purse and glove accessories were carefully shown. Miss Mary Feeley and Mrs. L. V. Feeley of McMinnville and Miss Stella Stogard, of Salem modeled the gowns. Miss Beatrice Sunderstron, buyer in the ready-to-wear department, was in efficient charge of the style show.

The piano pupils of Mrs. Henry Lee will be guests this afternoon at a delightful party at the home of Mrs. Robert Hart.

Sea"; while the cast for "Suppressed Desires" includes Jean Shipp, Benoit McCroskey, and Faye Wassam.

A delightful teachers' tea was the inspiration which brought the members of the Salem high school faculty together for a pleasant social hour early in the week. The tea table was attractive with artistic yellow and white appointments. Mrs. George Hug presided at the tea-urn.
