VICTORIA DEMAREST COUNTED AMONG NOTED WOMAN SPEAKERS

Salem people will be given an opportunity to hear one of the most famous women preachers of the world when at the armory, on April 13, Mrs. Victoria Booth-Clibborn Demarest opens an evangelistic campaign under the auspices of 15 local churches. She is assisted in her work by her husband, Agnew Demarest, who is known throughout the country as an organist and choirmaster. Mrs. Demarest is a grand-daughter of Catherine Booth, who with General William Booth founded the Salvation army. Of her appearance, it is said that she possesses the gifts and graces of the Booth women, known as a family of women preachers, combining all their gifts of oratory, courage and daring of song. Mrs. Demarest became a mother to the two motherless boys and also has two charming babies of her own, all of whom she takes with her on her evangelistic tours whenever it is possible. Agnew Demarest is the son of Godly parents, his father being of an ancient Huguenot family, who was graduated from the University of New York and took his theological course at Princeton Seminary, serving the church as a distinguished Presbyterian minister. Mr. Demarest failed to hear the call to the ministry, but entered the business world. He was signally gifted musically, and devoted his spare time to the thorough study of the organ and voice culture. When only 14 years old he held a her mother, Catherine Booth-Clibborn and the poise, restraint and spiritual fervor of Catherine Booth.

Mrs. Demarest was born in Paris, France, and during her early life accompanied her parents about the country as they directed the work of the Salvation army which they had founded upon the Continent. She returned to Paris at the age of 15 years and there completed her education. By the time she had reached this age she could speak French, German, English and Dutch, and in these languages carried the gospel to Holland, Belgium, France, England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Germany, Canada, Newfoundland and the United States. She was second in a family of 10 children, five sons and five daughters, all of which are living and of whom eight are engaged in preaching the gospel. While the family were in Holland and the girl, Victoria, began conducting services for children of about her own age. It was about this time that Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Clibborn disassociated themselves from the organization of the Salvation army and began inter-denominational evangelistic work.

When only 18 years old, Victoria-Booth-Clibborn received her French brevet in Paris and also a diploma. Here she began to study the piano with the organist of the cathedral at Versailles, who had succeeded Charles Lefebvre. She also studied harmony and composition with Charles Lefebvre. Her decision to give up her musical prospects for evangelism caused much distress to her professors, who had faith in a brilliant musical future for their young and talented pupil.

It was in 1913 that she made her first visit to America after she had joined her family in England, where she assisted her mother in her campaigns. Later she conducted meetings of her own before going to Germany with her father. Upon her arrival in this country, Victoria Booth-Clibborn and her mother conducted services together, but upon the return of her mother to England, she began work upon her own responsibility.

While preaching in Louisville, Ky., Victoria Booth-Clibborn met Agnew Demarest, who was organist and choirmaster. A few years prior to this meeting his wife had died, leaving him with two small children. A subsequent friendship ripened into love and resulted in the uniting of her gifts as a preacher, composer and writer to her husband's ministry of music and good position as organist and five years later was organist and choir-master in one of the most prominent churches in Louisville. Sorrow over the loss of his wife resulted in his conversion and led to the devoting of his life to religious service. He has a baritone voice of unusual quality and before entering religious work was frequently heard in song recitals.

Since coming to America, Mrs. Demarest has preached from coast to coast and from Canada to the Mexican border. Vast audiences of nearly all denominations have heard her in halls, churches, theatres and tabernacles. She has visited such cities as St. Johns, Newfoundland; Montreal, Toronto, Canada; Victoria, B. C.; San Francisco, Fort Worth, St. Louis, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Louisville, Richmond and New York City. Much of her work has been in union campaigns, in the conducting of which she has provided a leadership that inspired to hearty cooperation ministers of diverse denominations and laymen of various occupations and professions. Approximately 35 of her hymns and songs have been published and are used in her meetings.

In speaking of her services in Charleston, W. Va., the "Gazette" and "Daily Mail" state that though churches in that city were holding their regular Sunday night services, a theatre, which seated 2700 could not care for the people who attended. During the afternoon meetings the stairways were crowded with standing people and even the governor of West Virginia was forced to stand for two hours. It was estimated that nearly 1000 people were turned away, though this theatre was the largest in the city. It was on account of her wonderful reputation that the local churches decided to hold all meetings in the armory in order to accommodate the great number of people who will attend the evangelistic campaign in Salem.

MOTOR CARS REPLACE OCEAN TRIPS

One reason for the decline in ocean travel by Americans is the increasing purchase of automobiles on easy payment plans, according to the opinion of G. Hilmor Lundbeck, general manager in the United States for the Swedish-American line. Lundbeck has just returned from a 9000 mile trip through the interior of the country and along the Pacific coast.
