UNION IDEA IS GROWING RAPIDLY

Salespeople in Local Stores Join Movement—Organizer Here

With the preliminary work of organizing the salespeople in two Salem stores completed Monday, the painters back of a movement for a 44-hour week, the carpenters to hold a special meeting Thursday night to decide upon a 44-hour week; the organization of stage drivers and building laborers next week and the installation of a charter for the cooks and waitresses and the recent organization of meat dealers, Salem is fast becoming a thoroughly organized city with nearly all of the leading unions represented.

Salespeople in the John J. Rottle and Rostein & Greenbaum stores decided to affiliate with the retail clerks' union, with those in other stores signifying their intention of joining as soon as possible, as a result of several hours' work in the city by C. J. Hayes, an international vice president of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, with headquarters in Portland. Before leaving last night Mr. Hayes said that business men he had talked with were favorable to the plan of organizing the salespeople. The unions, he said, urge their members to spend their money at home, not to patronize mail order houses and to request union made products, with preference to Oregon products. Union-made garments are never made in sweatshops, Mr. Hayes pointed out. He said he would return in the near future as soon as the organization is ready for its charter.

Materials necessary to complete the organization of the cooks and waitresses arrived yesterday and preliminary work will be held at the Central Trades and Labor council headquarters on Court street tonight, according to F. W. Bond, international organizer for culinary workers. The new union will be designated as local No. 452 and will be installed Tuesday night, May 6. A delegation is expected from Portland to install the new officers.

First Day of Campaign For Kimball Does Well

Ten teams from Kimball college reported having received $700 of the $2,000 goal for Salem in a canvass Monday afternoon, according to an announcement made last night by Rev. E. C. Hickman, president. The campaign will continue today.

"Kimball college is closing one of the best years in its history," President Hickman said. "In spite of this good record we are under a great financial handicap. The $200,000 endowed campaign which was authorized three years ago was postponed to give Willamette university the right of way. We had no share in the fund subscribed to Willamette.

Plans for an immediate endowment campaign are again postponed by the launching of the campaign for retired preachers in this and other conferences of the area. Our fiscal year closes June 20. Against a budget of $15,000 for the year, $11,500 has been provided from sources outside of Salem. There is still unprovided $3500. We expect to secure $1,500 of this amount outside of Salem and the balance of $2,000 in the city. Of this amount $700 was raised during the first few hours."

Memorial Day Annual Mailed By Churchill

J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of schools, is mailing to the county superintendents the Oregon Memorial Day Annual, containing suggested Memorial day programs, rules for flag etiquette and selections that may be memorized by the pupils. The spirit of Memorial day is set forth by Mr. Churchill in the foreword, which says:

"Again we arrive at the season when we publicly express that sentiment of love and respect that is in our hearts at all times for those who made the supreme sacrifice for us. The heroes of yesterday who fought, suffered and died to pass on to us a heritage of peace and prosperity, have sacrificed in vain unless we, as bravely and selflessly, live for that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. If we fail to transmit to future generations, pure and unadulterated, the priceless boon which they have bequeathed to us, we have been traitors to the cause. We have not kept faith with them if we do not perpetuate, with fair dealings and brotherly love the peace which they have planted. As we bow in reverence to the memory of our dead, let us take stock of our patriotism and pledge ourselves anew in loyalty to our country and to the fundamental principles for which it stands."

Conference of Oregon Authors Will Present Interesting Program

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, April 28.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The second annual conference of Oregon writers is to be held at the University of Oregon Saturday, May 3. The conference will draw to the campus the best known prose fiction writers, poets and critics in the state. Two well known writers from Washington are expected.

Writers who have already signified their intention of attending the conference are: Edison Marshall, novelist; Charles Alexander, short story writer; Victor Shaw, short story writer; Anthony Euwer, poet and illustrator; Albert Wetjen, short story writer; Judge Charles H. Carey, historian and president of the Oregon Writers' league; Donegan Wiggins, writer of articles on outdoor life; Alexander Hull, short story writer; Robert O. Case, short story writer; Mrs. Grace Torrey, short story writer. Others who are expected to be present are: Mabel Holmes Parsons, poet and critic; Hugh Hume, editor of the Spectator; George O'Neal, literary editor of the Oregon Journal; Richard V. Haller, book editor of the Oregonian; Col. E. Hofer, editor of The Lariat; Murray Made, editor of the Oregon Magazine; Kenneth Gilbert and Frank Richardson Pierce, of Seattle, short story writers, and others.

While on the campus the visitors will be the guests of Pot and Quill and Ye Tabard Inn, student literary societies, and Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, student journalism societies. These organizations will entertain at luncheon Saturday noon.

Three addresses on various aspects of "Modernism" will be given Saturday afternoon in Alumni Hall, woman's building. Victor L. O. Chittick, professor of literature at Reed college; Prof. Herbert C. Howe, head of the English department, and Prof. Kimball Young, of the psychology department of the University of Oregon, will be the speakers.

A banquet in honor of the visitors will be held in Hendricks hall in the evening. Guests will attend the Junior Vot-vil following the banquet. After the performance the men will be guests at a smoker staged by Ye Tabard Inn.
