PETER'S DENIAL SERMON THEME OF EVANGELIST

Scores Turned Away From Church While Overflow Meeting Held in Sunday School Rooms

ONLY PUBLISHED TALK OF LEADER DRAWS MANY

Story of Hudson Taylor Oriental Missionary Given By Mrs. Demarest

"The first thing necessary to bring about a revival is to go and undo the foolish things that careless Christians have done."

"Don't we see ourselves in the Peter who tries to make up for our disobediences and neglects by doing a lot of things that Jesus never asked us to do?"

"We are always ready with our swords to start a fight, but prayer taken a real godliness, with no applause, no show, no popularity."

"Jesus says to us as he said to Peter: 'I did not ask your sword; I asked only your prayers.'"

"Pride dies hard. The hardest words in the English language are these three: 'I am wrong.'"

"When you are lost in hell, all you get is a laugh from those who led you there."

"The only way to salvation is through the cross. How thankful I am that my mother sent me to my cross, to do some of the things that have hurt and humiliated!"

People were turned away by scores or hundreds from the Demarest union evangelistic services at the First Methodist church last night. It had been announced that Mrs. Demarest would preach on "Peter's Denial," which is the only one of her published sermons, and reckoned as one of the greatest addresses she has ever given. The announcement brought the people in masses; an overflow meeting had to be held in the Sunday school room of the church to take care of part of the people.

It was indeed a great sermon. Fired through and through with dramatic and religious fervor, it burned and seared. The same power and intensity would make any woman a world known tragedienne, singer, artist; it would make any man a conqueror in whatever realm he entered. For power of analysis, for character delineation and for interpretation of the human heart, the address stands apart.

Summarized, the sermon is the story of Peter denying his Lord on the night of the betrayal; with the long story of his unconscious defection, and then his agonized repentance. Peter loved the Lord; he had left all—his family, his business, his life—and followed as a disciple for three years. He had been honored by the Master, by having the power to cast out devils and to heal the sick. He had been a companion at the transfiguration, at Gethsemane; he wrote afterwards in his immortal epistles, "I do not tell you idle tales; for I was eye-witness to His majesty." It was Peter who made the declaration, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God!"

But Peter could not stand prosperity; the pride that came over him when he was thus singled out, overcame him. Then he was selfish; he wanted his master to give up his foolish crucifixion and stay with him. Give up the whole plan of salvation for Peter's selfish love. Peter was a panicky coward for

SELF-STYLED KILLER IN BED DURING MURDER

Officials at Los Angeles Veterans Hospital Say Aber in Cot at Time

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—Lawrence Aber, self-styled disabled war veteran who yesterday surrendered to Portland police with the statement that he and others had slain Earle Remington, engineer, clubman and alleged bootlegger, here February 15, 1923, could not possibly have taken part in the killing, the Los Angeles Examiner quotes former hospital companions of Aber as saying today.

Aber was asleep on his cot at the Sawtelle government hospital near here at 11:30 p. m., the hour Remington was shot and killed, according to Harry Moore, who occupied the cot next to Aber's. Other patients at the hospital declared, the Examiner says, that Aber retired shortly before 9:30 p. m. and was still asleep about the time Remington's body was found on the driveway of his home the next morning.

INCOME TAX TO BE HEARD SOON

Supreme Court Sets April 23 as Date Upon Receiving Appeal Notice

Upon receiving the state's notice of appeal yesterday in the state income tax case the supreme court set the date for the hearing in the supreme court for Wednesday, April 23. It is understood the case will be hastened through the higher court.

Following a hearing of the case yesterday, in which the Standard Lumber company demanded that the state be restrained from exacting an income tax return and payment from the company, the circuit court granted a permanent injunction. This was in addition to upholding the previous decree of Judges Kelly and Bingham, who held the act unconstitutional as far as it applies to all corporations.

WILLAMETTE TO ELECT OFFICERS

Emmel and Chapin Out for President of University Student Body

World, national, state and county politics are being obscured on the campus at Willamette university by the approach of the annual election of student body officers which will be held at Eaton hall Friday, April 25. Petitions are now being circulated. Names of candidates, the constitution provides that nominations may be made by filing a petition signed by at least 25 per cent of the student body.

As is true in all colleges, the office of student body president and editor of the college publication are the two greatest honors that can be bestowed upon a student.

Petitions have been circulated for the nominations of Ted Emmel and Leland Chapin for president, both having been prominent in school activities. Adelia White and Vera McKeehan are being considered for vice president. The editorship of the Collegian appears to be between Juanita Henry and Ralph Emmons.

Dorothy Owen and Lucia Card are being mentioned as probable candidates for the nomination of secretary, while Richard Briggs is the only candidate at present for the office of student body treasurer. Of three places for men and one for a woman on the athletic council, only one name has been suggested. This is that of Herbert Booth.

PARCEL POST NEW CARRIER OF EPIZOOTIC

Contraband Products Coming Into Northwest From Infected Areas Through United States Mail

HORTICULTURAL AGENT PROTESTS TO OFFICERS

Postmaster New Asked to Direct Prohibited Articles Be Not Accepted

OLYMPIA, Wash., April 17.—A new source of danger from the foot and mouth epizootic was pointed out to the state department of agriculture today in a telegram from J. W. Wiley, a horticulture inspector for the department located at Spokane, reporting that contraband California products were being brought into the state through the mail.

"Post office department is delivering California products. There is no man to check the mails," Mr. Wiley informed the department.

Because the district supervisor of the United States post office in Spokane declared himself powerless to act unless ordered to do so by Harry S. New, postmaster general, a telegram has been sent to Washington, D. C., asking for an order directing that nothing covered by the Washington state quarantine be accepted for mailing in California addressed to this state unless accompanied by the certificate and fumigation required by the quarantine.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—An appeal for the relief of nearly 500 automobile tourists, many of them women and children who are stranded in the desert near the Colorado river, because of the refusal of authorities at Yuma to allow them to enter Arizona, was telegraphed to Governor Richardson by the sheriff's office at El Centro tonight, according to a dispatch to the Los Angeles Times.

The condition of some of the tourists, prevented from crossing the state line by Arizona's foot and mouth disease quarantine regulation closing the border to automobile traffic, is described as pitiful in reports reaching El Centro authorities. Most of the motorists are said to be without food or bedding.

Shortage of water among the stranded travelers was relieved tonight, reports to the sheriff said, when a Southern Pacific train was flagged and a tank car of water appropriated by the crowd.

Bar Camping Parties

SEATTLE, April 17.—Stricter measures on the part of Washington state authorities to prevent the entrance of the foot and mouth epizootic from California were recommended at a mass meeting here today of livestock and other interests at the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

DYING BOY GAVE ALL HE HAD TO HELP SALVATION ARMY

(Contributed)
Little is known of the spirit of sacrifice that fills the life of many of our children and how often our mind is turned to the Lowly Nazarene, who sat at the treasury of the temple watching those who cast their gifts into it. The Master noticed that a poor widow cast into it her mite. It was all she had and she gave all she had. Her heart was tender like the child's, and it is said in the Book of Books, "unless we become as a little child we shall in no wise enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

We love the children because when they give, they give all they have, there is no holding back with the child; their "love is all." One of the Salvation army ladies while soliciting in one of the outside towns in Marion county, knocked on the door of a home that had the appearance of a very humble one. A dear old grandma answered the knock and when she saw who the caller was, her eyes filled up with tears, the look of welcome beamed on her face, as she said "come in dearie, I have something for you and I want to tell you something. Little Willie, my grandson, was only a little cripple boy and Christmas would have gone by with nothing to remind us of the happiness that the day brings to so many if it had not been for the Salvation army. Some of the toys that you see about were some that you gave him then. You see this old candy bag? It was filled with candy and nuts and it made him so happy when he received it, but he is gone now and things seem so lonely without him. Sister, when he was dying he reached under his pillow and took the little bank in his hand, holding it toward me and said: "Grannie, when you get the chance to see the Salvation army, give them this for me. It's all I've got but it may help them to do something for some other boy." It was only a few pennies but he gave all he had.

Captain Earnest Graves, the campaigner, in telling Ensign Holbrook of the incident, said: "Ensign, if the people of Marion county could only be made to see just what this $4000 will mean to the Salvation army in its work here and this vicinity. I don't think there would be any doubt about it being over the top sure."

BRIDGE PROBERS SIFTING STORIES OF BOND DEALS

Van Winkle Attends Multnomah County Grand Jury Hearing in Person

PORTLAND, Or., April 17.—Moving with greater celerity as the investigators became more familiar with the background, the inquiry into the city and county administration today was a continuation of the sifting of stories of insurance men relatives to fire insurance and surety bonds.

Attorney General Van Winkle was present during the afternoon session. He explained that this return in person was for the purpose of keeping in touch with the investigation.

The insurance angle of the investigation will be suspended at noon Friday, and at the afternoon session the lotting of contracts for the Burnside, Ross Island and Sellwood bridges, the central issue of the investigation will be taken up.

DEMAREST MEETING AT ARMORY TONIGHT

Additional Seating Capacity Will Be Provided for Services Sunday

Tonight the Demarest evangelistic services go back to the armory, after four nights at the First Methodist church. Some remodeling is to be done today for the choir seats, a score of carpenters and workmen having volunteered to do the work without cost to the campaign committee. The additional seating capacity, which can be provided by the placing of bleacher seats around the walls, will not be done for tonight, but it will be ready by Sunday, when it is expected that even the 500 additional seat capacity will be all too small for the crowd.

Today noon is the last of the noon services at the Oregon theater, under the first arrangement. One of the fine attractions will be the Chopin Funeral march, played on the organ by Mr. Demarest. The sermon by Mrs. Demarest will be especially adapted to the Good Friday season of Passion Week.

It was announced last night that possible arrangements would give the Oregon for another week for the noonday services; though there will be none such on Saturday. The services have been well attended, the audience yesterday filling the house almost to capacity.

DOG HEAP SICK

CHICAGO, April 17.—Ping Lung, 4-year-old Pekinese of Mme. Ignace Paderewski, wife of the former premier of Poland, was still a very sick dog tonight, battling old age, lassitude, too much travel, and a case of gastritis.

The world renowned pianist rushed to Chicago from Sioux Falls, S. D., last night, telegraphing ahead for the best veterinarians of the mid-west and cancelling recital engagements, while the entire Paderewski menage of maids, valets, porters and secretaries centered its attention on the little pet.

FINAL FLASHES

CORDOVA, Alaska, April 17.—(By The Associated Press.)—The three U. S. army cruisers, which arrived at Shignik, Alaska, Tuesday from Seward, en route around the world, did not leave there today for Dutch Harbor, Unalaska island, on account of a heavy snow.

E PLURIBUS UNUM PASSE, "PASS THE BUCK" SUCCESSOR

Sum Total Established at Probes "One Unnecessary and Futile Lie Told"

CHICAGO, April 17.—Beginning with a few jabs at senatorial investigations, United States Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire tonight ran up the scale from constitution through state rights to tax reduction, stopping midway to add a measure of praise for the courage and capabilities of President Coolidge when he addressed the National Lumber Manufacturers association. Explaining that he was chairman of three senate investigating committees and a member of a fourth, Senator Moses spoke of the senatorial belief in the "heaven-born gift of investigation" and described the inquiries as the "motley procession of witnesses stalking across the center of the stage at Washington—divorces, drunks, dive keepers, dope fiends, disgruntled discharged government employes, reformed bandits, people out of a job, and anyone with a grievance."

"Time was when the motto of this country was 'E Pluribus Unum,' today it is 'pass the buck.' One little fact has been proven. It is shown that one in prominent position told one unnecessary and wholly futile lie and on that the whole structure of this scandal that is alarming the country has been built up."

"Our fathers intended that the United States should be a republic, with republican institutions, but the Luther Burbanks of politics only too successful have grafted on scions of democracy that have resulted only in a hybrid."

"The country is ruled by noisy, insolent minorities who have organized and seized on the agencies of publicity and propaganda and now find it possible to enforce their demands on those in Washington."

"Out of all this confusion emerges one clear-cut, sane, courageous vision—a president who knows the needs of the country and stands ready to serve those needs with his utmost power."

OREGON DAUGHTER HONORED BY D.A.R.

Miss Anne Lang of The Dalles Chosen National Vice President General

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Officers were elected today by the Daughters of the American Revolution in session here, the result of the balloting being announced tonight for eight vice presidents general.

Among those elected for a three-year term was Miss Anne W. Lang, The Dalles, Or.; Miss Rott Goode of Alabama being unopposed for the office of chaplain general, but no election resulted for honorary vice presidents general, no candidate receiving the required two-thirds vote. Another ballot will be conducted for this office tomorrow.

In maintaining communications aiding the flyers the Algonquin and the Haida are to be assisted by the Elder, a small boat of the United States fisheries service. Every effort is being made, Lieutenant Bissell disclosed to make sure that whatever surprises there shall be no loss of life.

Arrangements here proved that when the planes alighted in Unalaska they should be towed by small craft to an anchorage. Aboard the Haida was Major Blair, a weather expert of the government.

Prolonged Cold Is Not Pleasing to Fruit Men

Fruit growers are beginning to get alarmed over the prolonged cold, rainy spell, though it is not believed any real damage has been done so far. The hail early in the week knocked off a few blossoms, and there were a couple of cold nights, with frost, but the rainy weather, if continued will do more harm. The official weather prediction is encouraging and a rise of temperature is anticipated.

While the fruit growers are complaining of the weather, the farmer is sitting back with a glad eye upon the moisture, for in general he has his crops in for the year and is ready to welcome a good soaking at this time.

Some of the early blooming strawberries have been hard hit by the frost, according to Earl Percy, of the Oregon Growers and may make the fruit a little late. Pears and cherries cannot withstand much frost.

SACRAMENT BY RADIO

NEW YORK, April 17.—The right to purchase wine for sacramental use at home may be claimed properly after tomorrow by the radio communicants of the West End Presbyterian church, R. Q. Merrick, chief of the federal prohibition enforcement bureau here said tonight.

GLOBE FLIERS HARD BOILED ON WEATHER

Three Planes to Hop Off to Dutch Harbor Before Arrival of Commander, Major Martin

LAST STOP MADE ON AMERICAN CONTINENT

Emergency Stations for Communication to Be Placed on Atka Islands

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, April 17.—(By The Associated Press.)—With elaborate preparations already made additional plans to facilitate the passage of an American army squadron around the world were being passed at Dutch harbor (Unalaska) tonight.

Snow was falling here, but reports received from Chignik, 400 miles eastward and the last stop of the expedition on the American continent had indicated that three of the four planes engaged in the adventure would fly to Unalaska today. The word from Chignik was that Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson and Lieutenant Leigh Wade, those who reached that point while their commander, Major Frederick L. Martin was stopped at Catanak, 60 miles from here back on the route by a leak in his crank case, were getting hard boiled on Alaska weather."

Twice these three aviators had made a day's stage with an Alaska tempest rocking their machines and pounding hard Alaska snow into their eyes. Here has been the last land station for electrical communication on the route of the fliers until they shall have reached Japan. Communication between here and the Kurile island, Japan, 175 miles further on was to have been maintained by the cutters Haida and Algonquin, of the United States coast guard which arrived in Dutch Harbor yesterday.

But Lieutenant Clayton Bissell, advance officer for the flight, announced today that he would place an emergency station on Atka island, 350 miles beyond here and the next scheduled stop, at once.

Lieutenant Bissell, returning from the west, reported that buoys for anchoring the planes were all ready at Atka and at Attu island, 530 miles beyond Atka.

Small Boats Help
In maintaining communications aiding the flyers the Algonquin and the Haida are to be assisted by the Elder, a small boat of the United States fisheries service.

Every effort is being made, Lieutenant Bissell disclosed to make sure that whatever surprises there shall be no loss of life.

Arrangements here proved that when the planes alighted in Unalaska they should be towed by small craft to an anchorage. Aboard the Haida was Major Blair, a weather expert of the government.

RAINMAKER PAID BY CALIFORNIANS

Man Who Wooed the Clouds as Source of Income, Made Good and Collects

HANFORD, Cal., April 17.—"Rainmaker" Charles M. Hatfield, who from March 15 to April 15 "wooed clouds" as a source of income, and made good at the job. At a conference held in Lamore today where the average of the five official rain gauges in the territory in which Hatfield agreed to send rain upon the crops of Tulare Lake grain growers and Coaling and Lemore livestock raisers, was found to be two and twenty-nine hundredths inches of precipitation since March 15 and the check for $8,000 deposited in escrow, was turned over to the rainmaker.

Three Canneries Offer To Buy Logans at 5 Cents

Three Salem canneries are reported to be in the market and offering to purchase loganberries at 5 cents a pound. These canneries are Hunt Brothers, the Starr Fruit Products company, and the Northwest Fruit Products company.

Since the crop was materially reduced in size by the freeze during the winter, the size of the crop is uncertain and it is considered doubtful if many canneries will know when they have reached their requirements as acreage will mean but little this season.

In spite of the 5-cent offering, it is practically assured that a number of loganberry growers will not pick their vines this year. Because of the short crop the 5-cent quotation is said to yield only a meagre profit.

RECORD STORM FOR AIRSHIPS ENCOUNTERED

Alaskan Storm Braved By American Flyers Said to Have Been Real Blizzard

A BOARD UNITED STATES COAST GUARD CUTTER HAIDA, off Aleutian islands, (By Wireless to The Associated Press, Direct to Estevan, B. C.)—April 17.—The opinion of coast guard veterans and of United States weather experts aboard this vessel is that a storm through which three aviators of the American army drove their machines Tuesday from Seward, Alaska, to Chignik, Alaska, was the most hazardous ever encountered by airmen on a long trip.

This storm, consisting of snow and wind, was equal in ferocity to what is called a blizzard in the states, it was said.

BLOODSTAINED SLED IS FOUND BY SEARCHERS

Bend Trappers Believed to Have Been Murdered About January 15—Fox Skins are Missing

CABIN WAS NEAR LAKE IN DESCHUTES CANYON

Date Fixed Thru Food Supply Secured for Animals By Custodian in Charge

BEND, Or., April 16.—Evidence considered virtually positive that three trappers who made their headquarters at Little Lava lake the past winter were murdered has been gathered by searching parties who have been at the lake 65 miles from Bend, since the disappearance of Roy Wilson, Dewey Morris and Ed Nichols became known here Sunday. This was the report brought into Bend tonight by Pearl Lynes, superintendent of the Fall river and Tumalo fish hatcheries, on his return from the scene of the investigation.

A sled found at the edge of Big Lava lake, a half mile from the cabin, was bloodstained. The trappers' coats and hats, not only those habitually worn, but their better clothes as well, were left in the cabin, as were their snowshoes, hand axes and weapons.

The date of the disappearance is fairly well fixed. The site of the cabin is at a fox farm, of which Nichols was custodian. Five valuable foxes, worth from $2000 to $3000, were kept at the farm.

A fresh supply of feed for the foxes had been obtained on January 13 but the amount left indicated that the animals had been fed for only one day thereafter.

The skinned bodies of the foxes have been found near the cabin and it was apparent that at the same time the trappers disappeared the foxes were killed. This, it is said, would fix the date at approximately January 15.

Music publishers and composers opposed before senate patents committee the Dill bill to relieve broadcasting stations of royalties on music.

The senate committee investigating the indictment of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, hearings with denials by witnesses that Wheeler had appeared as an attorney before government departments.
